For Pierre, a victory hug from Margaret

Times News Services

The Liberal party, driven to the brink of defeat in 1972, smashed back Monday with a surprise majority election victory that cut Progressive Conservative strength and left the New Democratic Party battered and adrift with a defeated leader.

Contradicting the pollsters and political analysts, the Liberals scored gains in seven of 10 provinces and gave Prime Minister Trudeau a unique comeback.

No other prime minister ever fell to a minority position in Parliament and won another majority without first being out of office.

The final result:

Liberals	141	109
Conservatives	95	107
NDP	16	31
Social Credit	11	15
Independent	1	2
Total	264	261

The trend toward the Liberals started with the first returns from Newfoundland, picked up steam with an increased Liberal landslide in Quebec and a majority was indicated when the results flowed in from Ontario, where NDP Leader David Lewis went down to personal defeat in Toronto York South.

But not until final results were reported from British Columbia did the Liberal majority become definite.

The Liberals came into B.C. with 132 candidates elected, one short of a majority of Parliament's 264 seats and went over the top with ease, capturing eight B.C. ridings, doubling their representation.

The Conservatives, who lost in most other provinces, fared better in B.C., climbing to 13 seats, five more than in 1972, while the NDP elected only two MPs, nine less than in the last election.

It was the NDP's lowest representation in the province since 1940, when its forerunner, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, won just a single seat. But B.C. only had 16 ridings in that election.

Voters turned from the NDP across the province, electing Liberals in six ridings the NDP held in the last parliament, and giving the nod to the Conservatives in three long-time NDP strongholds.

The Conservatives also captured two Liberal seats.

Tempering the Liberal jubilation was the defeat of one of B.C.'s two cabinet ministers, Environment Minister Jack Davis, who lost the Vancouver suburban riding of Capilano to Ron Huntington of the Conservatives.

A stunned Paddy Neale says he will ask for a recount in Vancouver East, where he lost to Liberal Art Lee by a slim margin.

Neale's loss was regarded by the NDP as a major loss in the working class riding which, until Monday, had never voted anything but NDP or CCF.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield won personal re-election in Halifax, but disappointment showed on his face when he spoke before television cameras.

He congratulated Conservative candidates and workers but expressed regret at the outcome.

Beaten twice before by Mr. Trudeau — in 1968 and 1972 — the 60-year-old Opposition leader refused to indicate whether he will step down and open the way for a Conservative leadership convention.

Stanfield, daughter: tired and defeated

Gov't For All —PM

Times News Service

OTTAWA — A gracious Prime Minister Trudeau had tributes for everyone last night as he accepted the majority mandate handed to him by the Canadian people.

Trudeau was almost subdued as he and Margaret arrived at the Chateau Laurier hotel to the cheers of hundreds of supporters and admirers.

His only serious regret was that there had not been more Liberals elected in the three Prairie provinces, but he commented, "we will do our best to see that our policies apply fairly to them. We intend to be a government of all the people."

"We have the people, the resources, the vitality and the confidence to get on with the job," he said.

There was a tribute to every other party leader. Conservative leader Robert Stanfield had had a difficult task — putting a difficult proposition before the electorate. "I admire his courage," said Trudeau.

There was regret that NDP leader David Lewis had suffered personal defeat, and an offering that "I am sure we have not seen the last of David Lewis."

There were compliments for Creditiste leader Real Caouette for waging a courageous fight although he had been ill before the campaign . . . and for getting "more seats in Quebec than frankly I thought he would."

The Prime Minister concluded his formal statement with thanks to Margaret for her efforts in the campaign and an observation he was sure she and the children would be glad the campaign was over.

A kiss from Margaret. A kiss for Margaret. And the Prime Minister moved on to receive the plaudits and congratulations of hundreds of supporters gathered in the hotel for a victory party.

TORONTO — Beaten and bewildered, David Lewis indicated Monday he will soon resign his leadership.

Unity Party in Month Claims Liberal MLA

A Liberal MLA said today an announcement will likely be made within 30 days on the formation of a new non-socialist unity party in British Columbia.

Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said an organization has been operating actively throughout the province the last three months and he is optimistic an announcement will be made shortly.

The organization has no ties with the Majority Movement, he said, and has been operating on thelocal level with people who are now members of the Liberal Social Credit and Conservative parties.

He would not reveal the names of people involved or the number who have joined the movement.

Williams said he will join the party when it is formed and he expects three other MLAs, who have publicly committed themselves to join a unity party, will also join.

Those MLAs are Conservative leader Scott Wallace, Hugh Curtis (PC-Saanich and the Islands) and fellow Liberal Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey).

Williams said "I hope by October many members, including some Social Credit, will have joined."

Both Curtis and Wallace said today they knew nothing of any timetable for formation of the party and said none of the four MLAs have formally agreed to form a new party.

MISTAKEN FOR ANIMAL, GIRL SHOT BY FARMER

MAYERTHORPE, Alta (CP) — RCMP said Monday that Judy Ann Kirsch, 15, believed to be of Mayerthorpe, was shot and killed by a farmer who thought he was shooting at a coyote.

Police said the farmer heard his dogs barking and saw movement in a bush near his farmhouse. Having been troubled in the past by coyotes, he shot into the bush with a .22 calibre rifle.

Colwood, Langford Merger Step Closer

Municipal status for Colwood, Langford and View Royal is a step closer following a meeting today between Greater Victoria municipal representatives and Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer.

Lorimer said the seven mayors, three regional representatives and regional district chairman Jim Campbell, who attended the meeting, were opposed to any other changes in the Greater Victoria municipal boundaries.

The minister said, as far as he was concerned, the issue of other amalgamations is "dormant".

He said further meetings will be held on the subject of "some sort of municipal status" for the three outlying areas. A great deal of in-depth study of the areas and their tax bases will be needed, he said.

Asked if the government would campaign for the new status, Lorimer said there would be "a good campaign" but he denied the government had already made the decision to amalgamate the areas.

Crofton Faces Total Shutdown

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Crofton pulp mill will be shut down Wednesday morning.

A brief statement issued by Local 2 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada said it has "approved recommendations of the joint pulp and paper caucus in Vancouver.

"Management has been advised that all services are being withdrawn as of 8 o'clock (a.m.,) July 10 at the Crofton pulp mill. This action is in support of the joint caucus refusal to accept splitting of the trades rates which have been a standard rate for nearly 20 years."

There were unconfirmed reports late this morning that similar action will be taken against the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo and the Port Alberni pulp and newsprint mill.

Although Crofton Local 2 does not represent papermakers at the newsprint mill, its members do maintenance work in both the pulp and newsprint operations. The mill employs over 850.

Pat O'Neal, regional vice-president of the United Paperworkers International Union, declined comment on the "recommendations" referred to by the Crofton union.

The joint caucus involves both the PPWC and UPIU and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and Office and Technical Employees Union at Port Alberni.

"But there is a great deal of unrest among our mechanics," O'Neal said.

"They are unhappy because the industry is seeking to impose the IWA philosophy of grouping mechanics rather than a standard rate.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the pulp and paper companies, said Monday it is "reluctantly" seeking provincial government intervention by asking Labor Minister Bill King to appoint an industrial inquiry commissioner to investigate the relationship between tradesmen's rates in the pulp-paper industry and the woodworking industry.

The pulp and paper unions have complained that the traditional difference in tradesmen's rates in their favor has been wiped out. They want a differential maintained between their part of the industry and the woodworking side.

Mid-contract talks recently in Vancouver between the pulp and paper unions and the companies failed to resolve anything.

"With the threat of mill closures we feel the only solution in our interest and that of the public is to apply for a third party," said Don Lanskail, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau.

Jobless Rate Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment rate fell to 4.9 per cent in June, its lowest level in more than four years, Statistics Canada reported today.

Jobless rates and employment levels showed the best improvements on the Prairies while a double-digit unemployment rate remained only in the Atlantic region.

The June drop in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment level was a whopping six-tenths of a percentage point. There has not been an improvement that large in one month since October, 1966.

Regionally, the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were 10.3 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, 6.4 per cent in Quebec, 3.6 per cent in Ontario, 2.7 per cent in the Prairie provinces and 5.3 per cent in British Columbia.

There was a sharp drop in the level of unemployed under 25 — down to 8.4 per cent from 9.7 per cent seasonally adjusted.

The number of persons employed declined last month, ending a seven-month string of increases, and the upward trend was resumed in June.

Park-and-Ride for Civil Servants

A park-and-ride service for provincial government employees will begin this fall, enabling the government to eliminate several hundred parking spaces in the legislative precinct and free the land for new development.

A brief outline of how the system will work was given to city council's Central Business District Advisory Committee Monday by Ald. Sam Bawlf.

A "fringe" parking area will be established on the northern perimeter of downtown where government workers can leave their cars during the day, Bawlf said.

They will be taken to and from work by shuttle buses, which initially will be normal buses but later may be some form of multi-unit "people mover."

Bawlf indicated the government's long-term aim is to eliminate 1,000 parking spaces around the Legislative Buildings, and the first step, with the introduction of the park-and-ride service this fall, should achieve at least half that reduction.

Although the parking facilities will be only for government employees, he said, the shuttle buses will operate at 10-minute intervals throughout the day and carry other passengers during off-peak hours.

The long-range plan is to establish permanent parking facilities even farther out, in Saanich, and as soon as the shuttle service is operating from there the northern downtown location will be turned over entirely to public use, he said.

"It's a very exciting prospect," he added. "To the extent that we can remove commuter traffic we shall have created tremendous capacity for new business downtown."

Eaton's manager Reg Hind said the site of the fringe parking area is vital, as locating it too far out would tend to create a "whole new commercial area" and pull people away from downtown.

Bawlf assured Hind the city is sensitive to that possibility and has insisted the parking be within the northern downtown boundaries.

On another aspect of traffic and parking policy, Lloyd Davies, president of the Downtown Business Association, told Bawlf association members are "diametrically opposed" to the proposal to double parking meter rates, which comes before council for approval later this week.

"This is another thing that's likely to drive people to the (suburban) shopping centres," he said. "We must remain competitive downtown."

Davies said when the city first introduced parking meters in 1947 it did so as a traffic control measure and not for any revenue gain. "But now it looks as if you are raising the rates for extra revenue."

Bawlf asked him to present a report on the matter for consideration at the committee's next monthly meeting.

Grits Gain East

Prime Minister Trudeau, who received a massive personal majority in Montreal Mount Royal, said Canada elected a strong government in uncertain times and had shown confidence in the future.

Both Trudeau and Stanfield expressed regret at the personal defeat of Lewis.

There were indications during the campaign that Mr. Lewis planned to retire in the near future.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, who campaigned under predictions that his party was collapsing, won re-election in his Quebec riding of Temiscamingue and saw his party hold all but three of the 15 seats it won in 1972.

But Social Credit candidates again failed to make a breakthrough outside the party's Quebec power base.

The Liberals also tightened their traditional stranglehold on Quebec by boosting to 59 from 56 their share of the province's 74 seats.

All three gains were from Social Credit.

The Conservatives increased their Quebec popular vote but won only three ridings, the number they had when Parliament was dissolved May 9.

In Ontario, the Liberals won 55 of 88 seats, taking three from the NDP and wiping out seat after seat won by the Conservatives in 1972. The Conservatives dropped to 25 seats from 40 in Ontario, losing heavily in Toronto-area ridings and giving up some seats in traditionally-strong Conservative rural ridings.

All 30 cabinet ministers except Environment Minister Jack Davis were returned.

The Liberals held the two Manitoba seats they had at dissolution, with Defence Minister James Richardson taking Winnipeg South and Joseph Guay retaining St. Boniface. The lone change came in Selkirk where New Democrat Doug Rowland, considered a potential leadership candidate, was defeated by a Conservative.

The Liberals gained two in Saskatchewan, taking Assiniboia from New Democrat Bill Knight and Battleford-Kindersley from Conservative Norval Horner, brother of maverick Alberta Conservative Jack Horner who won another landslide victory in Crowfoot.

The Conservatives again swept all 19 Alberta seats, thwarting all Liberal attempts in the energy-rich province that often has clashed with Ottawa over federal oil policies.

Wally Firth, the first Metis MP from the North, retained the Northwest Territories for the NDP while veteran Conservative Erik Nielsen was returned in the Yukon. They hold the only two seats in the territories.

The outcome narrowed slightly the regional party divisions across the country but made no major changes.

The Liberals remain dominant in Quebec but weak in the Prairies, while the Conservatives hold strength in all parts of English Canada but have slim representation from French Canada.

The NDP had only one bright moment Monday night. Popular Roman Catholic priest Andy Hogan won Cape Breton-East Richmond, the first NDP win east of Ontario since 1962.

It was only the third July election since Confederation — the others were in 1872 and 1930 — and the turnout appeared to be affected by the increased number of people kept from the polls by summer vacations and generally bright sunny weather across the country.

With 97.1 per cent of the vote reported, the vote total was 9,194,808 compared with 9,667,449 in 1972 when 74.3 per cent of eligible voters cast ballots. There were 13.45 million eligible voters Monday compared with 13,000,778 in 1972.

The election Monday was the second federal vote in which 18-year-olds were eligible to cast ballots. In 1968, when the voting age was 21, there were 10,860,888 eligible voters.

Only one Independent candidate was elected Monday — former mayor Leonard Jones of Moncton. He scored a clear-cut win over four other opponents in the New Brunswick riding of Moncton where he was nominated initially as the Conservative candidate and was rejected by Stanfield because of his opposition to the Official Languages Act.

The outcome gave Prime Minister Trudeau a clear mandate to cope with inflation without resorting to prices and incomes controls — the main anti-inflation proposal put forward by Stanfield. Inflation was the central issue of the campaign, which started soon after the government was defeated May 8 in the Commons.

Trudeau argued the best way to cope with inflation is to increase supply and to assist low-income and fixed-income wage earners, those least able to absorb price increases. He has promised to re-introduce the budget which led to the fall of his government. This likely will be when Parliament next sits, possibly next month.

Stanfield, despite opposition by some members of his party, proposed a 90-day incomes and prices freeze to be followed by an 18-month to two-year period of flexible controls.

The election was fought less than a month before new election expenses legislation takes effect. It will limit the amounts that individual candidates and parties can spend, and force public disclosure of all campaign donations over $100.

The legislation was passed in January but not enough time was available to put it into operation for the election Monday. It is scheduled to become law Aug. 1.

Figures have not been tabulated, but both the Liberals and Conservatives are expected to exceed the $5.3 million and $3.9 million they spent respectively on the 1972 election.

Mr. Lewis estimated the NDP budget for the Monday election at about $400,000 for the national NDP campaign. Individual ridings raise and control all money spent locally for NDP candidates.

MY GOSH, it happened, NDP leader David Lewis told reporters as it was announced he had lost personal re-election in York South. His wife Sophie was with him when the results were disclosed.

Premier Quits

LISBON (UPI) — Premier Adelino da Palma Carlos presented his resignation to President Antonio de Sponla today, officials of the premier's office said, and several other cabinet ministers were expected to submit their resignations shortly over disagreements within the cabinet.

Leaders

told about 200 campaign workers he does not favor asking a victorious candidate to resign his seat, but the matter will be discussed with party officials.

"It may be that I won't have to worry about retiring," he said. "The electors of South York may have retired me.

"... Whether or not staying as leader is something I will have to discuss with others. My own inclinations is to say let someone else have it.

"My work in the party has not been merely as an MP. I've done in it other capacities and no doubt I will do it in other capacities in the future. But I was quite frank with you when I said my retreat may have been decided by this election."

It was all over for the 65-year-old labor lawyer about 90 minutes after balloting ended.

"I'm naturally disappointed," he said. "No one can help feeling disappointed. I was also very surprised because all the canvassing showed that we were winning. And all of the workers expected us to win. But that's what politics is all about."

HALIFAX — Tory leader Robert Stanfield blamed Ontario Monday for his defeat at the polls but refused to consider whether he will resign as party leader following the Liberal victory.

Stanfield, at a press conference in his hometown riding, appeared tired but in good humor despite the resounding defeat which he suffered in the election.

He admitted his campaign for price and income control did not appear to have sold voters, particularly in Ontario.

He suggested that voters in that province did not think that a Conservative government had a chance of forming a majority to bring those controls into effect.

"May be the people of Ontario felt that the important aspect of controlling inflation was to have someone with the position of a majority," he said.

The Conservative leader's headquarters here were jammed with enthusiastic supporters when the polls closed but were soon emptied as the returns came in.

It was a scant hour later that tabulations showed Stanfield was losing ground in his own region.

Tory organizers were not too surprised by the Quebec results, but when the Ontario reports came they knew it was all up.

Neither she nor Stanfield would discuss the possibility of his resignation as leader.

Stanfield said he would not discuss the question until he had an opportunity to talk to his caucus and party officials.

He noted that the Conservative constitution, as amended this year, provides for an automatic review of the leadership each year.

Stanfield said he regrets the personal defeat of NDP leader David Lewis in York South and stated that "Parliament will be the poorer" because of his defeat.

He said he accepts the results of Monday's vote but added that his party will continue to fight in Parliament on issues as it sees them.

He denied that the results of the vote indicated simply that Canadians rejected his campaign for price and income controls.

Discussing the reason for his defeat, he said: "Clearly it was the province of Ontario."

France Triggers 2 Blasts

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — France exploded two atomic bombs at its South Pacific testing grounds over the weekend, not one as reported by Australia and New Zealand, French military sources said today.

Government officials refused to confirm or deny the report, in keeping with France's official policy of not discussing the tests publicly.

The sources said the first atomic test, code-named Centaur, took place Saturday. Another one, called Gemini, occurred Monday.

Both bombs were exploded at the Mururoa Atoll in the Tuamotu Archipelago, 800 miles southeast of here.

It was the second blast which apparently was detected by Australia and New Zealand, the sources said.

The first reported test in the current series came June 18.

French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing, who gave his permission for the new round of explosions after his inauguration May 26, said this year's tests would be the last held by France in the atmosphere.

Also the U.S. Atomic Energy commission says it will detonate a nuclear explosive device under the desert Wednesday morning.

The AEC said the device, with a yield of 20 to 200 kilotons, will be powerful enough to be felt in Las Vegas, 200 miles south of the test site.

Warnings were issued to workers in high rise structures to stay away from "pre[illegible]s" at the time of the explosion.

PENNY TRIAL

Two Quebec residents were remanded Monday to Sept. 6 for trial in Victoria provincial court on a charge of dipping into a fountain fund.

Michel Mercure, 31, and Louise Dussault, 21, both of Thetford Mines, pleaded not guilty to theft of less than $200.

Defence counsel Rodney Smith, a Legal Aid duty lawyer, said the pair claimed they took 160 pennies from the fountain in front of the courthouse to buy food and thought it was all right to do so.

Former City Man Promoted

Former Victorian, Lt.-Col. Sinclair Ash, will become a member of the staff at Staff College in Toronto in early August.

Promoted to lieutenant-colonel June 30, Ash has been commanding officer of CFS Beausejour in Muskwa, Man. for the past two years.

He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in July, 1953 and attended officers' school in London, Ont.

Reprisal Raids Vowed For Israeli Strikes

Times News Services

Palestinian guerrillas vowed today to launch a new round of reprisal raids in retaliation for Israel's lightning naval strikes against Lebanon's Mediterranean coast.

The Israeli navy Monday night shelled three ports in southern Lebanon, sinking more than a score of fishing boats in retaliation for the Palestinian guerrillas raid by sea two weeks ago on Nahariya.

The Israeli military command said it had "numerous indications" that the terrorists were preparing more seaborne attacks. The command said its raid on the ports was intended to "disrupt the preparations and warn against the use of these harbors" by the guerrillas.

Israel said the attack was "limited in scope," and every attempt was made to avoid injuries to civilians. The Lebanese government reported one casualty, a civilian wounded by an explosion in Sidon.

"The Palestinian revolution will reply to the Israeli attack by attacks on Israeli targets from inside our occupied lands," a guerrillas news agency said in Beirut.

Officials in Beirut and Tel Aviv issued conflicting reports on the raids, which broke a three-week lull in the escalating war of strikes and counter-strikes along the uneasy Israeli-Lebanese front.

Israeli military sources said naval commandos sank an estimated 20 vessels at the ports of Tyre, Sidon and Ras-E-Sheik in southern Lebanon to forestall future guerrilla attacks from the sea.

"It was more of a warning than anything because we saw that preparations were underway for an assault," the Tel Aviv sources said.

SAANICH HOME ISOLATED BY APARTMENT ZONING

Construction of two 49-unit apartment buildings on McKenzie was approved at a Saanich public hearing Monday, isolating a single-family home between the two buildings.

Residents, who opposed the zoning were told by Ald. Mel Couvelier that those living near the Quadra-McKenzie intersection must "reconcile themselves to mounting development pressures".

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Green, 1008 McKenzie, will be jammed between the two buildings, one of which is to be built on 1.14 acres at 1002 McKenzie.

The other is planned for lots at 1010, 1012 and 1014 McKenzie and 4010 Quadra. Original plans for the block, to be developed by Wes Bentley, had called for 69 units, this had been rejected by council and the new 49-unit proposal prepared.

Green said the top floor of one of the apartments "will be looking onto my sundeck, invading my privacy and obstructing my view."

He said he would be "sitting in the middle now".

Couvelier told Green he was in this position because he had chosen not to sell to one of the developers.

Couvelier said study made by Saanich in 1969 had recommended apartments for the area.

Saanich residents, Couvelier said they could Saanich residents, couvelier said they could not "allow spot zoning or injudicious land use."

Gas Stations Facing Curbs

Saanich council took a step Monday toward controlling the spread of new service stations.

It rezoned two vacant lots owned by B.A. Oil at the corner of Cordova Bay and Blenkinsop back from service station commercial to rural classification.

It decided, however, to delay rezoning property owned by Home Oil Distributors Ltd. at the north corner of Shelbourne and Feltham, back from service station commercial to single-family dwelling after a company official appealed at the public hearing to have action frozen for at least two years.

"The municipality is saturated with gas stations," Mayor Ed Lum said. "Most of the ones we do have are having a very tough time."

John Anderson of 4672 Blenkinsop told the council he had counted 13 service stations within a 3½-mile radius of his area.

The Home Oil spokesman said his company had owned the Shelbourne-Feltham site since 1958, adding "due to production and manufacturing problems we can't assure council of immediate development."

He urged delay of rezoning for at least two years, stating further outlets in Saanich were essential for his company's growth.

"I don't know that the company could be very seriously hurt," Ald. Les Passmore commented. "It's been 16 years and it can't make up its mind. It's been given a lot of latitude."

FIRST-TIME LUCKY in the political arena was the way it ended for these three novice Liberal candidates in Vancouver: from left, lawyer Art Lee, journalist Simma Holt and television personality Mark Raines. All three were gains from seats held in 1972 by the NDP.

Prominence Doesn't Always Pay

Canadian Press

A prominent past appears to have little bearing on political fortunes.

Former cabinet ministers trying for a come-back went down to defeat in Monday's election; newspaper and television men, never having been short of exposure, were clobbered.

Being the grandson of a former prime minister wasn't any help and having been premier of Manitoba wasn't considered a qualification to become an MP by the voters.

Among the prominents who went down to defeat Monday was Michael Meighen, president of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada and grandson of former Prime Minister Arthur Meighen.

Meighen was defeated by C. M. (Bud) Drury, president of the treasury board, who took the Montreal-Westmount riding for the sixth straight time.

Duff Roblin, former Conservative Premier of Manitoba, couldn't overcome his carpetbagger stigma and was beaten by the incumbent Liberal Hugh Faulkner, secretary of state, who was re-elected in Peterborough, Ont.

Ron Brewer, a former Canadian Football League player, ran for the Conservatives in Hamilton East and was defeated by Labor Minister John Munro.

It appears that the scandal which followed Munro's admission last week that political patronage was a fact of life didn't hurt his chances for re-election.

Simma Holt, Vancouver Sun columnist, was elected for the Liberals in Vancouver Kingsway in her first bid for political office.

Rev. Andy Hogan (NDP) was elected in Cape Brenton-East Richmond to become the first Roman Catholic priest ever elected to the House of Commons and the first third-party candidate elected to the Commons from the Atlantic provinces since 1962.

It was a bad day, however for members of the Fourth Estate in the East.

Conservative incumbent Peter Reilly was defeated in Ottawa West by Liberal Lloyd Francis, the MP Reilly defeated in 1972. Reilly became somewhat a national celebrity years ago for his participation in the CBC public affairs program This Hour Has Seven Days.

Ron Collister, former CBC parliamentary reporter, was defeated in the Toronto riding of York-Scarborough. Collister, who ran for the Conservatives, was beaten by Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury.

Don Jamieson, minister of regional economic expansion, was re-elected in Bruin-Burgeo, Nfld., after one poll reported.

In Winnipeg North Centre, veteran MP Stanley Knowles, 66, long-time house whip for the NDP and expert on parliamentary procedure, was re-elected. He has held the seat since 1945 with the exception of four years.

George Hees, Conservative defence spokesman and former trade minister during the Diefenbaker government, was re-elected in Prince Edward-Hastings.

HE WANTED TO VOTE FOR HIMSELF . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — There are always a few oddities in an election, and Monday's was no exception.

"Apparently someone came in to a polling station with $200 and wanted to vote for himself," Jean-Marc Hamel, chief electoral officer, said today.

Officials at the polling station Hamel did not name where explained that nominations closed several weeks ago.

In general, everything went smoothly Monday, however.

He was not able to give any information about the number of spoiled ballots in Quebec, however.

The separatist Parti Quebecois had urged voters in that province to spoil their ballots to express rejection of the federal system.

But Mr. Hamel said there will be no indication of how many ballots were spoiled because they contain markings other than the required x in the circle beside the chosen candidate's name until official counting begins Thursday.

The Big Blue Machine Crushed in Ontario

Times News Services

The highly-touted Big Blue Machine of Ontario's Tory premier William Davis which Robert Stanfield had counted on to push him to national victory was flattened by the Trudeau steamroller Monday.

In all, the Liberals seized 55 of Ontario's 88 seats, compared with the 36 they took in 1972. They won 64 in 1968.

The Progressive Conservatives fell to 25 from 40 while the NDP dropped three seats to a total of eight.

One major casualty was Paul Hellyer, a former Liberal cabinet minister who defected three years ago and won Toronto Trinity as a Conservative in 1972. He was beaten by Liberal Aideen Nicholson.

Another victim of the Liberals was Duff Roblin, former premier of Manitoba, who tackled unsuccessfully State Secretary Hugh Faulkner in Peterborough.

NDP prominents who went down with Lewis were Terry Grier and John Harney.

In Metro Toronto the only non-Liberal survivors were New Democrats Andrew Brewin and John Gilbert, and Conservative James Gillies in Toronto Don Valley.

One of the surprises of the count was the way the Liberals knocked off a group of rural ridings generally regarded as firmly Conservative, apparently thanks to the campaigning of Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

While Southern Ontario shifted politically, the northern part of the province maintained the status quo by electing nine Liberals and three New Dmocrats, the same as in 1972.

Another beneficiary of the Ontario Liberal tide was Norman Cafik, who in Ontario constituency had the country's narrowest margin — four votes — over former Frank McGee in 1972. This time, he had a margin of 4,558 Conservative cabinet minister man.

Labor Minister John Munro also improved his position spectacularly despite a campaign row over patronage. He came up with a plurality of 8,636 almost double his 1972 figure over Conservative Ron Brewer, former professional football player, in Hamilton East.

DAVIS

DAVIS GOES DOWN

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) Environment Minister Jack Davis was defeated by Conservative Ron Huntington in the federal election Monday after holding the riding for 12 years.

Less than two hours after the polls closed in B.C., the minister conceded defeat to Huntington, 53, who lost to him in 1972 by 6,616 votes.

The North Vancouver bussinessman campaigned hard to topple the 58-year-old cabinet minister, who won his seat in 1968 by 21,000 votes the highest majority of any candidate in Canada.

I'm going to continue in politics," Davis said.

"I'm not quite sure what I'm going to be doing in the next month or two, but in the long run I'll be involved in political life."

He attributed his defeat, in part, to a feeling the Liberal government had ignored B.C.

Davis said he thought government spending was another factor adding to his defeat in the high-income riding.

CAOUETTE

By STEVE HENDLER
Special to The Times

ROUYN — Social Credit leader Real Caouette last night claimed a "huge victory" for his party, which survived with only minor losses an all-out attempt by Quebec's federal Liberal machine to crush it as a political force.

Although the Socreds lost three of the 15 Quebec seats they had held, and dropped to about 17 per cent of the Quebec popular vote from the 24.4 per cent they won in 1972, Caouette repeatedly insisted that he was not at all disappointed.

Instead he crowed over having once again frustrated "those who hope for my retirement or disappearance from the political scene."

The results had proved that those pollsters and media pundits who had predicted his party would be reduced to two or three seats were "talking through their hats," because they didn't understand the people as he did.

Caouette said the election results proved he had been right in opposing an election at this time while NDP leader David Lewis had been wrong in forcing an election by defeating the the Liberal budget.

It appeared that about half the drop in the Socred popular vote was due to the loss of votes the party won in the 29 metropolitan Montreal ridings in 1972.

Caouette insisted that his son Gilles, defeated in Charlevoix, would win on late polls or a recount. But he failed to comment on the defeat of veteran Socred MPs Henri Latulippe in Compton and Roland Godin in Portneuf.

In fact he insisted, long after all Quebec races had been decided, that another three to six Socreds would be elected on the basis of late returns.

Although he was in hospital twice immediately before the election, Caouette insisted that "my health is excellent I am ready to fight Mr. Trudeau again."

There was no question of a Socred leadership convention this fall, though the party executive might decide to call one in two or three years.

"If I ever feel too weak to lead a campaign, I'll get the heck out. But if I feel as I do tonight, then I'll stay on."

"I intend to follow the example of John Diefenbaker, who is 78 and was re-elected in Prince Albert tonight," the 56-year-old Caouette said.

"I'm good for another 20 years."

The Socred chief pledged that, although his party had failed to win the balance of power in a minority Parliament, it will continue to fight for a guaranteed annual income and universal old age pensions of $100 a month at age 60.

He maintained that the Parti Quebecois campaign to have Quebec voters spoil their ballots was a failure that would cost the PQ dearly.

"Rene Levesque made a fool of himself with this stupidity of his. The Pequistes who didn't vote will still have to pay federal taxes."

Prairies Still Rejected Liberal Blandishments

While much of Canada gave a resounding "Yes" to Prime Minister Trudeau and his Liberals Monday, the Prairies, as usual, said "No."

The Tories swept Alberta, just as they did in 1972, grabbing all 19 seats without much trouble.

They captured nine of Manitoba's 13 seats, a gain of one from the last election. The Liberals maintained their two seats while the New Democratic party's representation dropped to two from three.

In Saskatchewan, the Conservatives won eight seats, one more than in 1972, while the NDP dropped to two from five.

The only Saskatchewan Liberals to win were Justice Minister Otto Lang in Saskatoon-Humboldt and Lang's former assistant, Ralph Goodale, in Assiniboia.

The election produced no real surprises.

John Diefenbaker easily won re-election in Prince Albert and called his win "the first time in Canadian history that someone has won 12 successive general elections."

Diefenbaker reserved judgment on the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. The former prime minister declined to comment on the possible effect of the election on Robert Stanfield's leadership.

"It's too early to talk about those things," he said.

"I'm disappointed at the national result, but after all, the people have spoken and I accept the verdict," said Diefenbaker.

Diefenbaker said he was "very sorry" to hear of the personal defeat of NDP leader David Lewis.

"I always had for him that respect which I give to political opponents who I regard as sincere."

Defence Minister James Richardson, who had fought a hard campaign against Conservative Sterling Lyon, former Manitoba attorney-general, won in Winnipeg South.

The closest battle was in Battleford-Kindersley between incumbent Norval Horner of the Conservatives and Liberal Cliff McIsaac, former Saskatchewan minister of education and municipal affairs. Dr. McIsaac finally edged ahead.

In Alberta, Marcel Lambert, former Speaker of the Commons, won easy re-election in Edmonton West. Cattleman Bert Hargrave retained Medicine Hat against H. A. (Bud) Olson, former agriculture minister, who lost his seat in 1972.

Stanley Knowles, who has held Winnipeg North Centre for the NDP since 1945 except for four years after the Diefenbaker sweep, retained his seat.

Walter Dinsdale, former Conservative minister of northern affairs, did the same in Brandon-Souris.

Business Cheers Poll Result Despite Conservative Leanings

Election of a Liberal majority government is a good thing if only because it means there will be no wage and price controls, British Columbia Construction Association president Wayne Farmer of Victoria said today.

Initial business reaction in British Columbia to a majority federal government was favorable but businessmen also wanted to see how the Liberals will deal with taxes and spending.

"I think there is no question the fact we have a majority government is an important thing for Canada," said Gerald Hobbs, president of Cominco Ltd., a world-wide mining company based in Vancouver.

"Let's hope the Liberals will take hold and deal with some of the problems left untouched during their previous fractured position," he said.

John Chaston, president of Pemberton Securities Ltd., said election results were "a very obvious rejection of wage and price controls."

He said the government now will have to settle the tax confrontation and deal with inflation.

"This is a very positive rebuff for Premier Barrett and his activities," said William Hamilton, president of the Employers' Council of B.C. and a former Conservative cabinet minister.

"Businessmen would have slept a little better with a Conservative majority government," he said.

"I would hope Liberals will now get on with the job of running the country."

Farmer said: "Businessmen I talked to were very much opposed to wage and price controls, although this opposition was much stronger in Ontario than in B.C.," he said.

He said a large segment of the business community would have preferred a Conservative government, but voted Liberal because of the controls issue.

"That's what defeated (Robert) Stanfield, no doubt about it. Controls are not free enterprise, they are not good business."

Farmer said construction companies in Ontario were concerned about a worker backlash if wages were frozen. Chances for labor peace were better in a free economy.

He said the concern was not as strong in B.C. where unions were extremely militant anyway.

Election of the Liberals probably means the 11 per cent tax will come off construction equipment as outlined in the federal budget that was defeated by the opposition parties.

There also was a good chance the Liberal majority government would remove the 11 per cent tax on building materials as well. If so, the provincial government has promised to remove the 5 per cent provincial sales tax on building materials also.

One Way to Figure It . . .

LETHBRIDGE (CP) If you want to know when the next election will be, you might ask Jim and Mary Hillyer of Stirling, Alta.

Mrs. Hillyer gave birth to her second consecutive election-day baby, James Mason Hillyer, Monday. Frederick Herman Hillyer was born Oct. 3, 1972.

SQUEAKER UP-ISLAND AS NDP LOSES SEAT

Comox-Alberni Liberal Hugh Anderson slipped to victory Monday, polling only 1,000 votes above his closest rival, Conservative Al Lazerte.

There were seven polls yet to report today, but the district returning officer said the seven included four lighthouse polls totalling only 16 votes and another three small polls including ony about 115 votes. The final results are expected early Wednesday.

Anderson scored his tight victory in a riding which has been held by the NDP for 17 of the last 22 years. Veteran NDP MP Tom Barnett retired this year, with young lawyer Don Barker unable to carry on the tradition.

Only about 2,000 votes separated Barker from the winning place.

Anderson is the head of a Port Alberni insurance agency and is a former RCAF officer stationed both in Comox and Holberg in the northern area of the riding.

Voters in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands kept on with their NDP traditions, re-electing Tommy Douglas by more than 2,000 votes.

Douglas said he was jubilant about his victory, but said his "heart bleeds" for defeated NDP leader David Lewis.

Douglas, who led the NDP before Lewis, hinted that he may change his plans for retirement after this term.

With the party leaderless, he said he may have to revise his plans," depending on the situation at the time."

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. A Day of Surprises

In the mysterious, seemingly sub-conscious process of a nation at the polls, Canadian voters yesterday faced what the pundits and seers had called a political impasse and came up with a clear-cut victory for the Liberal government of Pierre Trudeau. The decisive 141 seats were a surprise, even to many of the winners, but the election has moved Canada out of the doldrums of a minority administration and opend the way for a new attack on inflation, unemployment and other problems which beset the country.

The result did not produce an over-riding mandate. It might be ascribed as much to distrust of the inadequate Conservative campaign as to widespread enthusiasm for Liberal policies. The battle was won in Quebec and Ontario, with skirmishes on the eastern and western beaches, and the victory, marred by the great desert on the prairies, has the handicap of not being universally representative of the nation. But politics is the art of winning office as much as implementing policies, and Mr. Stanfield would have been no more representative if he had won with a heavy western majority and almost no voices at all from French Quebec.

As it is, the country must feel relief that the impasse is over and the government has a clear hand to devise and carry out the best policies of which it is capable. It is not so sweeping a success as to be a basis for party complacency; it is, rather, the anxious appeal of a country to "move us along out of this mess."

Mr. Stanfield will find some sympathy for his losses, along with widespread public relief that he will not have a chance to put into practice the price-and-income controls with which he saddled himself from the start of the campaign. There will likewise be sympathy for Mr. Lewis, who apparently has ended a 40-year career in the socialist politics of Canada. It is ironic that the man who precipitated the election by pulling the parliamentary plug has gone down the drain with the bath water. Among other victims was Environment Minister Jack Davis, the only cabinet minister to suffer defeat. His fall was particularly frustrating, coming as it did in the midst of the global conference on the law of the sea where his department was deeply involved.

For Mr. Trudeau personally the Liberal victory carries special, well-deserved satisfactions. He has repudiated the critics who saw his political end as near, he has revived a measure of the Trudeau popularity which set the nation buzzing two elections ago, and he has vindicated the approach of himself and his colleagues to inflation as an international problem requiring a more basic remedy than a heavy hand on the safety valve.

Mr. Trudeau now has an open opportunity to lead Canada to safer ground, initiate overdue governmental economies, and give industry such incentives to increase production as may be practicable. The remedies for inflation will not be easy or painless, but the government now has the necessary four-year grant of power to make headway.

As a sidelight on the election, the rough experience of the NDP candidates in British Columbia is interesting. From a 1972 high tide of 11 seats, the federal socialists dropped to two — the lowest in 30 years. The Liberals doubled their holding to eight and the Conservatives gained five to net 13 seats.

If the NDP wastage was in fact due to public resentment of provincial socialist policies imposed by Premier Barrett — and there is considerable evidence that it was, with traditional NDP strongholds falling to tyro challengers — then the B.C. government leader is in trouble. He has two years to alter his image and slow down his hard-driving socialization march. But this would mean abandonment of much of the basic program for his non-violent revolution in B.C. Mr. Barrett must wrestle with the question — which the voters in time will answer.

". . . What hurts most is that he didn't even want a fight . . ."

On the Local Scene

The victories of the Conservative candidates in the local elections were not unexpected. Although Mr. Munro in Esquimalt-Saanich and Mr. McKinnon in Victoria are not spectacular members of parliament, they have done their constituency chores and provided representation for their areas and thereby earned a replay in Ottawa. They are to be congratulated even though their party has slipped far from its previous position on the doorstep of office.

The defeated candidates, too, made the most of their campaigns and cannot be faulted on performance. Former Oak Bay Mayor Elford and Mr. Joy, running on Liberal tickets, won encouraging support for their first attempts in federal company, even though the incumbents nearly doubled the vote on their second-place totals.

As Mr. Trudeau said in his victory speech, the country may be proud of the calibre of candidate being attracted to the national contests. The health of democracy lies in the quality of the citizens willing to serve.

A Matter of Nickels and Dimes

Parking meters should never be intended as a form of taxation, but only as a means of regulating congested parking facilities. With that in mind, it is difficult to endorse a plan that will lift even more nickels and dimes from the pockets of the hard-pressed driving public. But there are two sides to the coin in Victoria's public works and traffic committee recommendation that downtown parking rates should be increased 100 per cent.

If the higher rates result in a faster turnover and fairer use of downtown parking spaces the plan will have merit. But if people don't hurry back to their cars when pennies are involved, what difference will nickels and dimes make in these inflationary times?

New nickel-and-dime meters will cost the city $160,000. If the committee recommendation becomes law the city will gross $311,094 — $100,000 more than in 1973 using the penny meters. Also in 1973 the city transferred $95,000 of parking meter receipts into general revenue, after expenses. The higher rates are expected to gross an extra $86,000 each year. The meters begin to sound more like another form of taxation than a regulatory measure.

On-street parking demand will apparently continue to increase at a worrisome rate and the city is trying to do something positive about the situation. But charging all the traffic will bear remains a doubtful objective. The regulatory function should cover its costs, no more.

W. A. WILSON

No Simple Domestic Affair

OTTAWA — Unless clear signs of slowing price inflation begin to emerge soon, very strong pressures to deflate the economy will begin to bear down on the Canadian government.

Deflationary policies at home cannot, of course, affect whatever portion of the over-all upward movement of prices originates outside the country. No serious attention needs to be paid to the Conservative claim that 60 per cent of the inflation is generated domestically because this was a piece of campaign rhetoric that desperately over-simplified everything involved.

The great flaw in the simplistic electoral use of the figure was the way in which it ignored the inevitable inter-play of forces, between pressures from abroad and those at home pushing prices upwards.

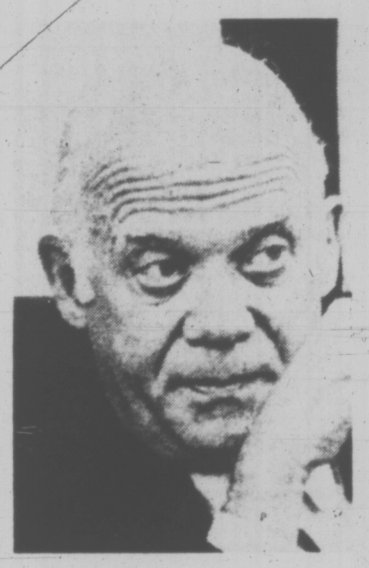
Once again, housing is not a bad example. It is the politicians' favorite example of the field in which price inflation originates at home. That is true in part but it is a bad over-simplication because it ignores the fact that the greatest upward pressure on timber prices came from the export market. It ignores equally the complexities of an even greater factor in the ultimate cost of home-ownership: interest rates. This is no simple, purely domestic affair, conveniently inflated from a harsh world — the level is very much affected by rates elsewhere.

Deflationary Tactics

But deflationary tactics would have some effect. They can be imposed easily by reining in the money and credit supply sharply, adopting tough fiscal policies, curbing consumer credit and so on, while maintaining interest rates at a high level. After a certain time lag, such a combination of policies would slow economic growth sharply, send unemployment up by a few hundred thousand towards the 800,000 level and undoubtedly slow the rate of price inflation to some extent.

These policies would not, of course, curb price rises that originate with an extremely high level of international demand but some important countries are starting to move in this direction, or showing signs that they may. There might well be a reinforcing effect from outside the country. Steps in this direction have already been taken in Europe and the signs from the United States indicate that there may be further movement there away from growth policies.

In Canada, the Bank of Montreal's recent unsuccessful attempt to lead the banking system generally into still higher interest rates — without any signal from the Bank of Canada or the finance department that this was sought as a development of monetary policy — was one effort to apply pressure to bring about deflation. Some important newspapers are moving in this direction as well.



LOUIS RASMINSKY

The new government must, however, decide some priorities among the problems facing us and other countries. The essential decision to be made is whether the very grave balance of payments problems now building up from higher oil prices, or double figure inflation, constitutes the more serious problem. The case for maintaining neutral or mildly expansionary policy settings is simple: still further expansion of world trade, in actual volume, seems to be the only way in which the great balance of payments problems can be overcome.

Canada is not an immediate victim of the payments problems created by the change in oil prices but it is extremely vulnerable to any down-turn in world trade. The most disturbing element in today's economic situation is not the immediate price problem. It is the possibility that if major countries seek to cope with rising prices by adopting sharply deflationary policies they will so grossly aggravate the payments deficits of several countries that international monetary arrangements will collapse under the strain. Then trade will slump sharply in consequence.

Burned Fingers

So far as Canada is concerned, the public still is conscious of the way in which the Liberal government burned its political fingers by the Draconian measures adopted late in 1968 and carried through until early in 1972. That is why there has been such lop-sided reliance on interest rates alone to slow expansion of the monetary supply, not to the ridigities of 1969, but to a rate of growth more closely related to general economic growth. This fear of committing the same mistake again may help in warding off the forthcoming pressures.

From 1966 onwards, the Liberals had been dedicated to trying to keep the economy balanced, maintaining growth while slowing price rises. In late 1968, however, a new element of economic hysteria crept in. The persuasiveness of the Governor of the Bank of Canada — at the time Louis Rasminsky — was great enough to convince the administration that it must abandon the goal of growth and deflate. The shift from balance to extremism occurred very quickly once it started. The pressures later this year are not going to be any less than they were in late 1968.

Monday's Mixture in Quebec

MONTREAL — Senator Jean-Pierre Cote, chief federal Liberal organizer in Quebec, looked at his province's election results Monday night on the television screen, scratched his chin and said:

"I wonder where we went wrong."

His party, as far as most observers were concerned, did well here, gaining 59 of the province's 74 seats, with Social Credit dropping from 15 to 11 and the Progressive Conservatives hanging on to their original three.

"I'm very happy that we picked up all those seats in the rest of the country," the senator said, "but I wish we could have picked up more here.

"I really thought we were going to pick up more seats from the Creditistes."

Claude Wagner's PC victory, despite a furious Liberal campaign in St. Hyacinthe, did not make the senator particularly happy either.

"But then," he said, "I guess an organizer is never completely satisfied. On the whole it's pretty good."

Aside from such perfectionists however, other Liberals could be satisfied. The party not only gained three seats here. It won 53.7 of the popular vote, up 4.1 per cent from 1972.

The Tories had some room for self-congratulation too, gaining 3.6 per cent more of the popular vote to edge past the Socreds in province-wide popularity with 21 per cent.

The NDP even gained marginally by increasing their share of the vote by .2 per cent to 6.7 per cent from 6.5 per cent, although they have a long way to go before they make an impact in this province.

While the Socreds lost four seats and dropped 5.9 per cent to 17.4 per cent in overall vote figures, they too had cause for joy.

Their leader, Real Caouette, and their tight-lipped but generally loyal members again proved the pundits and the Liberals wrong. The reports of the party's imminent death once more seem to have been premature.

REAL CAOUETTE
loyal members . . .

Perhaps the most positive aspect of the federal election for Quebecois federalists however is not what happened here but what occurred elsewhere across the country.

As Senator Cote remarked, the idea that the rest of Canada is anti-French was shown not to be true for the majority. This can only help the work of all federal parties here.

Hard to judge is the result of the Parti Quebecois campaign urging people in this province to spoil their ballots or abstain from voting.

But Monday's vote was not noticeably lighter than that in 1972, and the PQ provincial strongholds in east-end Montreal returned Liberal candidates. During the campaign all parties reported PQ members working for them.

As one Liberal MP, Jacques Guilbault (Montreal—St. Jacques) said:

"A lot of Pequistes must have voted for me. The PQ is strong in my riding and I was elected with as great a majority as usual. The position of the PQ leadership has been weakened, that's for sure."

Treasury Board President Bud Drury noted that his campaign had been run within the financial guidelines of the new electoral law which comes into effect in August and said, "I think this shows an intensive, heavy advertising campaign does not necessarily change things."

He also felt that the expected English-Quebec back-lash against provincial language legislation had not materialized because of the Liberal party's federal position in favor of freedom of choice.

Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier, a former journalist, criticized the nation's press for missing the trends that brought about the results of the election.

And Real Caouette crowed with delight.

"Social Credit," he told a French-language television audience, "is solid."

As one senior Liberal party organizer said, "we really have to look at those Creditistes a little more closely."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Teacher Negotiations

Trustee Walter Donald recently made a statement that the Education Minister's white paper eroded local autonomy and called for greater centralization of educational services. Trustee Donald deplored this move and said that the B.C. School Trustees Association would indeed be presenting its own white paper to the Minister early in the fall.

I find this a strange contradiction in terms. The Greater Victoria School Board has, along with 69 other School Boards in B.C., assigned all its bargaining rights over to the B.C. S.T.A. This school board will not meet with representatives of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association to discuss an agreement. Surely the trustees have eroded their own autonomy and abrogated their local responsibility by their latest move?

Salary policies, working conditions, learning conditions, and educational services are all inextricably linked and therefore any process dealing with any one part would have to take into consideration and allow for the effects on other parts.

The GBTA acknowledges the difficulties and unpleasantness which often arise from negotiations but to enlarge the bargaining unit so that individual trustees may be spared from these is not acceptable.

Surely the local autonomy which Trustee Donald appears to desire includes sitting down with teachers to determine their needs as well as the educational community needs? —(Ms) Mavis De Girolamo, President, GVTA.

Dreams

I wonder how many people, including Mayor Peter Pollen and city council, remember in 1972 when I tried so hard to obtain a permit or licence for a group of students to sell their crafts somewhere in the city.

We were not allowed in Bastion Square because the merchants were afraid we would hurt their business and any other locations were turned down (including Centennial Square) because, as city council said, they didn't want to start a precedent.

These students didn't want to make a million, but a bit of spending money. But more important, it was a plan to give them something to do during their holidays. I see now they have issued a permit for an ice cream cart, also a permit for a gentleman to sell anywhere on city streets, and lastly Centennial Square is to be a craftsman's centre.

I am pleased to see Mayor Pollen and his council have overcome their antiquated ideas but I wonder how the students I tried to help will feel when they see people doing what they were not allowed to do. I know I feel sad and bitter that I let these young people down even though I tried from February to June to find a place for them.

As Martin Luther King once said "I had a dream" but like most dreams it didn't come true.—Doris L. Bernard, 3135 Jackson St.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 9, 1914

In his Sunday evening sermon at the First Baptish church, Dominion Theatre, Rev. J. B. Warnicker preached on "A Young Man's Conception of the Ideal Young Woman", a very large congregation being present. Mr. Warnicker quoted from poetry and literature to show that women had been at a disadvantage in the world for centuries. In detailing broadly the qualities which men admire in women he cited chiefly inspirational qualities: sincerity, refinement in thought, manners and dress, commonsense, home making instincts, and reverence and piety. Next Sunday evening Mr. Warnicker will give "Seven Reasons Why Marriage is a Failure."

Alberta Gas Welcomed In U.S.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The president of Northwest Pipeline Corp. says a recent decision by Alberta to permit additional natural gas exports is a significant step toward new gas availability in the western United States.

John G. McMillian, president and chairman of the Salt Lake City-based firm, was referring to a decision by Alberta officials approving a permit to export 975 billion cubic feet of gas during a six-year period beginning Nov. 1.

The export of the gas will be made available to Northwest Pipeline for use in the Pacific Northwest; to El Paso Natural Gas Co., a major supplies in the Southwest; and Southern California Gas Co.

The export plan is now subject to approval by Canada's National Energy Board.

GM Resumes Motor Home Production

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — General Motors resumed limited production Monday of its motor home facility, closed down since March because of a slump in sales.

Alex Mair, GM vice president and GMC general manager, said output will initially consist of special-purpose chassis and body units ready for commercial, medical and educational interior installations.

At the height of the motor home sales boom last summer, the division was turning out 22 units a day with about 450 employees.

About 50 hourly employees are now working at the motor home facility and another 200 are expected to be added when motor home production resumes in August, Mair said.

Brazil Signs Alberta Coal Pact

EDMONTON (CP) — A letter of intent has been signed which should pave the way for Alberta coal sales to Brazil, says Dr. Norbert Berkowitz, member of a seven-member trade mission to the South American conutry.

The letter, which is subject to negotiation on quality and price, involves a minmum purchase of 300,000 tons of coking coal next year, said Dr. Berkowitz, head of fuel sciences at the research council of Alberta.

This minimum shipment would increase to slightly in excess of a million tons annually by 1980 and could go as high as four million tons, he added.

The tentative agreement also enables Alberta to buy iron ore or iron ore concentrate from Brazil.

"There is no commitment for Alberta to buy iron ore from Brazil, but there is no doubt that if we want to establish a domestic steel industry, Brazil will make it available."

The trade mission, composed of officials from the provincial industry and commerce department and the research council, was in Brazil the last two weeks of June. Also discussed was the possibility of joint ventures between Canadian and Brazilian companies to develop Brazil's phosphate rock reserves.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A walk home from a party ended in provincial court Monday for 17-year-old Wayne Philip Storry, 2863 Rockwell.

The youth pleaded guilty to three charges of theft and will be sentenced July 26.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said Storry entered a car about 1:30 a.m. June 22 on Bay and stole a transistor radio worth $65, then another on Avebury about 2:05 a.m. and stole a tape deck and nine tapes valued at $197. About half an hour later, he got into a car on Forbes and took seven tapes valued at $64.

Two Windsor youths were each fined $25 after they pleaded guilty to obtaining food by fraud from the Poodle Dog Cafe, 1241 Government, on July 7.

Macdonald told court Mark Bezaire, 17, and James Joseph Cloutier, 18, were seen by police walking hurriedly from the restaurant.

Police questioned them and found they had meals worth a total of $2.95, but had left the restaurant without paying.

Two men found fighting in an alley in the 500-block of Johnson July 6 were in the prisoner's box together and fined $25 each for causing a disturbance.

Janislaw Kazimierz Walczak, 30, of 3270 Shelly, and Richard Andrew Higgins, 17, of 3144 Harriet, pleaded guilty.

Macdonald said the fight was over an unpaid debt.

Theodore Edward Stephens, 34, of 494 Superior, received a three-month term from Judge Edmond St. Jorre for theft.

Stephens, who pleaded guilty, left Victoria Souvenirs and Gifts Galore Ltd., 1013 Government, with a totem pole worth $39.95 April 12 without paying for it.

A suspended sentence and six months' probation were given to Karen Vaino, 20, of 1940 Fort, for shoplifting a make-up compact from Shoppers Drug Mart, 1955 Fort. She pleaded guilty.

Walking barefoot into K-Mart, 3986 Shelbourne, and walking out wearing a pair of running shoes resulted in Barbara Martin, 22, of 1106 Balmoral, being fined $200 after she pleaded guilty to theft.

The running shoes were worth $5.27.

Police found Jarvis hiding in a booth after they noticed an open window.

Jarvis received a suspended sentence and was put on probation for six months.

Five persons were fined $75 each for possession of marijuana: William Sean O'Regan, 18, of Ottawa; Ian Leslie Druker, 23, of no fixed address; Donald Joseph Muise, 29, of 45 Boyd; Patrick Keith Garry 20, of 3977 Panther, and Raymond Ernest Wright, 19, of 3149 Millgrove.

William John Lytle, 51, of 50 Douglas, was fined $350, and had his licence suspended for impaired driving, and $250 for failing to provide a sample of his breath; Marc Arthur Presseau, 18, of 3285 Anchorage, was fined $250 for driving with a blood-alcohol level of more than .08 per cent; Robert Lewis Noble, 32, of 93 Cambridge, was fined $350 for being in the care and control of a motor vehicle while impaired.

John Douglas Caley, of 4077 Holland, was fined $285 for driving with more than .08 per cent alcohol; Stewart Riach, 46, of 616 Moss, was fined $300 and banned from driving for 40 days for impaired driving, and Garth Duke Drover, 37, of 1617 McHattie, was placed on probation and banned from driving for 18 months for impaired driving and failing to provide a breath sample.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Province Monday increased its home delivery rates, effective July 15, to $3.50 a month from $3.

The morning newspaper will cost $4 a month at points in the British Columbia interior where it now costs $3.50. The paper cited soaring costs in all areas of newspaper production as the cause of the price increase.

The other daily newspaper in the city — The Vancouver Sun — increased its price to $3.50 from $3 on July 1.

QFLer Accused In Extortion

MONTREAL (CP) — An official of the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) was charged in court Monday with extorting almost $47 million from the Construction Industry Commission (CIS) June 14 by forcing the commission to issue some 128,000 holiday pay cheques ahead of schedule.

Jean Claude Sureau, 32, southern Montreal regional co-ordinator of the QFL's Provincial Building Trades Council, pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned under a preferred indictment before Justice Jacques Ducros of Court of Queen's Bench.

The preferred indictment sends the St. Basile le Grand resident directly to trial at the fall assizes without benefit of a preliminary hearing.

to post a $500 bond and to refrain from contacting three alleged victims of the extortion, including CIC general manager Jean Louis Renaud.

The indictment, signed by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, charges Sureau used violence to force Renaud, Jean-Pierre Pouliot and Pierre Gaudreault to issue $46,834,284.99 in vacation pay.

Under the government decree regulating the construction industry, the cheques should have been issued at the beginning of July to be cashed July 10.

Pub Sought For Fernwood

Fernwood Community Association president Ron Spence will start canvassing Fernwood area residents this week to seek their support for a neighborhood pub.

Spence, a teacher, plans to install the pub in the old Weston Bakeries building at Gladstone and Fernwood, which he intends to buy for $165,000.

Creation of the pub will be a joint venture with a group of people who work in the area and Fernwood residents, who will help finance renovations, Spence said today.

Tentative name of the establishment is The Spring, named after the old name of the area, Springridge.

Spence must canvass a six-block radius of the proposed pub to get community reaction, apply for city council's permission, then get approval from the Liquor Administration Board.

He hopes to complete purchase of the building from Block Brothers by September and open the pub later in the fall.

A main aim of buying the building is to stimulate interest in the Fernwood area by businessmen, Spence said.

The Native Indian Friendship Centre and provincial human resources office would continue to use the building, he said.

Eighth Prosecutor Joins Staff

A Prairie criminal lawyer has joined the ranks of the Greater Victoria prosecutor's office.

Clarence Vause, 46, formerly of Swift Current, started this week and becomes the seventh prosecutor on staff.

His appointment comes on the heels of the provincial government's takeover of the prosecutor's office earlier this year. Eight prosecutors are planned for Victoria.

Vause, a former navy man who served part of his service time here, is a graduate of Dalhousie (Halifax) in 1959. He articled in Regina and was a magistrate in Swift Current for three-and-a-half years in the mid-60s.

He practised law briefly in Kamloops but returned to Swift Current in 1967 and bought into a firm.

Married, he and his wife Elizabeth have three children, Sylvia, 20, Frederick, 19, and Ronald, 16.

BUSINESS REGISTRATIONS IN B.C. UP

Premier Dave Barrett released figures Monday showing there were 5,544 new businesses incorporated in British Columbiain the first six months of this year, compared with 4,702 for the same period in 1972 under the Social Credit administration.

"Businesses in British Columbia are prospering under our (NDP) government," Barrett said in a news release, "and the increasing number of incorporations show that the people of our province have confidence in the bright future of this area."

The figure also showed that there were 5,238 business incorporations in the first six months of 1973.

Study Session Shuts Brewery

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A study session by brewery workers shut down the Uncle Ben's brewery here Monday.

Owner Ben Ginter was advised of the shutdown as he protested a British Columbia Liquor Board embargo on bottled beer deliveries to hotels because of a shortage caused by labor disputes in other breweries.

Ginter has sent a letter to Attorney-General Alex MacDonald charging discrimination against his products.

The embargo was ordered by the board despite the fact that his Prince George warehouse is full and the company has more than 200,000 dozen bottles available for sale, he claims.

A liquor board spokesman said the ban on hotel deliveries would be eased today, when 40 per cent of quotas will be distributed.

Ginter said he was informed that the brewery workers in Prince George stopped work to enforce a demand by members of the International Brewery Workers Union that the filler man at the brewery be replaced after five years in the job.

B.C. Firemen Vow Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Firemen in four lower Mainland communities said Monday they will walk off the job Thursday unless the provincial government appoints an industrial inquiry commissioner to examine their contract dispute.

The 300 firemen served 72-hour strike notice Monday on Delta, Richmond, Coquitlam and North Vancouver.

The members of the International Association of Firefighters have been without a contract since Jan. 1. They have been bargaining with the Greater Vancouver Regional District for parity with Vancouver firemen.

Current rates and proposed rates were unavailable.

Jack Lasko, union spokesman, said the major problem is the union's opposition to a GVRD proposal of an 11-year service minimum to qualify for an extra two per cent wage increase.

He said that because the municipalities are relatively new, many of the firemen don't have 11 years of service.

Citizen Fails to Publish; First Time Since 1957

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Citizen did not publish Monday because of a labor dispute with its printers. It was the first time the newspaper, with a circulation of 18,000, failed to appear since it became a daily in 1957.

A company spokesman said the printers, members of the International Typographical Union, Local 868, came to work at the usual time of 7:30 a.m., but walked out for a study session.

Although the company served 72-hour lockout notice on the printers Wednesday, it has not yet been executed. The notice expired Saturday.

"The company is trying to indicate to the readers that we're making an attempt to publish," the spokesman said. The workers reported for work this morning.

Negotiations between the union and the company broke down over wages. The company offered an increase of $1 an hour in a one-year contract and the union demanded $1.20. Current base rate is $5.96.

MUNCHO LAKE (CP) — Two Fort Nelson residents are dead following a single-car accident on the Alaska Highway, 160 miles north of Fort Nelson.

Reginald Lonberg, 21, and Max Morgan Jr., 8, died when Lonberg apparently lost control of his car and it shot over an embankment into the lake.

TOPLEY (CP) — Debra May Jeffrey, 16, of Burns Lake, was killed in a one-car accident near here Sunday. The accident was not discovered for some time.

PENTICTON (CP) — Negotiators for four interior school districts and the Canadian Union of Public Employees were reported to be far apart after their first negotiating session under mediator Charles Stewart of Vancouver.

While neither side would disclose details of the contract talks, Norm Hyssop, secretary of the Penticton School District said the CUPE demands "are very heavy and the school boards are not in a position to handle them."

A second meeting under Stewart was to be set for about 2½ weeks from now.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau reports that waterborne lumber shipments from B.C. ports declined in May to 92.6 million board feet, compared with 160.2 million board feet in the same month last year. Total shipments during the first five months of this year were 922.6 million board feet, compared with 975.2 million board feet for the same period last year.

CASTLEGAR (CP) — An institute for Doukhobor studies is to be established at Selkirk College here, and a university credit course on the history and culture of the sect will be developed. Dr. Mark Mealing, an executive member of the Kootenay Doukhobor Historical Society, will co-ordinate the institute.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Normal indutrial and educational programs at the B.C. Penitentiary have been suspended while 50 guards undergo a two-week training session that began Monday. Herb Reynett, deputy regional director of security for the Canadian Penitentiary Service, said the program was instituted because high staff turnover had resulted in many new staff members not having the normal eight-week induction course.

CACHE CREEK (CP) — Hotel manager James Kiley and car salesman David Hall were elected to the village council here in an aldermanic byelection. They will take the places of Charles Roberts and Larry Reaugh, who resigned in May in protest against the Public Officials Disclosure Act.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT

Pursuant to Section 766AA of the Municipal Act, the following text of By-law No. 179, "Deposit of Soil, Prohibition By-law No. 1, 1974", is hereby published.

A BY-LAW TO REGULATE THE DEPOSITING OF SOIL ON ANY LANDS WITHIN THE ELECTORAL AREAS OF COLWOOD, LANGFORD, METCHOSIN, VIEW ROYAL AND SOOKE, TO REQUIRE THE HOLDING OF A PERMIT FOR SUCH PURPOSE AND TO FIX THE FEE FOR SUCH PERMIT.

WHEREAS the Regional Board of the Capital Regional District has been empowered to undertake the function of regulation of the deposit and removal of soil in the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford, Metchosin, View Royal and Sooke, under the provisions of subsection (4a) of Section 766 of the Municipal Act;

THEREFORE the Board of the Capital Regional District in open meeting assembled enacts as follows:

1. Definitions:
   "ENGINEER" means the Director of Engineering from time to time of the Capital Regional District or his appointed representative.
   "CLEAN FILL" means soil free from refuse, rubble, and any undecomposed organic matter.
   "LITTER" means any rubbish, derelict vehicle, garbage or waste materials, including containers, packages, bottles, cans or parts thereof; or any abandoned or discarded article, product, or goods of manufacture; but not including wastes of the primary processes of farming.
   "PERMIT" means a permit for soil deposit issued pursuant to this By-law.
   "SOIL" means soil, sand, gravel, rock or other materials which can be used to alter the contours of land.
   "VEHICLE" has the meaning ascribed to it in the Motor Vehicle Act and includes any part of a vehicle.
2. (1) Subject to subsection (2) of this section, no person shall deposit, cause or permit to be deposited any soil upon any lands within the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford, Metchosin, View Royal and Sooke without being the holder of a valid and subsisting permit therefor;
   (2) This By-law shall not apply to any person depositing soil for the purpose of backfilling or landscaping during or after the construction of a structure in respect of which a building permit was duly issued.
3. Every permit shall expire after the expiration of 12 (twelve) months from the date of its issue.
4. An application for a permit shall be accompanied by a fee of $10 (ten dollars) for each acre or part thereof of lands on which the applicant proposes to deposit soil, shall be made by the owner of the lands at the Capital Regional District Offices on the form attached hereto and shall have attached a plan in sufficient detail to indicate clearly the location of the proposed deposit and the final grades when the proposed operation is completed.
5. All permits for deposit of soil pursuant to this By-law shall be issued by the Engineer in the form attached hereto.
6. (1) Subject to subsection (2) of this section, no person shall deposit soil on any lands within the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford, Metchosin, View Royal and Sooke if:
      (a) Such deposit would in any way endanger surrounding or neighbouring lands or the support thereof;
      (b) Such deposit could make impracticable the future subdivision or development of the lands or surrounding lands;
      the flow of any stream, creek, waterway,
      (c) Such deposit would foul, obstruct or impede watercourse, ditch, drain or sewer in the said Electoral Areas whether or not the same are situated on private property.
   (2) Notwithstanding subsection (1) of this section, a permit may be issued if precautions can be taken which will prevent the results referred to in clauses (a), (b), and (c) of subsection (1) as a result of the deposit of the soil which is the subject of the application and provided the applicant agrees to take such precautions.
7. Prior to the issuance of a permit under this By-law the applicant shall:
   (a) Agree in writing to deposit the soil in such quantities, in such manner and within the time specified in the permit;
   (b) Deposit a performance bond of a surety company authorized to carry on business in the Province of British Columbia, certified cheque payable to the Capital Regional District or an irrevocable letter of credit in the amount of $1,000.00 (One Thousand Dollars) for each acre of the property upon which soil is to be deposited to ensure that the terms of such agreement are fully carried out. The bond, certified cheque, or irrevocable letter of credit will be returned upon the Engineer certifying in writing that the terms of the agreement have been satisfactorily completed. If the terms of the agreement have not been carried out to the satisfaction of the Engineer within the time specified, he may enforce the bond or use the proceeds of that certified cheque or irrevocable letter of credit to complete the works authorized by the permit in accordance with the terms of the agreement.
8. All soil deposited must be clean fill, systematically deposited and graded.
9. Access to any area on which soil is being deposited must be controlled at all times by a gate or other suitable device to prevent unauthorized dumping.
10. If, at any stage of a soil deposit operation, it appears that further work authorized by the permit is likely to endanger any public property, streets, easements or lanes, or is likely to create conditions which would endanger the health or safety of persons or property, the permit may be revoked or the Permittee may be required, as a condition to the continuance of the work, to take adequate precautions to prevent such danger.
11. The applicant shall repair any damage to property and shall comply with all relevant By-laws of the Capital Regional District.
12. No person shall deposit, cause or permit to be deposited litter upon any lands within the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford, Metchosin, View Royal or Sooke, except in the manner provided in Section 4 of the Litter Act.
13. (a) Every person, who, without lawful excuse, contravenes this By-law by wilfully doing any action which it forbids or omitting to do any act which it requires to be done, is guilty of an offence and is liable on summary conviction, to a fine of not more than $500.00 or to a term of imprisonment not exceeding 6 (six) months, or both. A separate offence shall be deemed to be committed upon each day during and in which the contravention occurs or continues.
   (b) The penalties imposed under this section shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any other penalty or remedy imposed by this By-law.

A copy of the complete by-law may be viewed during normal working hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, holidays excepted, at the office of the Capital Regional District, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C.

Dennis A. Young,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Busing Policy Unfair—Parent

A Cowichan school board decision eliminating bus service for Malahat area high school students in September is "unfair and dictatorial," says a parent whose child is affected.

"The school board in this district has made a decision which seems discriminatory to students on the Malahat who attend school at George Bonner Junior Secondary School," said Mrs. Ethel Juriloff of Shawnigan Lake Rd.

The board will still run a bus each morning next fall to pick up Malahat area elementary students.

This September, for the first time, George Bonner students will be unable to catch this bus because the overcrowded school has scheduled a shift system. Half the school must start class at 7:30 a.m., the other half at 12:30 p.m.

Cowichan Senior Secondary School will be on an extended day so students there also will start classes too early to ride the regular bus.

Small numbers of students involved make it uneconomic to run an earlier bus for the high school students, said district bus superintendent Ernest Cardiff.

"I can sympathize with these people," Cardiff said. "Some people will suffer a little."

Under the new system, the junior high school students from the Malahat area will have to "find their own way" to the Mill Bay bus stop to catch a school bus, said Mrs. Juriloff.

Parents will have to drive their children the six to eight miles over the Malahat, she said. Most families involved have only one car and in two cases, husbands work in Victoria and take the car with them, she added.

Mrs. Juriloff said as many as 12 families in the Malahat area are affected, plus other families in Bamberton.

"What worries me most is the state of the Malahat at that time of the morning," she said. The road is often foggy around 7 a.m. and students would be safer riding in a school bus, she added.

Cardiff said education department policy on busing is that either a school bus is provided or parents are paid a daily transportation rate, whichever is cheaper.

In this case, he said, paying parents the transportation allowance works out to be much cheaper.

Put Selfish Prejudices Aside: UN

CARACAS (CP) — Maurice Strong of Canada, head of the United Nations environment program, urged countries participating in the UN law of the sea conference to put selfish prejudices aside and work to preserve the quality of the marine environment.

The native of Oak Lake, Man., spoke Monday as the conference renewed its work on drafting a global treaty for use of the oceans following a three-day weekend to observe Venezuela's anniversary celebrations.

Meanwhile, African states added their weight to Arab demands that liberation movements be seated at the meeting, an issue which threatens to split the countries attending.

Nouredinne Djoudi of Algeria, the Organization of African Unity's (OAU) assistant secretary-general, announced that the OAU would demand the presence of liberation movements from Africa and elsewhere.

Israel's chief delegate, Amiel Najar, has warned that his country opposes the presence of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) and other groups and is prepared to initiate a major debate on the issue.

"What is needed is a comprehensive oceans management systems," Strong told the conference. "Use of the oceans must not leave them unusable."

Strong proposed 16 areas of international agreement that should be ratified immediately to prevent depletion of marine resources before other issues are resolved. While carefully avoiding such questions as the proposed 200-mile economic zone, Strong's suggestions are generally in agreement with Canada's position.

Canada has previously proposed that coastal states should have the right to protect their coastal waters from pollution and overfishing, even in the absence of adequate international laws.

GOV'T DENIES FRUIT TREE SPRAY CLAIM

Reports that certain herbicides used on B.C. fruit trees can have harmful effects on humans "are false," say officials of the provincial agriculture department.

A statement, issued after consultation with the health services department, came in response to a threatened boycott and picket of stores selling B.C. apples and pears unless the agriculture department agreed to halt further use of the herbicides.

Leader of the mainland SPEC protest, Mariam Doucette, said the effects of the herbicides are cumulative, dangerous to pregnant women and can lead to malformation of babies.

According to the agriculture department, however, United States protection agency hearings into the possible hazards of TCDD in commercial herbicides were recently dissolved because no scientific evidence of hazards was found.

"If there was the slightest suspicion of hazard from the use of 2, 4, 5-TP as a stop drop spray, the recommendation (for tree fruit use) would be withdrawn," said the agriculture department statement.

The herbicide, which is used to delay premature dropping of the fruit before harvest, is also used in Ontario and Washington.

Voters Rebuke Tanaka

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese voters, demonstrating keen concern over soaring inflation, have handed the Conservative government of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka a stinging rebuke.

Returns from Sunday's election for the upper house of the Diet, or parliament, indicated today that the governing Liberal Democratic party will wind up with 126 seats, half the total in the 252-member body. The Liberal Democrats had 134 seats in the upper house before the election was called.

But at least some candidates elected as independents are expected to join the Liberal Democrats, giving Tanaka a majority.

Typhoon Gilda prevented election officials from declaring the results final. They said the more than 8,000 persons in the Ise area who were unable to vote due to the floods will cast their ballots next Sunday.

The election was for 130 seats in the largely ornamental upper house, four of them to fill vacancies.

Tanaka acknowledged the inflation issue in a news conference today, saying the results "reflected voter frustration" on this subject.

"The election taught the Liberal Democrats a big lesson," he said. "We'll take the results seriously and will be careful and modest in running the upper house."

Tanaka denied a report that there will be a cabinet shuffle in the near future.

The unofficial results showed the following breakdown:

Liberal Democrats won 62 seats, 64 leftover for a total of 126; Socialists 28, leftover 34, total 62; Komeito 14, leftover 10, total 24; Communists 13, leftover 7, total 20; Democratic Socialists 5, leftover 5, total 10; minor and independent parties 8, leftover 2, total 10.

No Indian Dep't For B.C.—Levi

Human Resources Minister Norm Levi denied Monday the government has any intention of setting up a separate Indian affairs portfolio.

He termed "completely wrong and misleading" statements by B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians president Fred House which imply there is a separate portfolio.

"There is no such department, and neither does the government plan to create such a department," he said.

House said during the weekend that he hoped to meet with Premier David Barrett to reiterate the association's position against an Indian affairs department and to voice its concern that the province is setting up another bureaucracy similar to the federal Indian affairs department.

The Indians want to deal directly with the various ministers concerned with housing, health, welfare and other matters.

Levi said his role has been to co-ordinate Indian matters and to expedite meetings between Indian groups and ministers.

It is not necessary for Indians to go through his office, said Levi, and the Indians, both status and non-status "have had access to ministers in a most direct fashion — accessibility which has never been possible previously, in the history of this province."

Levi said he considers the matter closed.

Mills Request Pay Rate Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia pulp industry wants an industrial inquiry commissioner appointed to investigate the relationship of tradesmen's rates in the forestry and pulp sections of the industry.

Don Lanskail, Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau president, said Monday the industry has been unable to solve the problem and is seeking government intervention.

The unions, United Paperworkers International Union and Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, are unhappy because the traditional differential between their tradesmen and International Woodworkers of America tradesmen has been eliminated.

Mid-contract talks between the industry and the two unions bargaining jointly have failed to achieve anything, the two-year contract expires next summer.

Pulp union mechanics now earn $6.94 an hour compared with the majority of IWA tradesmen who earn $7.28 an hour. Top-rated IWA tradesmen, however, earn $7.50½ an hour. Pulp unions were seeking this rate.

East Fire Smoulders

VERMILION BAY (CP) — A few small fires and slowly rising smoke was all that visibly remained Monday night of a massive forest fire that caused the evacuation of nearly 1,000 people in and around this Northwestern Ontario tourist community.

But officials of the ministry of natural resources moved an additional 200 men into the area for what they hope will be the final attack on the fire which has destroyed about 60,000 acres of bushland.

The new men will beef up fire lines around the still-smouldering fire that is expected to flare up again in some areas today.

Residents of Vermilion Bay were filtering back to their homes late Monday after an evacuation order was lifted earlier in the day when fire officials felt they had the blaze in check.

The town and surrounding tourist camps and private cottages were evacuated during the weekend. All but about 50 of the 550 residents of the town moved to Dryden or Kenora, and most of the hundreds of tourists staying at the camps headed west Monday afternoon.

Favorable weather conditions, back-burning and the effort of 375 men and a fleet of aircraft combined Monday to contain the fire.

Doug Gent: 20 Years At the Same Stand

Doug Gent lives about three blocks from Allenby Park, home of American Little League, and if he isn't at either of those two places, you can probably find him somewhere in between. Any spring and early summer, that is.

So, he's in a rut.

But that has been his summer life pattern since 1961, when American Little League broke away from the protective cover of Jaycee (National League) Park, and went on its own.

For five years before that, only the trip to the park took more time. The interest was the same, and Doug missed little, if any, of the action. The story has been the same for 20 years.

Little League started here in 1953, American League in 1954, and Doug just one year later. And, as all good rookies should, he had his beginning in Farm League.

"I didn't graduate to the majors until 1959," he reminisced this week.

And he's been there ever since. Which is quite a commendable record for sport, and might even qualify him for consideration as Sportsman of the Year when the people who, in their infinite wisdom, bestow such honors. Because, certainly he qualifies to have his name added to the growing list of eligibles; and who else is better suited to be called Mr. Little League (American style)?

Nobody, at the moment, or this week.

1970—A Year to Remember

This is Doug's 20th season as manager, coach, adviser, father confessor — you name it; and it is little changed from some of the others. For listed as coach of this year's AL All-Stars is none other than Doug Gent. If that's a change, the manager's position is in good hands nonetheless. For the name there has a familiar ring. It's Ed Gent, Doug's son, now in his father's footsteps and his ninth executive season. Simply, its a family affair.

Meanwhile, there's absolutely no doubt in Doug's mind as to which was his best-ever team. "That was my Cablevision club in 1970," he said. "We had six 12-year-olds, all were named to the all-star team, we won the league in a walk, our record was something like 18 and two, and we lost our last two games when I played all our eight and nine-year-olds."

That was the season, too, that the AL All-Stars were the power in town, won the District and Island championships, only to lose out at Prince George in the B.C. final. Some of the luminaries were Doug Adlem, Charles Fisher, Wayne Grimshaw, Mike Miller, Dave Richmond, among others. And in case it's slipped your memory test, in the Island final against Nanaimo, Charlie Fisher tossed a one-hit shutout in the opener, won 3-0; Alan Drewry lost the second 3-2 and Fisher came right back with a three-hitter in the decider as Victoria won 3-1.

A Two-Day Pitching Duel

However, that wasn't the classic event of 1970. No way! For in the District playoff at Hampton, Triangle and American put on a dilly. Ed Gent will never forget it. With Tim Woodruff pitching for Triangle, Drewry for American, the game was called Saturday night with the score tied at 0-0, at the end of eight. Not only a scoreless duel, but Woodruff was still working on a no-hitter. The next day, Woodruff went his allotted one more inning and was still pure when he was replaced by Terry Haukaas. Meanwhile, Fisher got the nod for American. But he didn't last one inning even and was replaced by Adlam. The duel continued.

Finally, the spell was broken in the 12th. Dan Hemingway singled. Mike Miller sacrificed him to second. Hemingway advanced to third on a passed ball, and then scored the only run in two days when Larry Dalziel, pinch-hitting for Derry Donaldson, who had one strike on him when he was lifted, lashed a drive that was barely inches shy of being a home run.

Game over, 1-0 American!

Sure, there have been other notable games through the Gent years, just as there will likely be others here in the next few weeks here at the District and provincial playdowns.

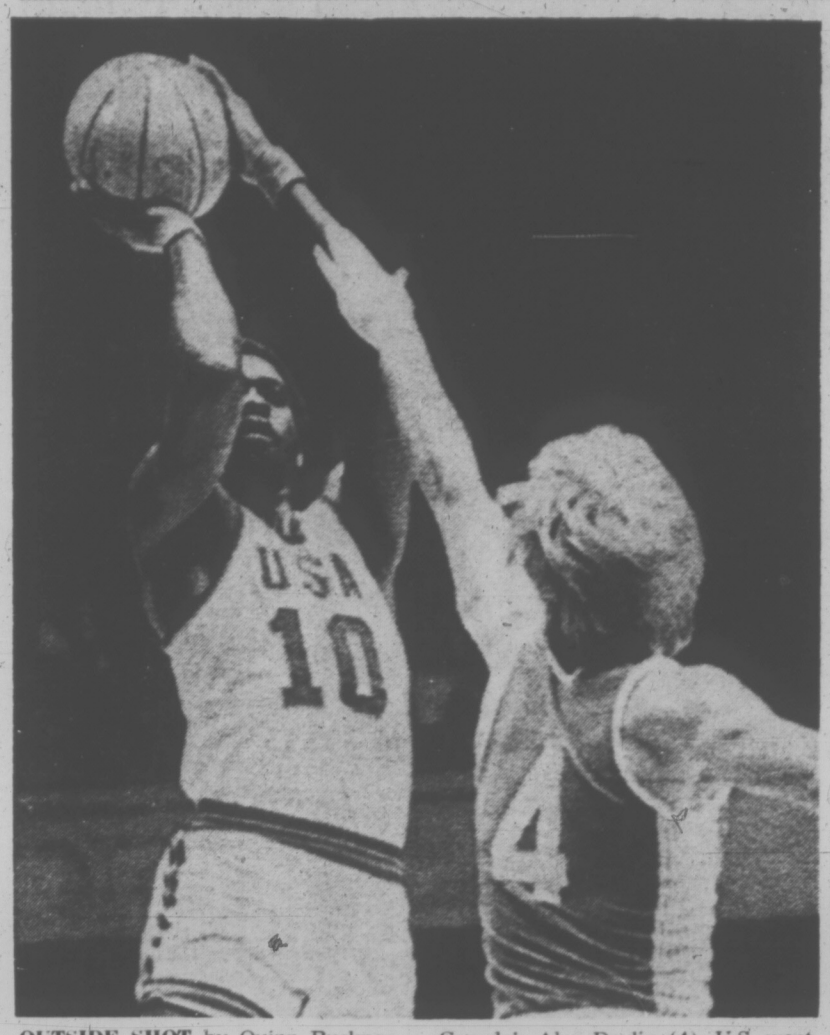
But really, don't bet against this being Gent's last time around, as he has suggested.

Now retired, Doug says: "My arthritis in my hands and my elbows is getting to me: I can't show the kids as much as I used to, or as much as I would like to, which is one reason that two years ago, I started to turn things over to Ed.

"So, maybe I'll work in the garden."

That's only if he's got time, however, for he did admit: "Oh, I guess through the season, I'm at the park about six days a week."

Did someone say "seven"?



OUTSIDE SHOT by Quinn Buckner (10) provided United States with two points despite checking attempt of Canada's Alex Devlin (4). U.S. went on to post 115-95 victory in world basketball championship play.

Rookie's Debut Wrecks Perry's Bid for Record

By The Associated Press

"It's all over," said Gaylord Perry following Monday night's 4-3 10-inning loss to Oakland A's. The Cleveland Indians' right-hander had come within two outs of tying the American League record of 16 consecutive pitching victories.

Elsewhere, Baltimore Orioles nipped California Angels 6-5, Kansas City Royals blanked Boston Red Sox 5-0, Minnesota Twins downed Detroit Tigers 6-2, Milwaukee Brewers edged Chicago White Sox 6-5 in 12 innings and New York Yankees trounced Texas Rangers 12-5.

In the National, Andy Messersmith three-hit Philadelphia Phillies and pitched Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-0 victory, a result that boosted his won-lost record to 9-2. San Francisco Giants scored in the top of the 10th to shade Montreal Expos 5-4; Atlanta Braves blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0; New York Mets edged San Diego Padres 2-1, and Houston Astros dumped St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Messersmith's victory was the first complete game turned in by a Dodger pitcher since June 16, when Andy also went the distance.

Perry blew a 3-2 lead with one out in the ninth inning when Joe Rudi tripled and Gene Tenace, who tagged him for a two-run homer in the second inning, delivered the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Perry allowed six hits, struck out 13 and walked only two, but one of them was to pinch hitter Pat Bourque, leading off the 10th. Pinch runner John (Blue Moon) Odom got around to third on a sacrifice and an infield out and designated hitter Claudell Washington, 19, starting his first major league game, drilled a Perry slider through the left side of the Cleveland infield for a single and the winning run.

On his previous time at bat, Washington laced a fork ball for a triple, his first major league hit.

"I knew it was all over when I saw the ball go through," Perry said. "I'd rather have no strikeouts and win."

It was Perry's second loss of the season and his first since opening day.

Vida Blue outduelled Perry by firing a four-hitter, although a two-run homer by Cleveland catcher Dave Duncan in the seventh inning lifted the Indians into a 3-2 lead and gave Perry a shot at matching the 16-win record set by Walter Johnson and Smoky Joe Wood in 1912 and equalled by Lefty Grove in 1931 and Schoolboy Rowe in 1934.

Baltimore scored five first-inning runs and used Wayne Garland's 4 1-3 innings of hitless relief to send the skidding Angels to their ninth consecutive defeat and eighth under manager Dick Williams.

Four of the five Baltimore runs in the first were unearned as a result of an error by first baseman John Doherty.

Steve Busby shut out slumping Boston on three hits and Tony Solaita hit a three-run double. Busby, who pitched a no-hitter against Milwaukee last month, retired the first 11 batters.

Eric Soderholm's two-run homer highlighted Minnesota's four-run second inning against Woodie Fryman while Bert Blyleven checked the Tigers on seven hits.

Mike Hegan's two-run pinch homer in the 12th inning off reliever Stan Bahnsen lifted the Brewers to victory over the White Sox.

Chris Chambliss ripped a three-run double, Bobby Murcer drove in three more with a homer and an infield out and Dick Woodson pitched 5 2-3 shutout innings of relief for New York.

The Yankees pounded 19 hits off Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., and three relievers, including four doubles by light-hitting Jim Mason which tied a major league record.

Canadians Clipped

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Tom Bosnell solved a troublesome zone defence in the second half and led the United States to a 115-95 victory over Canada in the world basketball championships Monday night.

Bosnell scored seven second-half field goals and helped the Americans repair a first-half lead that dwindled in the first few minutes after intermission.

The U.S. held a 55-37 lead at the half, but Canada cut it to 12 points in the next four minutes of play.

Bosnell finished with 20 points. John Lucas led the Americans with 24 points.

Forward Phil Tollestrup scored eight of Canada's first nine points. He finished with 16 points and team-mate Ken McKenzie had 19.

COMBOS RALLY FOR VICTORY

Esquimalt Combos rallied for eight runs in the fourth inning to erase a 4-1 deficit en route to a 10-7 victory over MacDonald's Furniture in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game Monday at Royal Athletic Park.

In other games, CAV Electronics downed Seaboard Construction 10-8 at Royal Athletic and Hygrade Radio topped Ingraham Hotel 15-9 at Hyacinth Park.

Darlene Marshall picked up the victory for Combos striking out six batters, issuing only one walk and scattering nine hits. Marilyn Sluggett had three hits in four trips to lead the Combo batting parade while Sue Beisher added a triple.

Debbie Derkson recorded the pitching victory for CAV when Seaboards ran out of steam after scoring six runs in the top of the seventh inning.

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Legion has won the right to represent British Columbia in the Canadian junior women's softball championships at Burlington, Ont., next month.

Legion toppled Victoria's Stocker North Americans 6-2 for their fourth straight victory in the elimination tournament at South Memorial Park.

Legion's Debbie Ross was named the tournament's top pitcher while teammate Lynn Plum, who drove in 10 runs with eight hits, was selected outstanding player.

OPTIMISTS IN FINAL

Saanich Evening optimists, the defending Tournament champions, advanced to the final through the losers' bracket by defeating Esquimalt-Victoria 14-6 in the 13-year-old Babe Ruth baseball tournament Monday at bullen Park.

Optimists face cosmopolitan of Gordon Head tonight at 6.

Cosmos can take the title with a victory but, if Optimists win, another game will have to be scheduled Wednesday night.

Home Runs Help Sink All-Stars

Al's Home Service battered the Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars with eight hits Monday night on the way to a 13-3 victory at Lambrick Park.

Jerry Lister smacked his second home run of the season for Al's and Roy Moretti hit a three-run homer in the third inning for the All-Stars.

The win moved the basement-dwelling Al's to within half a game of third place in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League.

Alomar a Yankee

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — New York Yankees purchased veteran infielder Sandy Alomar from California Angels Monday in a straight cash deal between the two American League baseball clubs.

Burnside Duo Places Second

NEW WESTMINSTER — Jessie Kinneard and Flora Martin of Victoria's Burnside Club lost only one game on the weekend but that cost them the title in the B.C. women's pairs lawn bowling championships here.

The Victoria pair finished runner-up with a 4-1 win-loss record after losing to Dorothy Foreman and Lucie Howse of the Terminal Bowling Green in Vancouver, who finished first with a 5-0 record.

Labatts Plagued By Two-Out Blues

Labatts ran into "two-out" problems Monday and wound up with their 17th consecutive loss in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Second-place Century Inn scored all four of its runs in three different innings, and each time after there were two out.

Barney Spaven led Century by driving in three runs with two hits off loser Joe Mathieson. Bob Custance also had two singles for the winners in the game at Central Park.

Realty Win Led By Terry Gibbard

Terry Gibbard scored two goals and assisted on two others Monday night to lead Saanich Charman Pacific Realty to a 9-6 victory over Victoria Island Pacific Oilers in a Vancouver Island Intermediate "A" Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena. Tej Labh and Cleve Dheenshaw each had two goals and one assist for Victoria.

Irish Captain Shoots For Top Scoring Spot

Victoria Shamrock captain Ivan Thompson will be seeking to wrest the Western Lacrosse Association individual scoring lead away from New Westminster's Wayne Goss Wednesday night.

The Rocks and the Salmonbellies clash at 8 at Memorial Arena in the first WLA action here in three weeks.

At the halfway point of the season, Thompson trails Goss by only three points. The Shamrock captain, who with clubmates Ranjit Dillon and Skip Chapman have just returned from Australia, where they played for Canada in the world field lacrosse championships, has scored 21 goals and added 39 assists for a total of 60 points.

Goss has collected 25 goals and 38 assists for 63 points.

Ron MacNeil of the Shamrocks is in a fifth-place tie with big Al Lewthwaite of New Westminster. Both have 51 points. Dillon is in a 13th-place tie with Ross McDonald of Vancouver Burrards. They have 35 points each.

League Champs Bid For Playoff Crown

Winner of the regular-season championship, Peter Pollen will be shooting for a double this week, aiming at the Victoria Firefighters (16 to 18-year-olds) Babe Ruth Lague playoff title.

The Peter Pollen squad takes on Domoney Shoes tonight at 6:30 in the opening game of the baseball league's semi-final playoffs at Royal Athletic Park. In the other semi-final at 8:30, Victoria Optimists tangle with Evening Optimists.

Tonight's winners meet in a sudden-death final Thursday at 8:30 on the Athletic Park diamond.

Danny Rogers of Victoria Optimists captured the league batting crown with a .455 average.

Nanaimo Team Stays Alive

LAKE COWICHAN — Nanaimo eliminated Comox 9-7 in 10 innings Monday to stay alive in the mid-Island 14 and 15-year-old Babe Ruth baseball championship tournament.

Nanaimo, which drew a bye Saturday, lost its first game 7-2 to Duncan on Sunday. Kim Kaiser hurled a one-hitter to lead the Duncan win.

In other Sunday games, Comox ousted Port Alberni 10-0 and Lake Cowichan defeated Campbell River 11-7.

The double-loss elimination tourney continues tonight with a game at 6:15 between Ladysmith and Campbell River.

Kevin Gets Help

SURREY — Brilliant goalkeeping by Denny McLean and a little more help for scoring ace Kevin Alexander enabled Victoria McDonalds to defeat Surrey Salmonbellies 16-11 here Monday night.

Alexander, the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League's leading scorer, was on form Saturday night but he didn't get much support as McDonalds were crushed 21-10 by league-leading Burnaby Cablevision.

Monday night, Alexander again led the scoring with four goals and three assists to take his total to 101 points in 16 games — but this time he got some help.

Mike Walsh scored four goals for the Bakers, Jeevan Dillon scored three times and Bob Cool got two goals.

Ken King, Bill Marechuk and Leigh Hegan were the other Victoria scorers and Norm Baker picked up eight assists. Al Benson, with three goals, and Rick Boucher and Jack Fulton, with two goals each, were the leading Surrey scorers.

McLean stopped 53 shots and was named the game's first star. Gary McLaughlin made 39 saves for Surrey.

Strike May Hit Charity Game

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The organized charities of Chicago could become the first casualty of the rift between the 26 National Football League club owners and their striking veteran players.

The College All-Star Game, played under the auspices of Chicago Tribune Charities, will be cancelled as of 1 p.m. PDT Wednesday, the sponsor said Monday, unless the warring sides agree "to allow the game to be played without interference."

The cancellation threat followed the refusal of the all-star players to practise unless the NFL Management Council, bargaining unit for the owners, and the NFL Players' Association resume negotiations.

"No negotiations, no practices; no contract, no game," the all-stars said Monday after a 40-minute meeting.

And the executive director of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Luke Carroll, replied: "Unless an arrangement is worked out within 48 hours to allow the game to be played without interference, we shall be forced reluctantly to cancel."

The all-star game, with the reigning Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins scheduled to play the cream of the 1974 rookie crop this year, has been played every year since 1934 with $3.2 million raised and ditributed to charity.

MORE SPORT 11 AND 28

Meanwhile, John Thompson, the executive director of the NFLPA, said he had been asked earlier Monday by the federal mediator to resume talks and was willing to do so.

Pickets set up by the NFL veterans—already going on at training camps for the Dolphins, Dallas Cowboys, Houston Oilers and San Diego Chargers—were to appear today when New York Jets, New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers open their rookie camps.

About Books, Bargains, Regrets and Junior Golf

On hand is a presentation copy of the 1974 Professional Golfers' Association Book of Golf, courtesy of editor Bud Harvey. With it, one regret.

I'm sorry the annual isn't available in Canada. You cannot subscribe to it. You can't buy it on a newstand. You can obtain it only from a U.S. PGA professional.

That's why I'm sorry. For the dollar it costs, it's as good as anything you can buy on the newstands. The final 24 pages are devoted to a complete statistical view of the pro golf scene, and is more detailed than anything you can buy.

The mails also brought in an advance copy of the official program of the 44th annual U.S. women's Trans-National Amateur, and the home folk would be surprised to see the number of times, in 104 pages or less, that Dale Shaw's name and photo pops up.

The Victoria City women's champion was most prominent on the two pages devoted to the 1973 "Orange Blossom" circuit. She finished fourth in the 18th annual Harder Hall's Invitational, seventh in 45th annual South Atlantic (Sally) championship, and made it to the semi-finals in the 43rd annual Doherty Challenge Cup tournament.

This is the week that Dale tries for the PNGA championship and then she'll head for Eugene and the 1974 Trans-National championship July 22-27.

Canadians, incidentally, will be defending both men's and women's titles at the PNGA. Victoria's Dave Mick will defend the men's championship and Vancouver's Marilyn Palmer the women's title.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver again has agreed to conduct five junior clinics on behalf of the B.C. Golf Association.

Stan missed Victoria last summer but makes it this year with his Saturday, Aug. 3, date at Uplands.

There is no charge to juniors attending the session. It's open to both boys and girls and they can expect the usual bundle of Leonardisms that put sparkle into his talks.

Speaking of pros and junior programs, the U.S. PGA is co-sponsoring the "Junior World Championships" at San Diego. Colwood's Sydney Thomson is an entry in the girls' 15-17 division and I'm sorry Victoria junior boys' champion Jim Rutledge hasn't considered entering the July 31-Aug. 2 tournament.

Rutledge, I'm sure, would do extremely well in the 13-14 division.

July 15 is the deadline for "international invitations," in case anyone is interested.

Alarm Clock Problems

JIM RUTLEDGE
. . . in contention

CHILLIWACK — Three players shared the first-round lead in the British Columbia junior golf championships but this morning's interest lay with Kelly Murray's alarm clock.

If the Marine Drive member got to the course on time, and played the same type of golf he exhibited Monday, he may be the player to watch in the 1974 scramble for provincial honors.

Murray was late for his opening tee-off, was penalized two strokes, but didn't let the incident unnerve him Monday. He scored a two-under-par 69, with the penalty, and wound up sharing the lead with Mark Forrest of Beach Grove and Jim Perdhudoss of Castlegar.

Aside from Perhudoss' intrusion, lower mainland golfers dominated the day's scoring honors. Randy Holt of Quilchena and Joe Limoli of Vancouver Club were next in line with one-under 70s.

At even par were Jim Davidson of Vancouver, Brent Townsend of Quilchena and Geff Nesbitt of Seymour.

Victoria junior champion Jim Rutledge of Cedar Hill and Uplands' Dave Amon were Victoria's best first-round performers with 72s. Brad MacLeod of Uplands and Don Gowan of Glen Meadows were at 74 while Mike Stewart of Cedar Hill was another stroke off the pace.

The top 100 scorers and ties after today's second round qualify for Wednesday's third round but only the top 50 make it to Thursday's wrapup round.

Vancouver Club led the team competition with a four-player total of 292, one stroke ahead of Marine Drive. Uplands held third place with a 297 total.

Peck Pockets $2,200 For Eight-Place Drive

Special to the Times

GAINESVILLE, Ga. — David Saville Peck of Victoria took off today for Watkins Glen, N.Y., with $2,200 in his pocket and a new spring under the gas pedal of his $40,000 Costello-Olds Group 7 Can-Am race car.

Peck survived a near-disaster in Sunday's Road Atlanta race for an eighth-place finish, his best in this year's Canadian-American Challenge Cup series. He was ninth two weeks ago at Mosport, Ont., bringing his winnings for the two events to $3,400.

Next stop on the tour is the Watkins Glen, N.Y., Grand Prix, beginning with trials Thursday.

Peck nearly went airborne in the 44-lap Road Atlanta test when his gas pedal spring came loose as he was hitting close to 190 m.p.h. on the straightaway of the 2.52-mile circuit. On top of that, his clutch went and he cornered the rest of the way by switching his ignition off and on.

The win went to Jackie Oliver of Great Britain, his second in a row in the series. He led from the start, beating George Follmer by a half-minute. Both drove UOP Shadows and lapped the field by the halfway point.

Oliver pocketed $15,000, including $10,000 in the main event and $5,000 for a victory in the 27-lap opening heat used to set the starting field for the final. Peck was 14th in the opening heat after qualifying 10th three days earlier.

Only eight cars in the field of 20, including Peck's, survived searing 98-degree temperatures in the final.

In spite of the difficulty cornering, Peck was encouraged by the performance of his car, designed and built in Victoria last winter by the Ennerdale racing team of Peck, mechanic Paul Markgraf and manager Ian Martin.

"It rained Friday," Peck said, "and we were the fastest car on the track that day. We were really pleased with the way it handled and I was praying for rain Sunday."

His prayers went unanswered, of course, but the car came through beautifully in the heat.

Ivy Blunt Takes Title

Ivy Blunt topped Clara Johnson Sunday to win the Gorge Vale Golf Club women's handicap championship. Onie MacMillan carded a net 74 to take medal honors.

Humiliation Completed

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuter) — England completed the humiliation of India today, winning the third and final cricket test by an innings and 78 runs to take the series 3-0.

Having trailed England by 294 on first innings, the Indians were all out for 216 when Mike Hendrick had wicketkeeper Farokh Engineer leg-before-wicket for 33.

DUTCH RECEIVE GREAT WELCOME

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — The Netherlands' defeated World Cup finalist soccer team was welcomed home Monday by thousands of flag-waving and cheering fans at Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport.

Applause broke out and horns were sounded as the aircraft touched down carrying the team which lost 2-1 to West Germany in Sunday's final in Munich.

Team manager Rinus Michels led his playesr down the aircraft steps followed by captain Johan Cruyff. Laurel wreaths decorated with red, white and blue ribbons were placed round both their necks by Dr. J. Verhoeve, director general of recreation of the Dutch ministry of culture.

Later Monday the players were to be received by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands at her palace in The Hague. They will also meet Dutch Prime Minister Joop Den Uyl at his official residence.

BRITISH WIN

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Britain's rugby team scored the biggest upset of its injury-plagued tour, beating Australia 18-11 in the second Test to even the three-match series at 1-1.

Tennis Tourney Hit by Showers

Rain hit the Victoria City tennis championships Monday night and only a handful of games were played.

Top-seeded pairs in both men's and women's doubles got through. Defending-champions Ted Davies and Tony Simnett downed Oak Bay clubmates Glen MacDonald and Jim Hassard 6-2, 6-4 in the men's event and Brenda Cameron of the Racquet Club of Victoria and Wendy Barlow of Oak Bay ousted Jean Shaw and Sue Graham of Glen Meadows 6-3, 6-3.

Third-seeded Marty Taylor and Wendy Cuppage defeated Riley Hern and Vivien Davies of Glen Meadows 7-5, 6-4 in the mixed doubles. Davies and Miss Barlow beat Stewart and Corina Bland 6-1, 6-1 but the biggest surprise was the defeat of veterans John Nichol and Nancy Hill 3-6, 7-5, 6-4 by Oak Bay clubmates Trevor Jones and Jennifer Bland.

THE COLD WAR ON FOOD COSTS

. . . and how to win it!

The secret weapon: CGE's No-Frost refrigerator-freezer. With CGE on your side, you can win the war against soaring food costs. Because, besides having a big 14.9 cubic foot refrigerator, CGE has an extra large capacity freezer. Which means you can take advantage of special buys and seasonal bargains when they happen — up to 131 pounds of them, in fact.

Now just to show you whose side we're on in the new Cold War, the Bay's kept the price of CGE's refrigerator-freezer way down. So if you buy now, it's a smart investment — in more ways than one.

1. Dual cold controls let you adjust freezer and refrigerator temperatures independently.

2. Thinwall design means you get more storage space in the same floor space.

3. Two cantilevered shelves adjust for easy storage.

4. Twin vegetable crispers and meat storage drawer provide perfect temperatures.

No Tory Travels Unprepared

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

An NDP campaign poster "one-quarter-mile too close to a Metchosin polling station for Conservative tastes" prompted an election scrutineer to take politics into her own hands Monday.

Shirley Wilde of 3758 Duke "wouldn't think of travelling unprepared — no Conservative would," so when she saw the Tommy Douglas sign on a NDP supporter's lawn across from the St. Mary's Church poll, she decided to make her "right-wi.ger" position clear.

WILDE
. . . sensitive scrutineer

A political haggle ensued as neighboring NDP supporters took up the cause against the Conservative standpoint.

"But I wanted the NDP sign down," said Mrs. Wilde. "There's supposed to be no campaign literature in the immediate area of a polling station, but the (Canada Election) Act no longer says anything about signs in cars.

"And when they took the sign down, I decided to show them what a good sport a right winger really is, so I moved my car."

Almost overlooked, however, was the Colwood RCMP visit to the site, which assisted, everyone agreed, in nudging politics back on the right track.

Asked about the incident ,a Colwood RCMP spokesman yawned.

"We've had about 50 calls today by people with petty complaints — from the NDP, the Conservatives, then the Liberals — all claiming the other is illegally electioneering."

Returning officer for the Nanaimo-Cowichan and The Islands riding Frank Crane, spent a good majority of election day checking out reports of similar electioneering throughout the riding.

Most interesting incident, he said, was the campaigning practices of one individual charged in Duncan.

The man had few discriminating political views — "he's been taking political signs from every party.

"Seems he wanted the plywood to build a car deck addition to the side of his house."

The mayor of Oak Bay, the immediate ex-mayor of Oak Bay and the acting mayor of Victoria were all, at various times Monday night, crammed with about 50 other people into a small, steamy room on Vancouver Street.

But their presence had nothing whatever to do with municipal matters.

Frances Elford, the ex-mayor, was there as the losing Liberal candidate in the Victoria riding, politely offering congratulations to her election-day victor, Progressive Conservative Allan McKinnon.

And Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith and Victoria's acting mayor, Ald. Alf Hood, were there — in a gathering alternately wall-to-wall smiles as McKinnon's results filtered through and glum as the Tories' national failure became ever more clear — as loyal McKinnon supporters.

But Elford didn't have the galling experience of meeting her federal conqueror while the winner of the municipal battle only eight months previously looked on: Smith departed about 15 minutes before she arrived at McKinnon's headquarters shortly after 9 p.m. to concede.

For McKinnon, the retired army major and former chairman of Greater Victoria school board, the election went through with all the smooth efficiency of an army manoeuvre or a routine board meeting. No fuss, no suspense, only subdued excitement and an outcome that was oh-so-predictable less than half an hour after the polls closed.

Final voting figures returned the Conservative incumbent with 26,690 votes, nearly 12,300 ahead of Elford's 14,460 total. Limping a long way behind, and confounding the pundits who had predicted a strong thrust from the left, came the NDP's Peter James with 7,078.

McKinnon added nearly 2,000 votes to his 1972 federal election majority, while the NDP, which on that occasion ran the Liberals a close third, this time saw its tally slump to only about half the Liberal vote.

Easing briefly out of the hand-shaking, backslapping melee to talk to reporters, McKinnon admitted his own satisfaction was sobered by the disappointing performance of his party across the country.

"The prices and incomes policy was a wonderful policy but it was not a good plank in our platform," he said.

"It was the only way we could approach this problem but apparently it was not viable to the electorate of eastern Canada, Toronto and Quebec turned us down again."

McKinnon insisted the Conservatives knew the price and wage control policy would not be a popular one, but pushed it because they knew it was necessary.

"Unfortunately it was an easy policy to sloganeer against," he added. "The Liberals, and to a lesser degree the NDP, were saying 'Prices are high, let's freeze wages — that's what the Tories want to do.'

"It was a slick slogan and it sold easily."

McKinnon explained his Victoria success by theorizing that the policy was an acceptable one to this riding's many people on fixed incomes.

Elford agreed with McKinnon's theory concerning Victoria's fixed-income voters, adding: "Obviously a lot of these people believe that wage and price controls will solve all their problems, but a lot of others didn't buy that."

The NDP's Peter James denied that his own result reflected any anti-NDP backlash provincially.

"There's one thing I've learned — you can't translate votes federally to votes provincially," he said.

Esquimalt-Saanich PC Beats Liberal by 11,000 Votes

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Conservative Don Munro felt "great" locally, but was "sickened" nationally as he swept to victory in Esquimalt-Saanich while watching his party lose its chance of governing the country.

Conservative supporters jammed into Munro's small cement-floored headquarters on McKenzie, their cheers for the local candidate offset by the beating the Tories took nationally.

A bitter Munro told reporters he felt that what leader Robert Stanfield had to say was stronger than the Canadian people were prepared to take.

"But they're going to have to take it from the Liberals; they'll just ram it down their throats."

Munro said the Canadian people would feel the effects of the Liberal victory by the end of the year, but said he intended to go on representing his constituents as best he could.

The traditionally Conservative riding didn't change its voting habits this year. As the first poll results came into the returning office, Munro took a good lead and never lost it, beating his closest competitor, Liberal Don Joy, by almost 11,000 votes.

Munro won all but four of the 313 polls, with Joy taking three and New Democrat Peter Smart winning one.

Feelings in the Liberal headquarters were exactly the opposite. Supporters sat glued to the television set and watched their party claim majority in the House, but saw their chances for a local victory slip quickly away.

Joy said his first try at federal politics had been "exciting" and said he would become more involved with the Liberal party in the four years before the next election.

"I think the people rejected the Liberals locally because they haven't solved inflation and they just felt they should give the Conservatives a chance to see what they can do.

"It's a pity that so many of the young people involved for the first time in our campaign here had to face defeat," Joy said.

The atmosphere at the election night headquarters of the NDP ran to despondency over the local defeat, the national losses and the defeat of leader David Lewis in his own riding.

Candidate Peter Smart, who ran a poor third in Esquimalt-Saanich, pleaded with his supporters not to give up.

"In a democracy, we have to accept defeat. I've just been down to wish Munro well, but I have to tell you that we're never going to stop trying.

"We'll lick our wounds tomorrow and then the next day we'll start working for the next election.

"We're not going to waste this experience."

Munro, wife and campaign manager Edith Gunning

Q. Before they left Victoria on the Victoria-Maui yacht race I was talking to a couple of men who are crewing in a Seattle boat. They told me the waves get pretty high in the Pacific. What would be the highest they get?

A. The highest recorded wave in the Pacific was 112 feet from trough to crest — fortunately, for the Maui racers, it doesn't happen often! The wave was measured in February 1933 during 68-knot gale by Lieut. Frederick Margraf, USN, from the USS Ramapo, which was on her way from the Philippines to San Diego.

CITY BOY SAVED FROM CLIFF EDGE

A 13-year-old Victoria boy was rescued unhurt Monday night after being stranded for more than an hour on a tiny ledge of a 300-foot cliff in Kelowna.

Kelowna deputy fire chief Jack Roberts said today two firemen descended by ropes to pluck Craig Wagner, from the ledge.

The boy, on holiday in Kelowna with his family, had slipped while climbing along the top edge of the cliff which borders the Kelowna Golf and Country Club about one mile from the city centre.

He fell 40 feet down a crevice to a four-foot wide ledge, Roberts said.

Roberts said firemen first had to descend a 250-foot shale slope, using ropes, in order to get to the cliff edge.

The boy reached safety at 7:45 p.m., about an hour after the rescue operation started.

"He wasn't scared at all . . . in fact he was as calm as can be," Roberts said. "His father, who was waiting below, told me the boy had absolutely no fear of heights at all."

The cliff is the scene of numerous rescue operations each year, Roberts said.

Saanich Throws Out Townhouse Proposal

Sixty-five University Heights residents turned out at a Saanich public hearing Monday to help defeat a bid to build 20 townhouses on a 1.98-acre lot on McKenzie, just east of Oakwinds.

He was referring to Dr. Roy Sutherland of Oakdale Estates, who with J. McLaren Construction Ltd. intended to build townhouses of 1,200 square feet (600 feet on each of two storeys) for a selling price of $38,000.

Callander and several others complained that when Sutherland sold them lots in his subdivision he insisted on covenants being signed in the bills of sale which stipulated the houses would be for single families only.

Michael Drinkwater of 3957 Long Gun Place said it was a "deliberate breach of trust" on Sutherland's part, saying the townhouse project was a "cheap-looking excuse for low-cost housing."

Ald. Les Passmore was cheered as he moved the project be rejected. After remarking dryly, "It just goes to show you're a bum one minute and a hero the next," Passmore said that by making buyers sign the covenants "he (Sutherland) intimated it would be single-family zoning throughout all his property."

Ald. Bill Campbell agreed, as did Mayor Ed Lum, who said he was also voting against the project because the acreage was very low and would be hard to drain.

Alds. Joe Bourque and 'Sandy' Noel were the only aldermen who favored the rezoning.

Bourque agreed with builder Chris Pike, who had told the residents to forbid anything but single-family houses in the area was to "lock out all young people" who cannot afford to buy homes that have become overly expensive through the inflation spiral.

Bourque said he lived in an area of Saanich similar to University Heights and he would not oppose townhouses where he lived if they were "tastefully done."

Passmore's move to reject held, with Ald. Mel Couvelier supporting it because of the traffic problems the density would produce.

Elk Lodges to Handle Lottery

Tickets for the first lottery to be held Oct. 23 will go on sale July 15.

Greater Victoria Elks spokesman Doug Wilson said organizations wishing to sell tickets should contact the lodge at 384-4413.

The Elks were chosen by the provincial government because their lodges are evenly distributed throughout the province, he said.

Tickets are $2.50 each and will be available by Friday. They qualify the buyer for a chance to win the $250,000 first prize. There will be four draws a year, with prizes in each draw totalling $750,000.

Each book of 12 tickets is worth $30, of which $20 will be used for lottery prizes and recreation in the four sponsoring Western provinces.

The organization selling the ticket will get $5 and the other $5 will be paid to the Elks for expenses incurred while administering the selling of tickets.

Wilson said the $5 to be paid to the Elks will finance the Elk Haven on Denman Island which offers weekly accommodation during the summer for handicapped children.

He said the Elks have already received "an amazing number of inquiries" by local organizations interested in selling the tickets, and he predicts the lottery will be the biggest in the country.

'Williams Way' Next?

Two of Victoria's most important waterfront amenity areas are inappropriately named — a downtown merchant complained Monday.

How much longer, asked Lloyd Davies, are city council and everyone else going to keep on calling the two areas the Ocean Cement site and the Reid Centre when they have ceased to have any connection with a cement works and a Vancouver developer?

A fellow member of the Central Business District Advisory Committee said the correct name for the Ocean Cement site is Churchill Point, and committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf joked that he was tempted to suggest the name "Williams Way" for the Reid site.

From their laughter, committee members obviously needed no explanation that the joke referred to Resources Minister Bob Williams, who spearheaded the provincial government's purchase of the Reid property after placing a development freeze on it as well as other Wharf Street waterfront areas.

McKinnon added nearly 2,000 votes to his 1972 federal election majority, while the NDP, which on that occasion ran the Liberals a close third, this time saw its tally slump to only about half the Liberal vote.

Easing briefly out of the hand-shaking, backslapping melee to talk to reporters, McKinnon admitted his own satisfaction was sobered by the disappointing performance of his party across the country.

"The prices and incomes policy was a wonderful policy but it was not a good plank in our platform," he said.

"It was the only way we could approach this problem but apparently it was not viable to the electorate of eastern Canada. Toronto and Quebec turned us down again."

McKinnon insisted the Conservatives knew the price and wage control policy would not be a popular one, but pushed it because they knew it was necessary.

"Unfortunately it was an easy policy to sloganeer against," he added. "The Liberals, and to a lesser degree the NDP, were saying 'Prices are high, let's freeze wages — that's what the Tories want to do.'

"It was a slick slogan and it sold easily."

McKinnon explained his Victoria success by theorizing that the policy was an acceptable one to this riding's many people on fixed incomes.

Elford agreed with McKinnon's theory concerning Victoria's fixed-income voters, adding: "Obviously a lot of these people believe that wage and price controls will solve all their problems, but a lot of others didn't buy that."

The NDP's Peter James denied that his own result reflected any anti-NDP backlash provincially.

"There's one thing I've learned — you can't translate votes federally to votes provincially," he said.

Esquimalt-Saanich PC Beats Liberal by 11,000 Votes

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Conservative Don Munro felt "great" locally, but was "sickened" nationally as he swept to victory in Esquimalt-Saanich while watching his party lose its chance of governing the country.

Conservative supporters jammed into Munro's small cement-floored headquarters on McKenzie, their cheers for the local candidate offset by the beating the Tories took nationally.

A bitter Munro told reporters he felt that what leader Robert Stanfield had to say was stronger than the Canadian people were prepared to take.

"But they're going to have to take it from the Liberals; they'll just ram it down their throats."

Munro said the Canadian people would feel the effects of the Liberal victory by the end of the year, but said he intended to go on representing his constituents as best he could.

The traditionally Conservative riding didn't change its voting habits this year. As the first poll results came into the returning office, Munro took a good lead and never lost it, beating his closest competitor, Liberal Don Joy, by almost 11,000 votes.

Munro won all but four of the 313 polls, with Joy taking three and New Democrat Peter Smart winning one.

Feelings in the Liberal headquarters were exactly the opposite. Supporters sat glued to the television set and watched their party claim majority in the House, but saw their chances for a local victory slip quickly away.

Joy said his first try at federal politics had been "exciting" and said he would become more involved with the Liberal party in the four years before the next election.

"I think the people rejected the Liberals locally because they haven't solved inflation and they just felt they should give the Conservatives a chance to see what they can do.

"It's a pity that so many of the young people involved for the first time in our campaign here had to face defeat," Joy said.

The atmosphere at the election night headquarters of the NDP ran to despondency over the local defeat, the national losses and the defeat of leader David Lewis in his own riding.

Candidate Peter Smart, who ran a poor third in Esquimalt-Saanich, pleaded with his supporters not to give up.

"In a democracy, we have to accept defeat. I've just been down to wish Munro well, but I have to tell you that we're never going to stop trying.

"We'll lick our wounds tomorrow and then the next day we'll start working for the next election.

"We're not going to waste this experience."

Munro, wife and campaign manager Edith Gunning

Ask the Times

Q. Before they left Victoria on the Victoria-Maui yacht race I was talking to a couple of men who are crewing in a Seattle boat. They told me the waves get pretty high in the Pacific. What would be the highest they get?

A. The highest recorded wave in the Pacific was 112 feet from trough to crest — fortunately, for the Maui racers, it doesn't happen often! The wave was measured in February 1933 during 68-knot gale by Lieut. Frederick Margraf, USN, from the USS Ramapo, which was on her way from the Philippines to San Diego.

CITY BOY SAVED FROM CLIFF EDGE

A 13-year-old Victoria boy was rescued unhurt Monday night after being stranded for more than an hour on a tiny ledge of a 300-foot cliff in Kelowna.

Kelowna deputy fire chief Jack Roberts said today two firemen descended by ropes to pluck Craig Wagner, from the ledge.

The boy, on holiday in Kelowna with his family, had slipped while climbing along the top edge of the cliff which borders the Kelowna Golf and Country Club about one mile from the city centre.

He fell 40 feet down a crevice to a four-foot wide ledge, Roberts said.

Roberts said firemen first had to descend a 250-foot shale slope, using ropes, in order to get to the cliff edge.

The boy reached safety at 7:45 p.m., about an hour after the rescue operation started.

"He wasn't scared at all . . . in fact he was as calm as can be," Roberts said. "His father, who was waiting below, told me the boy had absolutely no fear of heights at all."

The cliff is the scene of numerous rescue operations each year, Roberts said.

Saanich Throws Out Townhouse Proposal

Sixty-five University Heights residents turned out at a Saanich public hearing Monday to help defeat a bid to build 20 townhouses on a 1.98-acre lot on McKenzie, just east of Oakwinds.

He was referring to Dr. Roy Sutherland of Oakdale Estates, who with J. McLaren Construction Ltd. intended to build townhouses of 1,200 square feet (600 feet on each of two storeys) for a selling price of $38,000.

Callander and several others complained that when Sutherland sold them lots in his subdivision he insisted on covenants being signed in the bills of sale which stipulated the houses would be for single families only.

Michael Drinkwater of 3957 Long Gun Place said it was a "deliberate breach of trust" on Sutherland's part, saying the townhouse project was a "cheap-looking excuse for low-cost housing."

Ald. Les Passmore was cheered as he moved the project be rejected. After remarking dryly, "It just goes to show you're a bum one minute and a hero the next," Passmore said that by making buyers sign the covenants "he (Sutherland) intimated it would be single-family zoning throughout all his property."

Ald. Bill Campbell agreed, as did Mayor Ed Lum, who said he was also voting against the project because the acreage was very low and would be hard to drain.

Alds. Joe Bourque and 'Sandy' Noel were the only aldermen who favored the rezoning.

Bourque agreed with builder Chris Pike, who had told the residents to forbid anything but single-family houses in the area was to "lock out all young people" who cannot afford to buy homes that have become overly expensive through the inflation spiral.

Bourque said he lived in an area of Saanich similar to University Heights and he would not oppose townhouses where he lived if they were "tastefully done."

Passmore's move to reject held, with Ald. Mel Couvelier supporting it because of the traffic problems the density would produce.

Elk Lodges to Handle Lottery

Tickets for the first lottery to be held Oct. 23 will go on sale July 15.

Greater Victoria Elks spokesman Doug Wilson said organizations wishing to sell tickets should contact the lodge at 384-4413.

The Elks were chosen by the provincial government because their lodges are evenly distributed throughout the province, he said.

Tickets are $2.50 each and will be available by Friday. They qualify the buyer for a chance to win the $250,000 first prize. There will be four draws a year, with prizes in each draw totalling $750,000.

Each book of 12 tickets is worth $30, of which $20 will be used for lottery prizes and recreation in the four sponsoring Western provinces.

The organization selling the ticket will get $5 and the other $5 will be paid to the Elks for expenses incurred while administering the selling of tickets.

Wilson said the $5 to be paid to the Elks will finance the Elk Haven on Denman Island which offers weekly accommodation during the summer for handicapped children.

He said the Elks have already received "an amazing number of inquiries" by local organizations interested in selling the tickets, and he predicts the lottery will be the biggest in the country.

'Williams Way' Next?

Two of Victoria's most important waterfront amenity areas are inappropriately named — a downtown merchant complained Monday.

How much longer, asked Lloyd Davies, are city council and everyone else going to keep on calling the two areas the Ocean Cement site and the Reid Centre when they have ceased to have any connection with a cement works and a Vancouver developer?

A fellow member of the Central Business District Advisory Committee said the correct name for the Ocean Cement site is Churchill Point, and committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf joked that he was tempted to suggest the name "Williams Way" for the Reid site.

From their laughter, committee members obviously needed no explanation that the joke referred to Resources Minister Bob Williams, who spearheaded the provincial government's purchase of the Reid property after placing a development freeze on it as well as other Wharf Street waterfront areas.

Erthematosus Hits Women

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors often fail to detect a kind of rheumatic disease that strikes most often at young women, a California specialist told the Pan-American Congress on Rheumatic Diseases.

Dr. Edmund Dubois, associate clinical professor of medicine at the University of Southern California, said such women frequently are considered neurotic because the disease first shows up as a great sense of fatigue.

He said that 90 per cent of persons who get the disease — systemic lupus erthematosus — are women under 25. Patients produce anti-bodies against their own organs, blood cells and heart muscle.

The disease also affects the brain and can make patients seem mentally ill or subject to seizures.

He said the women often have puffy stiff hands in the morning, similar to people with arthritis. About half will develop arthritis early in the course of the disease.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Recently Drs. Samuel S. Hames and Barbara Bess of the department of psychiatry of New York Medical College said that 55 profesional comedians who were studied were found to have a high intelligence, but many had their early lives marked by suffering and depression.

Their average age at the time of the study was 46 years. Eighty per cent of them reported having sought some form of psychotherapy. Many, when off-stage, were depressed.

TURNER'S SYNDROME

A reader has asked me about Turner's syndrome, and wants to know what it is and whether it can be cured. Unfortunately, it cannot be cured, because it is a defect in every body cell of a woman or girl in which there is only one X (female) chromosome. A normal woman is born with two X sex chromosomes in each cell of her body.

An expert can usually recognize a girl with Turner's syndrome because she is usually less than five feet tall, with perhaps a wide "webbed" neck, perhaps small breasts and usually a poorly developed womb, which means that she will not menstruate and will not be able to bear children.

The diagnosis can be made definitely by scraping a few cells from the inside of the cheek and studying them under a microscope; a blood cell can also be used for examination. Naturally, with every cell in the body abnormal, there is no hope for a cure.

There is another type of chromosomal defect which occurs when a male child is born with an extra X chromosome, so that he has XXY, instead of the XY a normal male has.

When the boy reaches adolescence, he will have small testicles and enlarged breasts. In severe cases, his testicles will not descend and he will be somewhat mentally retarded. A Klinefelter man has no sperm, and so he is unable to impregnate a woman.

INCREASING ALCOHOL

Recently I saw a remarkable article (Time, April 22, 1974) on the effects of increasing amounts of alcohol in the bloodstream. For example, one highball, one cocktail, five and one-half ounces of ordinary wine, or two bottles of beer can make slight changes in a person's feeling.

Twice these amounts can make a feeling of warmth and mental relaxation. Three times the dosage can give a person exaggerated emotions and behavior, and he or she is likely to become talkative, noisy or morose.

Four times the dose and one gets clumsy and unsteady in standing or walking, and five times the dose causes gross intoxication. Ten hours must then pass before all alcohol leaves the person's body.

Naturally, there are individual differences; for example, one cocktail can have much less effect on a 200-pound man than on a 110-pound woman. Food slows down the absorption of alcohol from the bowel.

Also, different people react very differently to drugs. I have known men who could drink three martinis before they would feel anything, but I know that if I were to drink three martinis, I would be very sick.

For some persons, one aspirin can work well to relieve pain, while others need a much stronger type of pain killer. Most people would find morphine pain-relieving and calming, but some patients with an unusual nervous system, would feel (as one patient said) like "climbing the walls like a crazed cat."

Many people have asked me what the best cure for a hangover is, with its nausea, headache, depression and fatigue the morning after, and unfortunately I cannot say. The best advice I can think of is simply not to drink too much alcohol the night before.

Name of the Game

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the boy who hated gym because he was lousy in competitive sports brought back memories.

I was also lousy in gym, and when the teacher had the captains choose up sides, I was always the last one to be chosen. I can't describe the humiliation I suffered. I would get sick before every P.E. class, and cry in the showers afterwards.

Abby, why can't all the kids who are poor in gym have a physical fitness program of their own without having to compete with those who are fair, good and excellent? With calisthenics, trampoline, jump rope, etc., they could get just as much exercise as the kids who go out for football, basketball, volleyball and track.

My own sense of failure started with the relay races in grammar school. If only I had been taught to run for the joy of running, and not to beat the other team! But the name of the game was competition — even in first grade. Pity. — S.F.

DEAR S.: Thank you for your sensible letter. Many others wrote to suggest that some children "hate" gym because they have a depth perception, coordination or visual problem of which they are not aware. Parents would do well to have their "gym-hating" youngsters examined by an ophthalmologist as well as by a neurologist to determine if their children need help.

DEAR ABBY: I did it. I did it. I finally did it! I streaked in front of an audience last night.

I showered, dusted myself with rose-scented powder, made up my face, and brushed my hair. Then I slipped into a pair of pretty pink heels (and nothing else) and I took off like a flash into the living room, where my audience of one was watching television. I paused briefly, twirled around once, and then ran back into the bedroom. When I returned to the living room (clothed), my husband said, "Have you lost your mind, woman?"

Abby, I'm only 33. Could this mean that I am already out of shape? — Streaker.

DEAR STREAKER: No, but your husband could be.

DEAR ABBY: May I respond to "Almost 26 and Worried," who is considering marrying "any guy" just so she can say she's been married?

I am almost 80 and I've never been married. A home of my own was my heart's desire — not a husband. Through my own efforts I acquired a comfortable home. It's furnished to please me. It's peaceful, quiet and free from stale smoke. I don't have to account for how I spend my time or my money, and I can come and go as I please.

I wouldn't trade places with any of my married friends, but some of them have told me they envy me. It's a tragic mistake for a woman to marry unless she's reasonably assured of a better life than she can have alone. There are worse fates than being single. I see examples of it all around me. Sign me, "No Regrets" or . . . Proud, Single and Haven't Missed A Thing.

Barbie Earns All-American Tag

Barbie is the world's biggest selling toy. To her young owners she is a real personality. To Mattel Inc., her producer, she is a $100-million-a-year enterprise.

Eighty million Barbies have been sold since the doll was created in 1958 by Ruth Handler, co-founder of the toy manufacturer. Sales now run about six million a year.

Teen-ager Barbie is 11½ inches tall, has long blonde hair and is stylishly slender. She has a wardrobe that would be the envy of a movie star. She is the owner of a townhouse, an airplane, a dune buggy and other luxuries — if parents want to pay the bill.

Why has Barbie won this place in the hearts of girls?

"Barbie strikes a common denominator as the All American good little girl, and the child can both identify with Barbie and want to be like her," says Dr. Edlard R. Ritvo, associated professor of Child Psychiatry at the UCLA medical school.

"Children since time immemorial, as their personalities grow, have used things to develop their fantasies around," he continued.

"Girls particularly . . . have chosen objects which we call dolls which they love and kiss. They do to dolls what their mothers do to them. They imagine they're grown up. They sort of try out the grown-up role.

"Each generation has found certain common things in their toys like Goldilocks or Raggedy Ann.

"The Barbie doll has become the popular one for the kids of today because Barbie represents a contemporary individual—whatever she is to the child. She's ubiquitous enough to be a baby, a little girl or a teen-ager."

Mattel says Barbie was designed to project her owners into adulthood.

"Barbie enabled millions of little girls to put themselves into almost limitless future life situations," he added. "Through Barbie, they were able to project a variety of teen-age and young adult lives, their hopes and dreams for the future."

Some parents say ruefully that once a child is bitten by the Barbie bug there is no end to what she wants for her doll.

"What's with this doll?" gasped a father at the sight of Barbie's wedding gown. "When does it all stop?"

A Barbie costs $3 to $5 with a basic kit of apparel. But that's only the start. The demanding doll has dresses, pantsuits, coats, shorts and nightgowns which sell for $1 to $1.50 each.

A Play for the Piano

Not only will the ability to coax something approximating The Maple Leaf Forever out of an inanimate object give a child a satisfying sense of personal accomplishment, but, next to daily bathing and good oral hygiene, it will be the attribute most likely to ensure his social acceptability.

Once the decision has been made to begin his musical training, an instrument must be chosen. After long and careful consideration, I determined to start my children on piano lessons.

The piano has several distinct advantages over other instruments:

1) A piano qualifies as furniture, filling up that awkwardly shaped corner of the living room, as well as providing an elegant backdrop from which to exhibit family memorabilia. You can't put your grandmother's wedding photograph on a French horn.

2) It does not need to be taken with you, thus avoiding the trauma of attempting to stuff a bass fiddle into the back seat of an Austin mini or driving through rush hour traffic with a slide trombone jammed into your right ear.

3) It can not only be played without the grotesque facial contortions necessary to elicit sounds from a trumpet or cornet, but it is possible to sing while you play a piano without the hazard of getting spit in the mouthpiece.

4) But, best of all, you will never be required to sit huddled on a drafty wooden platform overlooking a muddy football field, while driving rain lashes across your face, and applaud as your son marches past playing The Maple Leaf Forever on the piano.

The single most expensive ingredient of covered furniture is the upholstery material. It can account for over 25 per cent of the production cost.

The illustrated 24-page booklet "How to buy upholstered furniture" explains that in general, man-made fibres wear better than natural fibres. It also underlines that nylon is the most durable fibre with good crush resistance and excellent cleaning qualities.

Upholstery fabrics come in two groups: Three-dimensional (or pile) and flat fabrics. There are three basic types of pile fabrics: Frieze, Velvet and Plush and three types of flat fabrics: Plains, Jacquards and Novelties. The booklet explains what these look like and of what fibres they are made.

The type of your furniture will often help you decide what kind of upholstery fabric to choose. Illustrations and explanations of different furniture styles will assist you in your selection.

If you'd like to examine upholstery material, ask the dealer for a small sample. Quality fabrics are usually coated with bonding material to keep the fabric smooth and firm over the padding. The better your upholstery fabric the longer will your furniture stand up to wear.

Dr. Spock Praises Unswerving Youth

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock says his parents, with the best of intentions, intimidated him and he is glad the present generation cannot be intimidated.

But "I don't agree that the family unit is in danger," said the pediatrician, who was raised here.

"I grew up afraid of parents, teachers, barking dogs and bullies," he said in an interview.

"I had a sense of guilt all the time and yet my mother was more liberal than her mother."

Spock, who grew up in a large family with aunts, uncles, cousins and grandparents nearby, said this lifestyle has disappeared.

But the family unit is not in danger, he said.

"Obviously, more people are living together without marriage and there is nothing wrong in this," he said.

"There are a fair number who have decided they don't want to have children.

"In the past, family pressures and sibling competition made couples feel they had to have children, that there was something wrong with them if they didn't.

"We have discovered that children who are not wanted don't do very well."

Today's family has different problems and must search for solutions, Spock said.

SPOCK
. . . pressure eased

He said he sees a tendency for families to keep more to themselves, living in separate houses on separate lots without companionship.

Young people are experimenting with ways to find companionship by living in communies, and strains develop in these situations, he said.

Spock said young persons today, who "can't be intimidated," have different characteristics than children of the past.

He said today's parents, influenced by educationist John Dewey, psychoanalyst Sigmund Freud and perhaps himself, have learned that love is more important than punishment in creating good character.

SINGLES MEETING

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Kenny, president of the One Parent Association of Canada, says that ways to make divorce or separation easier to handle emotionally and financially will be discussed at the association's week-long conference which opens here today.

He says the highlight of the conference, expected to attract more than 700 single parents, will be workshops conducted by Judge Marjorie Montgomery Bowker, director of Edmonton's family court conciliation project.

The project, begun in 1972, aims at heading off the bitter prolonged fights which often result when marriage partners split and seek different lawyers.

"Too many people breaking up . . . start tearing each other apart and often use the children as pawns," Kenny said in an interview today.

He said Bowker's court does away with the need for couples getting separate lawyers which often results in high legal fees.

Aspirin Varieties Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 100 varieties of aspirin are offered for sale in North America and the consumer is faced with confusing claims for their effectiveness, safety and cost.

The Medical Letter, a nonprofit publication for doctors, evaluated drugs containing aspirin and concluded in its July 5 issue that all aspirin is not alike. But it said no important difference in pain-killing effect between various formulations of aspirin has ever been established.

Aspirin tablet disintegrate in the stomach and dissolve primarily in the small intestine. The report said it is the rate the tablet dissolves that determines the rate the drug gets into the bloodstream.

"Improperly manufactured tablets may either be so tightly packed that they do not readily dissolve, or they may crumble before use," The Medical Letter said. "Crumbled tablets and powder may contain considerable amounts of degraded drug. Although these pharmaceutical differences between tablets could have clinical consequences, it has never been proven in controlled trials of analgesic effect that one brand of plain aspirin is superior to another."

The report said aspirin has been implicated as a possible cause of stomach or intestinal bleeding and a few other disorders. To minimize such irritation, the Medical Letter said any aspirin tablet should be taken with a full glass of water.

Buffers are added to some aspirmin tablets to decrease gastric acidity. But the Medical Letter said in the amounts present in most buffered formulations, buffers do not produce a meaningful decrease in acidity. It said food or a glass of water probably works just as well.

Nevertheless, the report said some scientists have found less gastronintestinal bleeding with buffered tablets, presumably because buffers tend to shorten the time it takes for the tablets to dissolve and there are fewer undissolved particles to irritate the stomach and intestines.

"It has never been established in patients with painful conditions, however, that there is a difference between buffered and non-buffered aspirin in time of onset of analgesic, duration or degree of relief of pain or incidence of gastrointestinal distress," the report said.

The Medical Letter said Alka-Seltzer has a much higher content of buffering agents than other buffered aspirin tablets, and since Alka-Seltzer is dissolved before taken, the report said it is an effective way of taking single doses of aspirin.

But the report said the buffering capacity of Alka-Seltzer is obtained at the expense of a high sodium content.

Bicarbonate, along with its cost, makes Alka-Seltzer "less useful than other formulations of aspirin for long-term administration as, for example, in patients with arthritis."

The Medical Letter said combinations of aspirin with other pain killers have never been proven more effective than aspirin alone and may cause a higher incidence of adverse effects.

ALONG THE ALBERTA-SASKATCHEWAN BORDER (CP) — Albertans proud of their province's reputation as a ratfree province can thank men like Marvin Horpestad.

He has spent 10 years working on the "rat patrol," tracking down rats and destroying them before they have a chance to establish a colony.

Mr. Horpestad is one of five men who patrol the 380 miles of border between Montana and southeastern Alberta, seeking Saskatchewan rats heading for greener pastures.

Last year, they killed 25,000 rats, using 15,000 pounds of rolled oats mixed with poison and 2,783 packages of water-soluble poison.

ALGAE HEAT DREAM HOME

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The dream home of two University of California scientists is a self-contained dwelling with ponds of algae on the roof and living space shared with a cow and 50 chickens.

The "housebarn" — like a perpetual motion machine — would use recycling methods to provide a family of four with power, food and waste disposal.

Such a house could be built for about $10,000 with a cost of between $50 and $100 a year for maintenance, the scientists believe.

Clarence Golueke, a research bicologist, and William Oswald, a professor of public health, said the object of building such a house was to show that man can live comfortably in complete harmony with nature. They're seeking federal funds for the project.

"Every component of this system has been proven separately to work," said Golueke. "Now all we have to do is put it together."

The key to the circular housebarn is the algae ponds where the tiny plants would absorb solar energy and grow rapidly. The algae would then be placed in an anaerobic digester — a sealed cylinder in the home's centre where bacteria literally eat the algae.

The process creates methane, a gas which can be used for heating, light, refrigeration and cooking. the leftover sludge from the digester makes a rich fertilizer for use in the vegetable garden.

Algae not needed for methane and fertilizer production can be dried and used as a high protein supplement for animal feed.

Chickens, the cow and a small vegetable garden provide the human food and a solar still on the roof would provide water for drinking and cooking. The only outside need would be piped-in water for bathing, laundering and algae breeding.

"The smell would be like that of a barnyard, nothing vile," said Oswald.

He said the house was basically a system that mimics the life process of the planet on a miniature scale, but without the pollution.

STAMP FEATURES TELEPHONE

OTTAWA (CP) — An eight-cent stamp marking the centenary of the invention of the telephone is to be released July 26, the post office announced.

Operation Ends 74 Years Of Blindness

BRISTOL, Va. (AP) — Josephine Mulkey, 80, can see again after 74 years of blindness.

"Such a blessing, such a miracle!" said Mrs. Mulkey who had lived almost all her life in a world in which her only visual perception was daylight and color.

Mrs. Mulkey was blinded in both eyes when, as a six-year-old in Murphy, N.C., she fell while carrying some of her mother's home-made liquid lye to a neighbor. The lye was for use in washing clothes or making soap.

"Right up into my eyes it went," she said. "They did their best to get it out, of course, but I was crying and rubbing my eyes, and it was too late."

She married the late Stanley Mulkey and raised seven children. They gave her 16 great-grandchildren.

Last fall, a granddaughter mentioned her plight to an eye specialist. The doctor thought he might be able to help.

There was a long wait for a corneal donor. Finally, on June 13, a healthy cornea was transplanted into Mrs. Mulkey's right eye.

When the bandages were removed the doctor calmly announced she could see. Nine days later, her son Jack drove her home through a world she was seeing clearly for the first time since 1900.

Soviet Police Release Jews

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police have freed the last of about four dozen Jewish activitists detained during President's Nixon's week-long visit, Jewish sources say.

One source said all of the Jews, including 20 in Moscow, 17 in Kishinev and about a dozen in Odessa and Kiev, were released by Saturday night.

Freedom Cited in Crimes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Freedom from traditional family pressures and too much drinking among East Indian imimgrants may help explain a recent rash of violent crimes in the Vancouver area involving East Indians, says Alderman Setty Pendakur.

Pendakur, a native of India, said in an interview that no single factor can be blamed for the recent series of crimes.

He said a theory that East Indians are more likely than other cultural groups to defend family honor by taking the law into their own hands is "superficial and misleading."

"People all over the world have strong feelings of family pride, but they don't go out and murder because of it," he said.

Society should regard crimes involving East Indians as individual acts by irrational persons who may not be adjusted to Canadian life, Pendakur said.

He said that unlike India, where the family is the most important social unit, Canada stresses the individual.

"When questions of family honor arise in India, families don't start attacking each other. They negotiate between themselves and usually end up with a satisfactory solution."

However, he said, East Indian immigrants to Canada are surprised to find themselves free of family pressure and a few may over-react and commit extreme acts.

He said the use of alcohol may be a factor in East Indian crimes, as drinking is far more prevalent in Canada than in India.

"In Canada, there's not much pressure against it and a lot of single East Indian men tend to drink too much," Pendakur said.

He added that the recent wave of crimes involving East Indians here is only a coincidence and should not continue. There is no more crime in the East Indian community than in any other segment of the city, he said.

"Ninety-nine per cent of our people are good law-abiding citizens."

However, he said members of the East Indian community are concerned about the problem and efforts have begun to attract immigrants into the mainstream of Canadian life.

Pendakur praised police chief Don Winterton for taking a humane approach in dealing with social problems involving East Indians.

"If there's a problem, he's willing to send the police right out to the family to see exactly what's wrong. This is far better than the strictly legalistic approach we've had from the police in the past."

The latest in a series of murders in which East Indians have been charged occurred Friday when Gerdev Singh Gill, 44, of Port Moody, was killed by being beaten with his own gun after he tried to ambush two men at the Rayonier Canada Silvertree Sawmill here.

An autopsy revealed Gill had died of the beating. He had also been shot with the gun.

N.Y. Jails Four IRA Gun-Runners

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Four men accused of smuggling guns to the Irish Republican Army were sentenced to six years in prison Monday, despite pleas the men had committed no crimes against the United States.

"Their brothers and sisters are dying and they felt they should respond to a cry for help," defence attorney Frank Durkan told U.S. district judge Edward S. Northdrop in a final statement before the sentencing.

Durkan offered no defence during the three-day trial in May, contending the case was a political matter and not a legal one.

One of the defendants, Northern Ireland citizen and New York city bar owner James Conlon, told the judge that his sick father in Belfast asked him to help the IRA battle British troops.

"I couldn't desert him," Conlon said. "Someone has to help our people."

Also sentenced were Henry Hillick, a Northern Ireland citizen who lives in Washington, D.C.; Francis M. Larkin, a construction company employee from Riverdale, MD.; and Kiernan F. McMahon of Silver Spring, MD., a former executive of the National Savings and Trust Co. of Washington.

The men were convicted of buying 158 AR-15 semi-automatic rifles from Washington area gun dealers.

Eskimos Healthier Than Ever

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Dr. Noah Carpenter, born 29 years ago of mixed Eskimo and white ancestry in the small Mackenzie River Delta community of Kalavik, believes white people have done more good than harm for the health of native people.

That's so in spite of the high incidence of alcoholism and mental illness among native people, a condition blamed totally or in part by the encroachment of white civilization, Dr. Carpenter said on a panel Monday at the third international symposium on circumpolar health.

Before health care distribution was set up in the north, native people suffered infections, tuberculosis, diphthera and other viral epidemics, said the resident-in-surgery at University Hospital in Edmonton.

Now, with improved transportation, communications and medical techniques, the over-all health of native people was better than ever. To improve this health even more requires a psychological rather than strictly medical treatment approach, he told delegates, most of them doctors, health workers and anthropologists.

The restoration of self-esteem among Indians and Eskimos is they key to solving the problems of mental illness and alcoholism which are especially troublesome in the north, he said.

But pouring millions of dollars in government money into native programs may not be the answer. Native people could only acquire self esteem through an individual or personal effort, he said.

Another panelist, Susie Huskey of Inuvik, N.W.T., said more medical specialists are needed in the north.

Psychiatrists are needed in particular because rapid social changes have a tendency to overwhelm native people, she said.

ONLY 460 MILES FACING JOLI

Joli, a 61-foot Seattle sloop, was believed 460 miles from Maui Monday in the 2,300-mile Victoria-to-Maui race.

Race officials said the position was based on an unconfirmed sighting Sunday of the vessel, which had not reported its location by radio.

Native Dancer, a 30-foot Seattle sloop, also had not reported a position. Officials said the vessel was trying to conserve battery power and so was not using its radio.

In first place among vessels reporting was Naknek, a 53-foot Vancouver sloop, reported 870 miles from Maui.

Scaramouche, a 50-foot Seattle sloop, was reported second, 20 miles back. Third, and 55 miles behind, was Temptation, a 57-foot Tacoma, Wash., yawl.

Other vessels in reported order: Namu, Race Passage, Tinsley Light, Midnight Special, Red Dog, Biscuit Eater, Andanate II, Namba, Obsession, Elixir, Sea Ray, Madhatter, Rna, Border Lord, Seawyf and Lucy Alice.

Repairs Done, Tub Trip Resumes

NANAIMO (CP) — The bathtub Bismark Two, commanded by Fred Maguire of Nanaimo, left Port Hardy Monday as he continued his attempt to circumnavigate Vancouver Island.

His next stop was Bull Harbor, near Cape Scott, the northern tip of the island, where he was to turn south along the west coast of the island.

Maguire and his escort vessel left Port Hardy Monday afternoon.

They were delayed 24 hours in Port Hardy while permanent repairs were made to a split transom on the Bismark Two and to await the arrival of two new propellers for the escort vessel.

The ship's propeller had been damaged earlier in a grounding.

But the escort vessel was minus one crew member, the chief cook and navigator, Dave Sweet of Nanaimo, came down with bronchitis and he was flown back to Nanaimo.

GROWING OPIUM MAY END TURKEY AID

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Turkey's decision to resume growing opium, the raw material for much of the heroin smuggled into the United States, should result in suspension of U.S. economic and military aid, says Sen. Walter F. Mondale.

Mondale said Monday he will introduce legislation requiring the cutoff because he does not think President Nixon will use his authority to suspend aid to Turkey.

In a Senate speech, Mondale called Turkey's decision to lift the three-year ban on the growing of opium "a major setback in the struggle to rid this country of the menace of heroin."

He conceded there would be strong objections to his proposal and that a cutoff of economic and military assistance could cost the United States its military bases in Turkey.

"For those who feel otherwise," said Mondale, "I would only ask them to consider how many lives wrecked by heroin they are willing to pay for these bases."

Wind, Rain, Heat Plague U.S. Centres

United Press International

Tornadoes swept across the southeastern United States today and record heavy rainfall swamped northern California.

At least one person was injured when clusters of tornadoes ripped through Minnesota, Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Texas and New Mexico. Authorities said most of the twisters raced through non-populated areas.

Winds reaching 81 miles per hour blasted Albany, Minn. A tornado near Beaumont, Tex., followed in the wake of one inch of rain in one hour.

The heaviest rainfall ever recorded during July hit northern California as a storm moved from the Pacific towards the interior. Downtown San Francisco reported .61 inch of rain — the most ever recorded there during July since the National Weather Service began keeping records in 1886.

Stifling heat followed a line of thunderstorms that raced through the upper Mississippi Valley.

Redwood Falls, Minn., recorded a 101-degree temperature, Minneapolis, Minn., and Sioux Falls, S.D., 99 degrees.

Chicago had its hottest day so far this year with a 95-degree reading, causing buckling on several city expressways and voltage reduction by Commonwealth Edison.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 90 degrees at Phoenix, Ariz., to 49 degrees at Klamath Falls, Ore.

France Crew Urged To Strike

PARIS (UPI) — French unions called today for a strike aboard the luxury liner France in a bid to save the world's largest cruise ship from retirement and keep alive a vanishing era of slow and elegant travel.

Dismay spread across Paris Monday when the French line announced its luxurious "caviar and champagne" liner would go out of service in the fall as a poverty striken victim of steep fuel prices and the jet age.

The National Federation of Maritime Unions asked the 2,500-member crew of the 14-year-old ship to occupy the vessel in a strike until "a merchant marine policy responding to the needs of our couhtry is organized."

The announcement of the liner's impending death came while the France was at sea. The cruise ship was scheduled to sail into New York harbor Thursday.

"Taking away the France is like taking away Paris," said best-selling author Irving Wallace, a frequent passenger of the ship's opulent salons and state rooms.

The Los Angeles, Calif., author, a veteran of 14 trans-Atlantic trips on the France, said, "I feel a whole period of world history has come to an end, the last of the luxury of enjoying travel, this is the end of it."

The ship has been plagued by deficits since the late 1960s, when jumbo jets began transporting more than 300 passengers in 7½ hours across the Atlantic compared with four days for the France.

Higher oil prices then quadrupled the fuel bill of the graceful liner, which burns 600 tons of fuel a day. To economize on fuel the French stretched its New York-Le Havre crossing to six days.

But the ship, known as the world's most luxurious floating hotel, continued to serve free caviar as well as champagne and other great French wines to the 2,033 passengers.

THIS WOMAN HAS 'BEAUTY OF A ROSE'

WINDSOR, England — Michele di Tursi, a waiter, forgot his customers the other day to run after a woman.

He caught up with her just as she was about to enter the Theatre Royal, squeezed past her escorts, tapped her on the shoulder and presented her with a pink rose.

"For you because you have the beauty of a rose," said Di Tursi, 32.

Queen Elizabeth — for that is who it was — took the rose and told him, "Thank you. That's a lovely surprise."

Peppino Battochi, owner of the restaurant next door to the theatre, didn't quite approve of Di Tursi snatching up a rose from a restaurant table and rushing off to present it to the Queen of England.

"I have ticked him off for tapping her on the shoulder like that — it's not the done thing," Battochi said.

But a member of the Royal household who related the incident said Queen Elizabeth deeply appreciated Di Tursi's gesture. He said she placed it on the balcony of the Royal Box during the performance and took it back to Windsor Castle with her.

Japan Visit For Nixon

WASHINGTON — President Nixon wants to follow up his Moscow summit meeting by visiting Japan sometime before the end of the year, White House and State Department officials said today.

The officials, who declined to be quoted by name, said that the president would hold a thorough review of U.S.-Japanese relations today with James Hodgson who leaves Thursday to become the new U.S. envoy in Tokyo. The United States has had no amabassador there for the last six months.

The officials added that no precise date has been set for the visit.

CITY DOESN'T QUALIFY FOR CONVERSION LOANS

Provincial government mortgages for home conversions will not be available in Victoria, according to a statement today by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson.

The loans, to pay 95 per cent of the cost of converting homes into duplexes or multiple accommodation, will only be available in Vancouver, New Westminster and Burnaby.

Other municipalities will be designated for loans later if a sufficient housing demand exists, Nicolson said.

Loans of $12,000 for the first new unit created by converting and $6,000 for each additional unit will be available.

An eight per cent interest rate will apply to loans secured by a first mortgage on the property and a nine per cent rate will apply if the loans are secured by a second mortgage.

Provision of mortgages for home conversions was approved in legislation passed during the spring session of the legislature.

Potential World Leaders

NEW YORK — Nine Canadians weer included in a list of 150 men and women Time magazine named in its internation editions as likely to become the workd's new leaders.

The Canadians are Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec, Mayor David Crombie of Toronto, Premier William Davis of Ontario, Health Minister Marc Lalonde, Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta, Montreal architect Moshe Safdie, Premier Edward Schreyer of Manitoba, Maurice Strong, executive director of the United Nations envinronment program, and Finance Minister John Turner.

Besides the nine Canadians, the most named from any single country outside the United States, the list is composed of 39 Europeans, six Latin Americans, 31 from Asia and the Pacific and 15 from Africa and the Middle East.

BUENOS AIRES — Argentine President Maria Estela Peron signed a bill Monday ordering the repatriation from Spain of the embalmed remains of Evita, her late husband's second wife.

President Peron, third wife and widow of President Juan Domingo Peron, signed the bill on her first visit to Government House since the death of her husband a week ago.

She also signed a bill ordering construction of a grandiose "altar of the fatherland" in which Argentine heroes — possibly including Peron and Evita — will be entombed.

MADRID — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's 81-year-old chief of state, was hospitalized today with phlebitis, the same illness that President Nixon suffered during his recent tour of Europe and the Middle East, a government spokesman said.

AUGUSTA, Maine — It looked as if David M. Scarponi lost an election in which he was the only candidate.

A write-in hopeful in last month's GOP primary for the Maine House of Reppesentatives, Scarponi got all the votes — 48 by the initial count. The state, however, said he was two short of the miminum needed for nomination.

But a recount of ballots revealed a paperwork error and his totak was changed to exactly 50 votes.

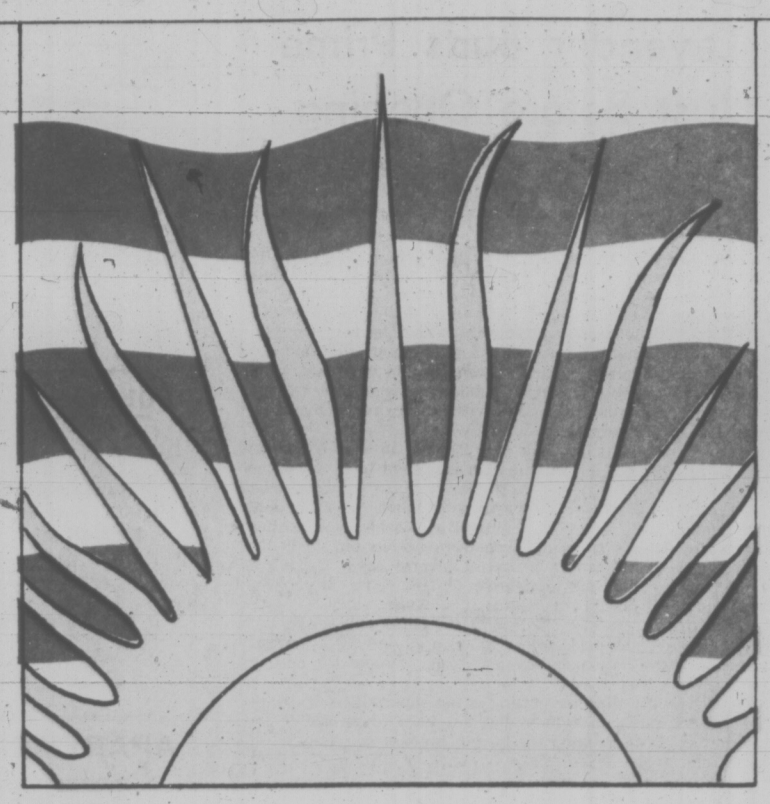
Sheriff's deputies said Daryl Freeman, 37, awaiting sentence for burglary, and Gilbert Witherspoon, 27, convicted on a stolen property charge, drove out the main gate in a pickup truck while the gate guard was having lunch.

COLUMBIS, Ohio — When John Scott Francis, 19, was elected to the Reynoldsburg, Ohio, school board, he became one of Ohio's youngest elected public officials. Monday he was charged with possession of marijuana.

WINCHESTER, Va. — The bandit who robbed Commercial and Savings Bank branch of more than $4,000 apparently wanted to make a few friends and save gas while getting his free cash.

Police said the robber told two customers, "this is your lucky day," giving one $5 and telling the other, "you'll be in the newspaper."

Police said the bandit, who was wearing a red wig and sunglasses, also told the teller "hurry up and put the money in the bag before my car runs out of gas."



Building a future where great futures are built.

How long is it since you paused a few moments for another look at this province you're in?

Its grandeur. Its people.

Vitality.

Coast and islands and interior.

Wealth. Resources and climates.

Opportunities.

It has so many things going for it that it's hard to catalogue them.

But they're all here.

All yours....

A new $6 million plant is being constructed on the Surrey/Langley border by our Canadian Car (Pacific) Division which has outgrown its present Vancouver plant. It will produce a range of sawmill equipment, including the Chip-N-Saw lumber manufacturing machine which besides revolutionizing sawmilling in Canada has gained international attention and sales.

Our Vancouver Industrial Controls Division produces electronic and electrical control equipment and consoles for mining, forestry and sawmill operators, shipping and packaging industries.

It's good to be able to put Hawker Siddeley Canada knowhow to work in British Columbia. About 8,000 Canadians work for us coast-to-coast, some 550 here and the payroll is growing.

In Nova Scotia we have built hundreds of freight cars for British Columbia Railways. And there are more to come. Components for these cars, produced at our Trenton Works Division, are made by still other Divisions in Quebec.

There's also our Tree Farmer log skidders, Can-Car highway trailers and Orenda industrial gas turbines–made in Ontario and all hard at work in the forest, transportation and power industries of this province.

Canadians turning out products for Canadians... and for customers beyond our shores–that's Hawker Siddeley Canada.

So, as we said, it's good to be growing right here in British Columbia where there's a real future.

Maybe we've got the design, engineering, manufacturing knowhow or products and services you could use? The main ones are listed below.

Give us a call, or ask us to contact you–just pop the coupon in the mail.

Lavender Buds Prime Just Before Opening

Lavender is one of several durable garden plants to produce flowers by a calendar date regardless of the season's weather, so this year the usual July 15 will be the time to cut spikes for drying.

The so-called English-lavender is the one most grown for high oil content of the flower buds. Its name is Lavandula spica, though some lists give L. vera as the true Lavender. Others give L. officinalis as one name for the two species.

Most of us want decorative shrubs and the fragrance regardless of the name so we settle for the plants that suit our needs. But not every gardener even here in what has facetiously been labelled by certain public relations types A Little Bit of Old(e) England(e) knows when the exact moment arrives for cutting the spikes.

Lavender plants produce tiny flowers in closely-packed spikes, and highest oil content is in unopened buds just when ready to open.

How does the home gardener know when the little buds are thinking of opening? Its not difficult when you realize that spike flowers normally open from the bottom up to the tip in succession during a period of several days. There are exceptions to this; the distinctive Liatris starts at the top buds and opens downwards. But that is another story.

Each day from now on, look at the bottom flower or two on a few Lavender bud stems. As soon as you have several stems with the bottom ones open, plan to make the cutting about noon on a sunny day.

This specific time for cutting is not superstition or occult in any way, but a plain fact that has been found usable by commercial firms seeking the largest amount of aromatic oil in flowers, buds, leaves or even bark of the plants they harvest.

These oils are volatile, that is, they are fleeting, or easily dispersed. The sun's warmth concentrates them in the exterior parts so that a dry warm day is the time you'll get most perfume (or flavor) from the aromatic plant oils.

A damp day is not good for gathering, for nearly all our aromatic plants have fine hairs on leaves, stems or flower buds. If they are damp with humidity of the air (or rain, dew, or an overhead sprinkler the night before) it will be hard to avoid a musty moldiness.

Cut the lavender stems down to where they reach the leaves of the plant (a true shrub, really), bundling 12 or 15 stems into a bunch with an elastic band. Make several small bunches rather than one large one, so that the bud heads are not tightly packed.

Next is the drying. Hang the bunches near the ceiling of a warm, light (but not sunny) room, with warm air circulating. Spreading loosely on brown paper on table or bench in a warm airy room is next best. The fresh printing ink of newspapers comes off so readily on the hands that it might also pick up the oil from lavender and other herbs. That is why brown paper is suggested.

After two or three days try stripping the dried buds from a few stems. If they part easily, it is time to do the whole job.

Lavender oil, and most other fresh herbal oils, are quite potent in concentration. If your skin is sensitive to such things, use rubber gloves for shedding. Plastic gloves may change the odor of your lovely smelling crop.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal we have an example of a declarer who lost a slam contract because he staked everything on a 50-50 finesse. As will be observed, he had a guaranteed contract. Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

North's three-spade response was perhaps a slight overbid, but he felt that he had no better bid available.

After dummy's ace of hearts had captured the opening lead, the trump ace was cashed. The deuce of clubs was then led, with South finessing his queen. As can be observed, West's king won the trick. Eventually declarer had to lose another club trick, to incur a one-trick set.

Had South been a better player, he would have fulfilled his contract, thanks to the presence of the nine of clubs. After cashing the trump ace, declarer should have led a heart off dummy and trumped it in the South hand. Next would come the diamond ace, after which a diamond would be ruffed in dummy.

The board's remaining heart would then be trumped in the closed hand, and this would be followed by the ruffing of South's last diamond. At this point, with the lead being in dummy, both hearts and diamonds would have been eliminated from the North-South hands.

Now would come the deuce of clubs, and with East following with the seven-spot, South would insert his nine. This trick would be captured by West's ten — and, simultaneously, West would be endplayed. If West played back either a heart or a diamond, it would be ruffed in dummy. On this trick South would discard his queen of clubs. And if, after winning his club ten, West elected to return a club, declarer would become the recipient of a free finesse, and would win two club tricks with his ace and queen.

Of course, if South had not been dealt the club nine, the guaranteed play, as presented above, would not have been possible. But, then, one must remember that nine-spots are more useful than two and threes, since they can accomplish things that deuces and treys cannot.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Joe was at the window. "There go the three Lang girls," he said. "A funny lot, they all look the same to me. Always in red or blue."

"Eve, Ann and Carol. Nice kids, but they do have a thing about those two colors," Susan told him. "Ann wears blue if and only if Eve is in red, and you never see Eve and Carol both in blue. That's Carol or Ann in the red mini, but they wouldn't both wear red."

Which of the three was in blue?

(Answer tomorrow)

B.C. Voters Wanted Majority: Barrett

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The New Democratic Party got whipped in British Columbia because voters wanted a strong majority government, Premier Dave Barrett said Monday night, not because of any backlash against unpopular provincial policies of his government.

"That's an interpretation of some pundits and people in the media," the NDP leader said. "We were placed in the difficult position of sustaining the government while losing our own identity. The party suffered, but it was a wise decision."

He said he was proud of what national party leader David Lewis had done in two years, "forcing the government to implement many of our policies." But he regretted that Lewis was personally defeated in his bid for re-election. "he has been an outstanding parliamentarian," he said.

Asked if he would be a candidate for the national leadership, Barrett replied: "No comment."

"I have a job here."

He said it was too early to see how the federal results would apply to provincial politics, but B.C. opposition party leaders were quick to predict the demise of Barrett and the NDP in the next provincial election, expected by many sometime next year.

"The results in B.C. are directly attributable to the Barrett government," said Social Credit leader Bill Bennett. "If he believes in the will of the people, he will call an immediate election to clear the air. His defeat is now pre-ordained."

Liberal leader David Anderson was jubiliant about the party's win.

"The prime minister had a very deserved win and a necessary one. He's done a great job, he's the best leader in the western world."

The fact that Liberals picked off "absolute NDP strongholds" in Vancouver and Skeena showed the backlash against Barrett, he added.

It showed the Liberal party can take votes from the NDP, he said, although it didn't sweep the province "because we didn't have the organizational strength."

Conservative leader Scott Wallace said he's disappointed about the national results, but extremely happy about the way B.C. turned out. He said the Conservatives will want to review Robert Stanfield's leadership but added:

"It's premature and unfair on election night to say the leader's finished."

Barrett said the outcome indicates general dissatisfaction with political structures.

"In terms of my own party, no one should be downhearted with the results. Our party has always gone up and down but we've always existed. We have never been out of the idealism and energy in Canadian politics."

The list of fallen NDP candidates was shocking.

Agriculture critic Mark Rose, looked upon as one of the party's brightest MPs, lost in Fraser Valley West, environment critic Ran Harding lost the traditional NDP riding of Kootenay West, union st Paddy Neale lost Vancouver East, a riding which had been solid NDP or CCF throughout its history, and Frank Howard, who had represented the northern riding of Skeena since 1957, lost to Liberal Iona Campagnola.

Skeena hadn't elected a Liberal since 1953.

Even the NDP victories were less than awesome. Tommy Douglas, the former national leader, saw his 1972 plurality of more than 15,000 votes cut to about 2,000. Stuart Leggatt held New Westminster, but not before a tight struggle with Margaret Gregory of the Conservatives.

Bottle Beer Again Flows

Bottled beer will begin to flow again in B.C. hotel beer parlors — but at a reduced rate.

The B.C. Liquor Administration Board will allow vendors to meet orders up to 40 per cent of normal, a spokesman said today.

IWA Talks To Minister

Labor Minister Bill King met negotiators for the International Woodworkers of America this afternoon to discuss the labor-management impasse in the coast forest industry.

The full nine-member IWA coast negotiating committee, headed by regional president Jack Munro, declined comment as it headed into the meeting.

Half the 32,000 coast loggers and millworkers remained off work again today, nearly all of them on Vancouver Island. But all major operations in Greater Victoria continued except Sooke Forest Products.

Munro has urged union members to stay at work and a special conference of local union delegates has been scheduled for Friday in Vancouver to decide what the union will do.

Members voted by a slim margin to reject a tentative agreement with Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agency for 120 companies. However, no official strike has been called except by two locals, Port Alberni and the loggers Local 1-71.

College Looking At Kindergarten

The former Jiminy Crickets Kindergarten may become part of Camosun College, if the college council approves leasing of the building at 3410 Shelbourne.

Council meets Wednesday to act on the recommendation by college administrators that the building be leased three years beginning Sept. 1.

The building will be used for some upgrading classes and for classes in painting, sculpture, design and other art programs, bursar Dean Winram said today.

New owner Germaine Vivian, who bought the building from Alf Petterson when Pettersen announced his kindergarten would close, has promised to make about $40,000 worth of renovations for the college, Winram said.

Growing enrolments, new programs and the need to expand the college library on the Lansdowne campus have prompted Camosun to start renting classroom space around the community, such as in Bastion Square and in the Victoria Press building.

Long Beach Surfers Enjoy Free Ride

A free surf riding school for children and adults at Long Beach has become a popular attraction of Pacific Rim National Park.

The school, operated under an Opportunities for Youth grant, is headed by Kent Fiddy.

Visitors are taught water safety, loaned wet suits and surf boards, and given a beginners' course in surf riding on the open Pacific.

Reg Joscelyn, park operation manager, said nature walks on the beach and rain forest are also well attended.

He said the campground on the beach is mostly occupied by family groups.

"There is plenty of room for camping on the beach," he said. "But the developed campsite above the beach is fully occupied."

JUDGE, TAXIDERMIST AGREE ON STUFFING

MONTREAL (CP) — The way Mrs. Maria Larose looked at it, her dead cat's beauty wasn't just skin deep so she sued the taxidermist.

The way Judge Paul Beaudry of provincial court looked at it, the stuff a cat is made of is in the eye of the beholder and rejected her suit against taxidermist Guy Lourmede.

The dispute over the feline developed after Mrs. Larose commissioned the taxidermist to stuff her cat in a curled-up position. But when she received the finished product in October, 1972, the stuffed cat did not look like her cat, she said.

Mr. Loumede said the stuffed cat looked authentic enough to fool a number of customers who saw it in his studio, adding that because Mrs. Larose knew her cat so well, she saw more in it than met the eye.

The judge concurred and rejected the woman's $610 claim against Mr. Lourmede. The Quebec Superior Court has agreed to review the case.

Body Of Consul Discovered

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Mexican authorities said late Monday they have found the badly decomposed body of U.S. vice-consul John Patterson, who was kidnapped last March.

State police chief Francisco Arellano Noblecia and state attorney general Miguel Angel Cortes confirmed a body found in the desert Monday had been tentatively identified as the remains of the 31-year-old diplomat.

Cortes said U.S. authorities here have been notified and Patterson's wife Anne will be brought from Mexico City to identify the body.

The remains were found in a remote desert region approximately 35 miles north of Hermosillo, a northern Mexico state capital, by a peasant looking for wa desert fruit called pitaya.

The peasant, identified as Reyes Carbajal, said the body was partially buried and almost totally reduced to bones. Authorities added that the skull was broken by apparent death blows in the face and the back of the head.

A ring found on the body bore the initials of Patterson and his wife, and the date of their marriage, Feb. 2, 1973.

Authorities said clothes found with the body and dental work also led to the identification.

Immediately after his disappearance, authorities found a ransom note and speculated Patterson had been kidnaped by Mexican guerrillas.

Mexican officials, however, later voiced suspicions the kidnapping had been a hoax.

100 Dogs Expected For Show

More than 100 dogs are expected at a sanction match, to be held by the Victoria City Kennel Club on the holly farm of Ron Nutter at 1565 Mount Douglas Cross Road Sunday.

Entries will be taken from 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

Junior handling competition will take place at noon. Dogs will have to be entered in at least one more class. The judge will be Margaret Best of Cowichan Station, who will also judge the sporting group.

Lynda McCoy of Duncan will judge the toy and working group while Sheilah Roberts of Cobble Hill will judge the terrier, non-sporting and hound groups.

The VCKC, formed in 1888, is the longest-established dog club in Canada.

ROAD CLOSING AT COLLINSON

The Blanshard-Collinson-McClure intersection will be closed to all traffic for three to four months starting at 9 a.m. Wednesday, while construction proceeds on the city's latest major road improvement scheme.

To handle the increased traffic expected on Humboldt Street, temporary traffic lights will be installed at the Humboldt-Rupert intersection, working on a standard stop-go operation from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

During the remainder of the day the lights will work on a flashing basis, showing amber to Rupert and red to Humboldt.

Beaver to Open First City Store

A $600,000 building will be erected by Dominion Construction Ltd. between Zellers and the European Health Spa and leased by Beaver.

Sod turning will be in September and the store is scheduled to open in January.

The 35,000 square foot store will employ about 60 people, most of them part-time workers.

Beaver Lumber has expanded from a smalll company to 220 outlets in the two years since it was purchased by the Molson brewing interests.

Headquarters for Beaver Lumber is Winnipeg.

Search Intensifies For 4 Fliers

Headquarters are being set up in Penticton in a search for four youths missing aboard a twin-engine plane in the Grand Forks area since Sunday.

A Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman in Victoria said 18-year-old pilot Victor Engstrom of Prince George had filed a flight plan from Grand Forks to Vancouver "but apparently didn't follow the plan on that particular day."

Also aboard the plane are Engstrom's 19-year-old sister and 14-year-old brother, and a friend, Allan Warren, 20, all of Prince George.

Jim Duncan Gets Portland WFL Job

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Jim Duncan, former coach of Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League, has been hired as executive assistant of Portland Storm of the World Football League.

The announcement was made here Sunday by Bob Harris, head of a London group which holds controlling interest in the fledgling WFL team. Harris also is one of the league's 12 governors.

U.K. Open Perils

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — The wind whips in from off the Irish Sea. One moment, the sun shines. It is hot and still. The next moment, squalls move in.

The fairways are narrow and bumpy. Dandelions grow ankle-high. The bunkers, originally constructed by animals as protection against the elements, are myriad and murder.

Such are the hidden perils on the Royal Lytham golf course, scene of the British open golf championship which begins Wednesday.

"It's two different games," said Hale Irwin, the U.S. Open champion. "American golf and British golf—they're not related.

"In the United States, we play courses that are immaculately manicured. . . . When we hit a ball, we have a pretty fair idea of where it is going and what it will do when it gets there.

"Not here. The course is largely in its primitive state. The targets are hidden. With all those mounds on the fairways, you can hit a perfect shot and not know how the ball will bounce. And there are always the elements—you play the wind and the rain, as well as the course."

Irwin is one of 156 who will tee off in the 103rd British Open over the aged couse, built in 1886 and hardly changed over the years.

It's golf as the auld Scots invented it: unspoiled by human hands.

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club abandoned the little British ball Sunday and went over to the bigger American ball as compulsory for the British Open.

The R and A issues its instructions in sharp rules declaring that "the 1.68 diameter ball will be compulsory" and that all players must hit a ball "not greater than 1.62 ounces . . . and not less than 1.680 inches in diametre."

WFL Product Test Wednesday

By The Associated Press

Spectators in Philadelphia, Orlando, Birmingham, Chicago and Memphis will test the product Wednesday night when the World Football League begins play.

And the rest of the United States gets a look at it Thursday night, when the league plays its first televised game.

Without so much as one exhibition game under its belt, the new league is challenging the established but strike-bound National Football League for the fans' attention and ticket money.

With a new gold-and-orange ball and both new and old players, Garry Davidson, president of the league, predicts attendance exceeding 40,000 at some games.

Davidson also created the American Basketball Association in 1967 and the World Hockey Association in 1972. Both of them still are struggling for fans and stability.

Franchises sometimes shift or die.

The WFL has a TV contract, reported to be worth about $1 million, provided by TVS, an independent network which will televise one game each Thursday night to local stations around the United States.

There are a few NFL veterans who jumped this year to the collegiate draft.

got a few promising stars in Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, well-publicized La Vegas oddsmaker, has predicted the WFL's lifespan as one season.

Davidson replies: "Tell him to call me. I'd be glad to take his money."

In 1975, some legitimate stars like Larry Csonka, Craig Morton, Calvin Hill and Daryle Lamonica will move from the NFL to the WFL.

Right now, though, the new league will have to make do with some former NFL players coaxed out of retirement, a number of NFL players, mostly reserves, who played out their contracts and jumped, some Canadian Football League imports and a crop of collegiate rookies.

Wednesday night's games are Portland Storm at Philadelphia Bell, Honolulu Hawaiians at Florida Blazers in Orlando, Southern California Sun at Birmingham Americans, Houston Texans at Chicago Fire and Detroit Wheels at Memphis Southmen.

The WFL is tossing some innovations at the fans, many of them designed to open up the game which many disgruntled NFL fans say has become an exercise in punting, place-kicking, running and futility.

Kickoffs will be made from the 30-yard line, missed field goals beyond the 20-yard line (the goal posts are on the end line, not the goal line) will be returned to the line of scrimmage, no fair catches will be allowed on punts, receptions with one foot inbound will be legal, running backs will be allowed to go in forward motion before the snap of the ball, the touchdown will be worth seven points instead of six and the extra point will have to be run or passed for instead of kicked. And there will be a fifth period to break ties.

. . . optimistic forecast

The WFL season will be climaxed Nov. 29 with the World Bowl championship game in Jacksonville, Fla.

That's where Thursday night's WFL TV opener will be held.

18 — Portland Storm at Memphis Southmen.
25 — New York at Philadelphia Bell.
Aug. 1 — Detroit Wheels at Birmingham Americans.
8 — Honolulu Hawaiians at Jacksonville Sharks.
15 — Southern California Sun at Houston Texans.
22 — Portland at Florida Blazers.
29 — Birmingham at Chicago Fire.
Sept. 5 through Nov. 14 — Teams to be announced.
Nov. 20 — WFL semi-finals.
Nov. 21 — WFL semi-finals.
Nov. 29 — WFL championship game.

Three Victoria Riflemen To Shoot in Bisley Event

Three Victorians are included in the record number of six British Columbia snipers selected to this year's Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team that will compete later this month at Bisley, England.

They are Eric Andrews, veteran Joe Gibault and Grant Barker, who is shooting at Bisley for the first time.

Mainland members of the official, 18-man Canadian team are Jack Cramer, Bob Best and Derek Daines. In addition, two other Vancouver shooters, Don Bullock and Peter Page, are paying their own expenses to compete at Bisley.

Bob Pitcairn of Vancouver also qualified for the DCRA squad, but because of business commitments was unable to join B.C. team members, who left here last weekend for England.

The Bisley competition starts on July 20 and winds up with the final stage of the Queen's Prize event on July 27.

Pitcairn was one of the major winners last week in the 100th anniversary shoot of the British Columbia Rifle Association shoot at Heals Range, where Sandy Peden of Victoria earned the most coveted individual award.

SANDY PEDEN

Peden captured the Lieutenant-Governor's Prize for the second time with a score of 221, with 27 vee bulls. Gunnar Westling, a former Queen's prize winner (1960), was second at 219 (32v); Cramer was third at 219 (23v) and Ken Westling placed fourth with 219 (21v).

Peden last won in 1972.

Grand-aggregate winner was Pitcairn, who won the Gold Medal for the B.C. championship with a score of 786 (9 7v). Peden took the silver with 780 (99v).

Peden captured the Centenary Aggregate, a special added event commemorating the BCRA centenary, with a score of 1,001 (126v). Pitcairn took the silver with 999 (111v) and Bill Lightburn the bronze, 995 (121v).

The competition drew 120 competitors, 20 from the United States, and one shooter from New Zealand who was holidaying in the city.

Success in Athletics Destroys Victorian Theory on Pregnancy

NEW YORK (NYT) — In the 1956 Olympics in Melbourne, three gold-medal winners were pregnant. Mary Bacon, the jockey, rode three winners at Finger Lakes hours before she had a baby daughter. Mary Ann Beattie of the Detroit Loves played club tennis right up to the final week of her pregnancy.

The Victorian notion that a preghant woman must be shielded from physical and emotional stress has broken down. Early pregnancy does not seem to have an unfavorable effect on sports competition, according to four prominent U.S. doctors who participated in a recent symposium for the Physician and Sportsmedicine magazine.

"Up to two or three months, pregnancy probably has no effect at all on sports performance," said Dr. Gyula Erdelyi, an obstetrician and gynecologist in private practice in Cleveland.

"If she wants to continue day of her pregnancy, (she) day of er pregnancy, (she) should make her own decision and I see no reason why it should cause any harm," said Dr. Clayton L. Thomas.

The doctors also concluded that there is apparently no evidence that female athletes have any difficulties in conceiving children; that many athletes perform better after having borne one or more children; that there are fewer complications of pregnancy and delivery in athletes and that the first stage of labor is shorter in athletes than in non-athletes.

"The only problem I had was a little morning sickness," said Mrs. Beattie, who is among a growing number of mothers competing for money on athletic circuits. "Otherwise, I couldn't tell any difference. I didn't start slowing down until about the fifth month."

The doctors said that women could resume competition within a few weeks after delivery, assuming there were no complications. "This should be an individual decision," said Thomas. "Many women are able to return to industrial jobs or housework in just a few days. If an athlete wants to be ready for a big event six weeks after delivery and she feels she can start training in two weeks, her physician should not object."

For Pierre, a victory hug from Margaret

Times News Services

The Liberal party, driven to the brink of defeat in 1972, smashed back Monday with a surprise majority election victory that cut Progressive Conservative strength and left the New Democratic Party battered and adrift with a defeated leader.

Contradicting the pollsters and political analysts, the Liberals scored gains in seven of 10 provinces and gave Prime Minister Trudeau a unique comeback.

No other prime minister ever fell to a minority position in Parliament and won another majority without first being out of office.

The final result:

	1974	1972
Liberals	141	109
Conservatives	95	107
NDP	16	31
Social Credit	11	15
Independent	1	2
Total	264	264

The trend toward the Liberals started with the first returns from Newfoundland, picked up steam with an increased Liberal landslide in Quebec and a majority was indicated when the results flowed in from Ontario, where NDP Leader David Lewis went down to personal defeat in Toronto York South.

But not until final results were reported from British Columbia did the Liberal majority become definite.

The Liberals came into B.C. with 132 candidates elected, one short of a majority of Parliament's 264 seats and went over the top with ease, capturing eight B.C. ridings, doubling their representation.

The Conservatives, who lost in most other provinces, fared better in B.C., climbing to 13 seats, five more than in 1972, while the NDP elected only two MPs, nine less than in the last election.

It was the NDP's lowest representation in the province since 1940, when its forerunner, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, won just a single seat. But B.C. only had 16 ridings in that election.

Voters turned from the NDP across the province, electing Liberals in six ridings the NDP held in the last parliament, and giving the nod to the Conservatives in three long-time NDP strongholds.

The Conservatives also captured two Liberal seats.

Tempering the Liberal jubilation was the defeat of one of B.C.'s two cabinet ministers, Environment Minister Jack Davis, who lost the Vancouver suburban riding of Capilano to Ron Huntington of the Conservatives.

A stunned Paddy Neale says he will ask for a recount in Vancouver East, where he lost to Liberal Art Lee by a slim margin.

Neale's loss was regarded by the NDP as a major loss in the working class riding which, until Monday, had never voted anything but NDP or CCF.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield won personal re-election in Halifax, but disappointment showed on his face when he spoke before television cameras.

He congratulated Conservative candidates and workers but expressed regret at the outcome.

Beaten twice before by Mr. Trudeau — in 1968 and 1972 — the 60-year-old Opposition leader refused to indicate whether he will step down and open the way for a Conservative leadership convention.

Stanfield, daughter: tired and defeated

Gov't For All —PM

Times News Service

OTTAWA — A gracious Prime Minister Trudeau had tributes for everyone last night as he accepted the majority mandate handed to him by the Canadian people.

Trudeau was almost subdued as he and Margaret arrived at the Chateau Laurier hotel to the cheers of hundreds of supporters and admirers.

His only serious regret was that there had not been more Liberals elected in the three Prairie provinces, but he commented, "we will do our best to see that our policies apply fairly to them. We intend to be a government of all the people."

"We have the people, the resources, the vitality and the confidence to get on with the job," he said.

There was a tribute to every other party leader. Conservative leader Robert Stanfield had had a difficult task putting a difficult proposition before the electorate. "I admire his courage," said Trudeau.

There was regret that NDP leader David Lewis had suffered personal defeat, and an offering that "I am sure we have not seen the last of David Lewis."

There were compliments for Creditiste leader Real Caouette for waging a courageous fight although he had been ill before the campaign . . . and for getting "more seats in Quebec than frankly, I thought he would."

The Prime Minister concluded his formal statement with thanks to Margaret for her efforts in the campaign and an observation he was sure she and the children would be glad the campaign was over.

A kiss from Margaret. A kiss for Margaret. And the Prime Minister moved on to receive the plaudits and congratulations of hundreds of supporters gathered in the hotel for a victory party.

TORONTO — Beaten and bewildered, David Lewis indicated Monday he will soon resign his leadership.

B.C. Voters Wanted Majority: Barrett

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The New Democratic Party got whipped in British Columbia because voters wanted a strong majority government, Premier Dave Barrett said Monday night, not because of any backlash against unpopular provincial policies of his government.

"That's an interpretation of some pundits and people in the media," the NDP leader said. "We were placed in the difficult position of sustaining the government while losing our own identity. The party suffered, but it was a wise decision."

He said he was proud of what national party leader David Lewis had done in two years, "forcing the government to implement many of our policies." But he regretted that Lewis was personally defeated in his bid for re-election. "he has been an outstanding parliamentarian," he said.

Asked if he would be a candidate for the national leadership, Barrett replied: "No comment."

"I have a job here."

He said it was too early to see how the federal results would apply to provincial politics, but B.C. opposition party leaders were quick to predict the demise of Barrett and the NDP in the next provincial election, expected by many sometime next year.

"The results in B.C. are directly attributable to the Barrett government," said Social

MISTAKEN FOR ANIMAL, GIRL SHOT BY FARMER

MAYERTHORPE, Alta. (CP) — RCMP said Monday that Judy Ann Kirsch, 15, believed to be of Mayerthorpe, was shot and killed by a farmer who thought he was shooting at a coyote.

Police said the farmer heard his dogs barking and saw movement in a bush near his farmhouse. Having been troubled in the past by coyotes, he shot into the bush with a .22 calibre rifle.

Colwood, Langford Merger Step Closer

Municipal status for Colwood, Langford and View Royal is a step closer following a meeting today between Greater Victoria municipal representatives and Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer.

Lorimer said the seven mayors, three regional representatives and regional district chairman Jim Campbell, who attended the meeting, were opposed to any other changes in the Greater Victoria municipal boundaries.

The minister said, as far as he was concerned, the issue of other amalgamations is "dormant".

He said further meetings will be held on the subject of "some sort of municipal status" for the three outlying areas. A great deal of in-depth study of the areas and their tax bases will be needed, he said.

Asked if the government would campaign for the new status, Lorimer said there would be "a good campaign" but he denied the government had already made the decision to amalgamate the areas.

Jobless Rate Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment rate fell to 4.9 per cent in June, its lowest level in more than four years, Statistics Canada reported today.

Jobless rates and employment levels showed the best improvements on the Prairies while a double-digit unemployment rate remained only in the Atlantic region.

The June drop in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment level was a whopping six-tenths of a percentage point. There has not been an improvement that large in one month since October, 1966.

Regionally, the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were 10.3 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, 6.4 per cent in Quebec, 3.6 per cent in Ontario, 2.7 per cent in the Prairie provinces and 5.3 per cent in British Columbia.

There was a sharp drop in the level of unemployed under 25 — down to 8.4 per cent from 9.7 per cent seasonally adjusted.

The number of persons employed declined last month, ending a seven-month string of increases, and the upward trend was resumed in June.

Crofton Faces Total Shutdown

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Crofton pulp mill will be shut down Wednesday morning.

A brief statement issued by Local 2 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada said it has "approved recommendations of the joint pulp and paper caucus in Vancouver.

"Management has been advised that all services are being withdrawn as of 8 o'clock (a.m.,) July 10 at the Crofton pulp mill. This action is in support of the joint caucus refusal to accept splitting of the trades rates which have been a standard rate for nearly 20 years."

There were unconfirmed reports late this morning that similar action will be taken against the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo and the Port Alberni pulp and newsprint mill.

Although Crofton Local 2 does not represent papermakers at the newsprint mill, its members do maintenance work in both the pulp and newsprint operations. The mill employs 700.

Pat O'Neal, regional vice-president of the United Paperworkers International Union, declined comment on the "recommendations" referred to by the Crofton union.

The joint caucus involves both the PPWC and UPIU and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and Office and Technical Employees Union at Port Alberni.

"But there is a great deal of unrest among our mechanics," O'Neal said.

"They are unhappy because the industry is seeking to impose the IWA philosophy of grouping mechanics rather than a standard rate.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the pulp and paper companies, said Monday it is "reluctantly" seeking provincial government intervention by asking Labor Minister Bill King to appoint an industrial inquiry commissioner to investigate the relationship between tradesmen's rates in the pulp-paper industry and the woodworking industry.

The pulp and paper unions have complained that the traditional difference in tradesmen's rates in their favor has been wiped out. They want a differential maintained between their part of the industry and the woodworking side.

Mid-contract talks recently in Vancouver between the pulp and paper unions and the companies failed to resolve anything.

"With the threat of mill closures we feel the only solution in our interest and that of the public is to apply for a third party," said Don Lanskail, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau.

Park-and-Ride for Civil Servants

A park-and-ride service for provincial government employees will begin this fall, enabling the government to eliminate several hundred parking spaces in the legislative precinct and free the land for new development.

A brief outline of how the system will work was given to city council's Central Business District Advisory Committee Monday by Ald. Sam Bawlf.

A "fringe" parking area will be established on the northern perimeter of downtown where government workers can leave their cars during the day, Bawlf said.

They will be taken to and from work by shuttle buses, which initially will be normal buses but later may be some form of multi-unit "people mover."

Bawlf indicated the government's long-term aim is to eliminate 1,000 parking spaces around the Legislative Buildings, and the first step, with the introduction of the park-and-ride service this fall, should achieve at least half that reduction.

Although the parking facilities will be only for government employees, he said, the shuttle buses will operate at 10-minute intervals throughout the day and carry other passengers during off-peak hours.

The long-range plan is to establish permanent parking facilities even farther out, in Saanich, and as soon as the shuttle service is operating from there the northern-downtown location will be turned over entirely to public use, he said.

"It's a very exciting prospect," he added. "To the extent that we can remove commuter traffic we shall have created tremendous capacity for new business downtown."

Eaton's manager Reg Hind said the site of the fringe parking area is vital, as locating it too far out would tend to create a "whole new commercial area" and pull people away from downtown.

Bawlf assured Hind the city is sensitive to that possibility and has insisted the parking be within the northern downtown boundaries.

On another aspect of traffic and parking policy, Lloyd Davies, president of the Downtown Business Association, told Bawlf association members are "diametrically opposed" to the proposal to double parking meter rates, which comes before council for approval later this week.

"This is another thing that's likely to drive people to the (suburban) shopping centres," he said. "We must remain competitive downtown."

Davies said when the city first introduced parking meters in 1947 it did so as a traffic control measure and not for any revenue gain. "But now it looks as if you are raising the rates for extra revenue."

Bawlf asked him to present a report on the matter for consideration at the committee's next monthly meeting.

Grits Gain East

Prime Minister Trudeau, who received a massive personal majority in Montreal Mount Royal, said Canada elected a strong government in uncertain times and had shown confidence in the future.

There were indications during the campaign that Mr. Lewis planned to retire in the near future.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, who campaigned under predictions that his party was collapsing, won re-election in his Quebec riding of Temiscamingue and saw his party hold all but three of the 15 seats it won in 1972.

But Social Credit candidates again failed to make a breakthrough outside the party's Quebec power base.

All three gains were from Social Credit.

The Conservatives increased their Quebec popular vote but won only three ridings, the number they had when Parliament was dissolved May 9.

In Ontario, the Liberals won 55 of 88 seats, taking three from the NDP and wiping out seat after seat won by the Conservatives in 1972. The Conservatives dropped to 25 seats from 40 in Ontario, losing heavily in Toronto-area ridings and giving up some seats in traditionally-strong Conservative rural ridings.

The Liberals held the two Manitoba seats they had at dissolution, with Defence Minister James Richardson taking Winnipeg South and Joseph Guay retaining St. Boniface. The lone change came in Selkirk where New Democrat Doug Rowland, considered a potential leadership candidate, was defeated by a Conservative.

The Liberals gained two in Saskatchewan, taking Assiniboia from New Democrat Bill Knight and Battleford-Kindersley from Conservative Norval Horner, brother of maverick Alberta Conservative Jack Horner who won another landslide victory in Crowfoot.

The Conservatives again swept all 19 Alberta seats, thwarting all Liberal attempts in the energy-rich province that often has clashed with Ottawa over federal oil policies.

Wally Firth, the first Metis MP from the North, retained the Northwest Territories for the NDP while veteran Conservative Erik Nielsen was returned in the Yukon. They hold the only two seats in the territories.

The outcome narrowed slightly the regional party divisions across the country but made no major changes.

The Liberals remain dominant in Quebec but weak in the Prairies, while the Conservatives hold strength in all parts of English Canada but have slim representation from French Canada.

The NDP had only one bright moment Monday night. Popular Roman Catholic priest Andy Hogan won Cape Breton-East Richmond, the first NDP win east of Ontario since 1962.

It was only the third July election since Confederation — the others were in 1872 and 1930 — and the turnout appeared to be affected by the increased number of people kept from the polls by summer vacations and generally bright sunny weather across the country.

With 97.1 per cent of the vote reported, the vote total was 9,194,808 compared with 9,667,449 in 1972 when 74.3 per cent of eligible voters cast ballots. There were 13.45 million eligible voters Monday compared with 13,000,778 in 1972.

The election Monday was the second federal vote in which 18-year-olds were eligible to cast ballots. In 1968, when the voting age was 21, there were 10,860,888 eligible voters.

Only one Independent candidate was elected Monday — former mayor Leonard Jones of Moncton. He scored a clear-cut win over four other opponents in the New Brunswick riding of Moncton where he was nominated initially as the Conservative candidate and was rejected by Stanfield because of his opposition to the Official Languages Act.

The outcome gave Prime Minister Trudeau a clear mandate to cope with inflation without resorting to prices and incomes controls—the main anti-inflation proposal put forward by Stanfield. Inflation was the central issue of the campaign, which started soon after the government was defeated May 8 in the Commons.

Trudeau argued the best way to cope with inflation is to increase supply and to assist low-income and fixed-income wage earners, those least able to absorb price increases. He has promised to re-introduce the budget which led to the fall of his government. This likely will be when Parliament next sits, possibly next month.

Stanfield, despite opposition by some members of his party, proposed a 90-day incomes and prices freeze to be followed by an 18-month to two-year period of flexible controls.

The election was fought less than a month before new election expenses legislation takes effect. It will limit the amounts that individual candidates and parties can spend, and force public disclosure of all campaign donations over $100.

The legislation was passed in January but not enough time was available to put it into operation for the election Monday. It is scheduled to become law Aug. 1.

Figures have not been tabulated, but both the Liberals and Conservatives are expected to exceed the $5.3 million and $3.9 million they spent respectively on the 1972 election.

Mr. Lewis estimated the NDP budget for the Monday election at about $400,000 for the national NDP campaign. Individual ridings raise and control all money spent locally for NDP candidates.

MY GOSH, it happened, NDP leader David Lewis told reporters as it was announced he had lost personal re-election in York South. His wife Sophie was with him when the results were disclosed.

Premier Quits

LISBON (UPI) — Premier Adelino da Palma Carlos presented his resignation to President Antonio de Sponla today, officials of the premier's office said, and several other cabinet ministers were expected to submit their resignations shortly over disagreements within the cabinet.

Leaders

told about 200 campaign workers he does not favor asking a victorious candidate to resign his seat, but the matter will be discussed with party officials.

"It may be that I won't have to worry about retiring," he said. "The electors of South York may have retired me.

"... Whether or not — staying as leader is something I will have to discuss with others. My own inclinations is to say let someone else have it.

"My work in the party has not been merely as an MP. I've done in it other capacities and no doubt I will do it in other capacities in the future. But I was quite frank with you when I said my retreat may have been decided by this election."

It was all over for the 65-year-old labor lawyer about 90 minutes after balloting ended.

"I'm naturally disappointed," he said. "No one can help feeling disappointed. I was also very surprised because all the canvassing showed that we were winning. And all of the workers expected us to win. But that's what politics is all about."

HALIFAX — Tory leader Robert Stanfield blamed Ontario Monday for his defeat at the polls but refused to consider whether he will resign as party leader following the Liberal victory.

Stanfield, at a press conference in his hometown riding, appeared tired but in good humor despite the resounding defeat which he suffered in the election.

He admitted his campaign for price and income control did not appear to have sold voters, particularly in Ontario.

He suggested that voters in that province did not think that a Conservative government had a chance of forming a majority to bring those controls into effect.

"May be the people of Ontario felt that the important aspect of controlling inflation was to have someone with the position of a majority," he said.

The Conservative leader's headquarters here were jammed with enthusiastic supporters when the polls closed but were soon emptied as the returns came in.

It was a scant hour later that tabulations showed Stanfield was losing ground in his own region.

Tory organizers were not too surprised by the Quebec results, but when the Ontario reports came they knew it was all up.

Stanfield said he would not discuss the question until he had an opportunity to talk to his caucus and party officials.

He noted that the Conservative constitution, as amended this year, provides for an automatic review of the leadership each year.

Stanfield said he regrets the personal defeat of NDP leader David Lewis in York South and stated that "Parliament will be the poorer" because of his defeat.

He said he accepts the results of Monday's vote but added that his party will continue to fight in Parliament on issues as it sees them.

He denied that the results of the vote indicated simply that Canadians rejected his campaign for price and income controls.

Discussing the reason for his defeat, he said: "Clearly it was the province of Ontario."

Barrett's Excuse

Credit leader Bill Bennett. "If he believes in the will of the people, he will call an immediate election to clear the air. His defeat is now pre-ordained."

Liberal leader David Anderson was jubiliant about the party's win.

"The prime minister had a very deserved win and a necessary one. He's done a great job, he's the best leader in the western world."

The fact that Liberals picked off "absolute NDP strongholds" in Vancouver and Skeena showed the backlash against Barrett, he added.

It showed the Liberal party can take votes from the NDP, he said, although it didn't sweep the province "because we didn't have the organizational strength."

Conservative leader Scott Wallace said he's disappointed about the national results, but extremely happy about the way B.C. turned out. He said the Conservatives will want to review Robert Stanfield's leadership but added:

"It's premature and unfair on election night to say the leader's finished."

Barrett said the outcome indicates general dissatisfaction with political structures.

"In terms of my own party, no one should be downhearted with the results. Our party has always gone up and down but we've always existed. We have never been out of the idealism and energy in Canadian politics."

The list of fallen NDP candidates was shocking.

Agriculture critic Mark Rose, touted here as one of the party's brightest MPs, lost in Fraser Valley West, environment critic Ray Hardman, the traditional NDP MP for Kootenay West, union-st Paddy Neale lost Vancouver East, a riding which had been solid NDP or CCF throughout its history, and Frank Howard, who had represented the northern riding of Skeena since 1957, lost to Liberal Iona Campagnola.

Skeena hadn't elected a Liberal since 1953.

Even the NDP victories were less than awesome. Tommy Douglas, the former national leader, saw his 1972 plurality of more than 15,000 votes cut to about 2,000. Stuart Leggatt held New Westminster, but not before a tight struggle with Margaret Gregory of the Conservatives.

Reprisal Raids Vowed For Israeli Strikes

Times News Services

Palestinian guerrillas vowed today to launch a new round of reprisal raids in retaliation for Israel's lightning naval strikes against Lebanon's Mediterranean coast.

The Israeli navy Monday night shelled three ports in southern Lebanon, sinking more than a score of fishing boats in retaliation for the Palestinian guerrillas raid by sea two weeks ago on Nahariya.

The Israeli military command said it had "numerous indications" that the terrorists were preparing more seaborne attacks. The command said its raid on the ports was intended to "disrupt the preparations and warn against the use of these harbors" by the guerrillas.

Israel said the attack was "limited in scope," and every attempt was made to avoid injuries to civilians. The Lebanese government reported one casualty, a civilian wounded by an explosion in Sidon.

"The Palestinian revolution will reply to the Israeli attack by attacks on Israeli targets from inside our occupied lands," a guerrillas news agency said in Beirut.

Officials in Beirut and Tel Aviv issued conflicting reports on the raids, which broke a three-week lull in the escalating war of strikes and counter-strikes along the uneasy Israeli-Lebanese front.

Israeli military sources said naval commandos sank an estimated 30 vessels at the ports of Tyre, Sidon and Ras-el-Sheik in southern Lebanon to forestall future guerrilla attacks from the sea.

"It was more of a warning than anything because we saw that preparations were underway for an assault," the Tel Aviv sources said.

SAANICH HOME ISOLATED BY APARTMENT ZONING

Construction of two 49-unit apartment buildings on McKenzie was approved at a Saanich public hearing Monday, isolating a single-family home between the two buildings.

Residents, who opposed the zoning were told by Ald. Mel Couvelier that those living near the Quadra-McKenzie intersection must "reconcile themselves to mounting development pressures".

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Green, 1008 McKenzie, will be jammed between the two buildings, one of which is to be built on 1.14 acres at 1002 McKenzie.

The other is planned for lots at 1010, 1012 and 1014 McKenzie and 4010 Quadra. Original plans for the block, to be developed by Wes Bentley, had called for 69 units, this had been rejected by council and the new 49-unit proposal prepared.

Green said the top floor of one of the apartments "will be looking onto my sundeck, invading my privacy and obstructing my view."

He said he would be "sitting in the middle now".

Couvelier told Green he was in this position because he had chosen not to sell to one of the developers.

Couvelier said study made by Saanich in 1969 had recommended apartments for the area.

Saanich residents, Couvelier said they could not "allow spot" zoning of injudicious land use."

Gas Stations Facing Curbs

Saanich council took a step Monday toward controlling the spread of new service stations.

It rezoned two vacant lots owned by B.A. Oil at the corner of Cordova Bay and Blenkinsop back from service station commercial to rural classiffcation.

It decided, however, to delay rezoning property owned by Home Oil Distributors Ltd. at the north corner of Shelbourne and Feltham, back from service station commercial to single-family dwelling after a company official appealed at the public hearing to have action frozen for at least two years.

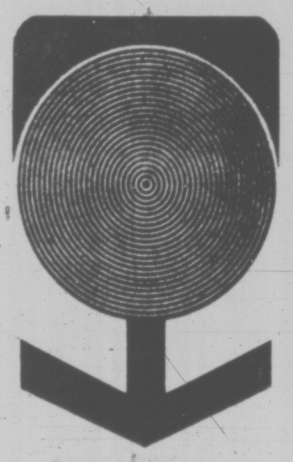
"The municipality is saturated with gas stations," Mayor Ed Lum said, "Most of the ones we do have are having a very tough time."

John Anderson of 4672 Blenkinsop told the council he had counted 13 service stations within a 3½-mile radius of his area.

The Home Oil spokesman said his company had owned the Shelbourne-Feltham site since 1958, adding "due to production and manufacturing problems we can't assure council of immediate development."

He urged delay of rezoning for at least two years, stating further outlets in Saanich were essential for his company's growth.

"I don't know that the company could be very seriously hurt," Ald. Les Passmore commented, "It's been 16 years and it can't make up its mind. It's been given a lot of latitude."



Here is today's tourist alert list issued by the RCMP.

PERIODIC CHECKS on truck tires run at speeds up to 50 miles per hour for three days are made in Goodyear's Toronto plant using a giant wheel called a resiliometer. Heat is one of the major factors in tire failure, so tires in the plant are subjected to heat above 200 degrees to test their durability.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flax and rapeseed moved higher while rye declined in moderate activity today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Flax prices advanced about 20 cents for the second straight day. Most rapeseed futures were up several cents after a retreat from the day's highs. Losses in rye wiped out Monday's gains, and declines were near the 15-cent limit.

Monday's volume of trade was 840,000 bushels of rye, 204,000 of flax and 2,465,000 of rapeseed.

Smooth, Board-Room Efficiency

Preceded Predictable Outcome

National Result Tempers Win By McKinnon

McKinnon shares his second victory with wife

SECOND SECTION

The mayor of Oak Bay, the immediate ex-mayor of Oak Bay and the acting mayor of Victoria were all, at various times Monday night, crammed with about 50 other people into a small, steamy room on Vancouver Street.

But their presence had nothing whatever to do with municipal matters.

Frances Elford, the ex-mayor, was there as the losing Liberal candidate in the Victoria riding, politely offering congratulations to her election-day victor, Progressive Conservative Allan McKinnon.

And Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith and Victoria's acting mayor, Ald. Alf Hood, were there — in a gathering alternately wall-to-wall smiles as McKinnon's results filtered through and glum as the Tories' national failure became ever more clear — as loyal McKinnon supporters.

But Elford didn't have the galling experience of meeting her federal conqueror while the winner of the municipal battle only eight months previously looked on: Smith departed about 15 minutes before she arrived at McKinnon's headquarters shortly after 9 p.m. to concede.

For McKinnon, the retired army major and former chairman of Greater Victoria school board, the election went through with all the smooth efficiency of an army manoeuvre or a routine board meeting. No fuss, no suspense, only subdued excitement and an outcome that was oh-so-predictable less than half an hour after the polls closed.

Final voting figures returned the Conservative incumbent with 26,690 votes, nearly 12,300 ahead of Elford's 14,460 total. Limping a long way behind, and confounding the pundits who had predicted a strong thrust from the left, came the NDP's Peter James with 7,078.

David Danielson, the Marxist-Leninist candidate, from somewhere pulled out a surprising 231 votes, in a riding not noted for revolutionary tendencies.

McKinnon added nearly 2,000 votes to his 1972 federal election majority, while the NDP, which on that occasion ran the Liberals a close third, this time saw its tally slump to only about half the Liberal vote.

Easing briefly out of the hand-shaking, backslapping melee to talk to reporters, McKinnon admitted his own satisfaction was sobered by the disappointing performance of his party across the country.

"The prices and incomes policy was a wonderful policy but it was not a good plank in our platform," he said.

"It was the only way we could approach this problem but apparently it was not viable to the lectorate of eastern Canada. Toronto and Quebec turned us down again."

McKinnon insisted the Conservatives knew the price and wage control policy would not be a popular one, but pushed it because they knew it was necessary.

"Unfortunately it was an easy policy to sloganeer against," he added. "The Liberals, and to a lesser degree the NDP, were saying 'Prices are high, let's freeze wages — that's what the Tories want to do.'

"It was a slick slogan and it sold easily."

McKinnon explained his Victoria success by theorizing that the policy was an acceptable one to this riding's many people on fixed incomes.

Elford agreed with McKinnon's theory concerning Victoria's fixed-income voters, adding: "Obviously a lot of these people believe that wage and price controls will solve all their problems, but a lot of others didn't buy that."

The NDP's Peter James denied that his own result reflected any anti-NDP backlash provincially.

"There's one thing I've learned — you can't translate votes federally to votes provincially," he said.

Munro Felt 'Great' Locally

Esquimalt-Saanich PC Beats Liberal by 10,000 Votes

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Conservative Don Munro felt "great" locally, but was "sickened" nationally as he swept to victory in Esquimalt-Saanich while watching his party lose its chance of governing the country.

Conservative supporters jammed into Munro's small cement-floored headquarters on McKenzie, their cheers for the local candidate offset by the beating the Tories took nationally.

A bitter Munro told reporters he felt that what leader Robert Stanfield had to say was stronger than the Canadian people were prepared to take.

"But they're going to have to take it from the Liberals; they'll just ram it down their throats."

Munro said the Canadian people would feel the effects of the Liberal victory by the end of the year, but said he intended to go on representing his constituents as best he could.

The traditionally Conservative riding didn't change its voting habits this year. As the first poll results came into the returning office, Munro took a good lead and never lost it, beating his closest competitor, Liberal Don Joy, by more than 10,000 votes.

Munro won all but four of the 313 polls, with Joy taking three and New Democrat Peter Smart winning one.

Feelings in the Liberal headquarters were exactly the opposite. Supporters sat glued to the television set and watched their party claim majority in the House, but saw their chances for a local victory slip quickly away.

Joy said his first try at federal politics had been "exciting" and said he would become more involved with the Liberal party in the four years before the next election.

"I think the people rejected the Liberals locally because they haven't solved inflation and they just felt they should give the Conservatives a chance to see what they can do.

"It's a pity that so many of the young people involved for the first time in our campaign here had to face defeat," Joy said.

The atmosphere at the election night headquarters of the NDP ran to despondency over the local defeat, the national losses and the defeat of leader David Lewis in his own riding.

Candidate Peter Smart, who ran a poor third in Esquimalt-Saanich, pleaded with his supporters not to give up.

"In a democracy, we have to accept defeat. I've just been down to wish Munro well, but I have to tell you that we're never going to stop trying.

"We'll lick our wounds tomorrow and then the next day we'll start working for the next election.

"We're not going to waste this experience."

No Tory Travels Unprepared

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

An NDP campaign poster "one-quarter-mile too close to a Metchosin polling station for Conservative tastes" prompted an election scrutineer to take politics into her own hands Monday.

Shirley Wilde, 3758 Duke, "wouldn't think of travelling unprepared — no Conservative would," so when she saw the Tommy Douglas sign peering across to the St. Mary's Church poll from an NDP supporter's lawn, she decided to make the "right winger" position clear to voters.

WILDE
. . . sensitive scrutineer

A political haggle ensued as neighboring NDP supporters took up the cause against the Conservative standpoint.

"But I wanted the NDP sign down," said Mrs. Wilde. "There's supposed to be no campaign literature in the immediate area of a polling station, but the (Canada Election) Act no longer says anything about signs in cars.

"And when they took the sign down, I decided to show them what a good sport a right winger really is, so I moved my car."

Alfost overlooked, however, the Colwood RCMP visit to the site, which assisted, everyone agreed, in nudging politics back on the right track.

Asked about the incident a Colwood RCMP spokesman yawned.

"We've had about 50 calls today by people with petty complaints — from the NDP, the Conservatives, then the Liberals — all claiming the other is illegally electioneering."

Returning officer for the Nanaimo-Cowichan and The Islands riding Frank Crane, spent a good majority of election day checking out reports of similar electioneering throughout the riding.

Most interesting incident, he said, was the campaigning practices of one individual charged in Duncan.

The man had few discriminating political views — "he's been taking political signs from every party.

Ask the Times

Q. Before they left Victoria on the Victoria-Maui yacht race I was talking to a couple of men who are crewing in a Seattle boat. They told me the waves get pretty high in the Pacific. What would be the highest they get?

A. The highest recorded wave in the Pacific was 112 feet from trough to crest — fortunately, for the Maui racers it doesn't happen often! The wave was measured in February 1933 during 68-knot gale by Lieut. Frederick Margraf, USN, from the USS Ramapo, which was on her way from the Philippines to San Diego.

CITY BOY SAVED FROM CLIFF EDGE

A 13-year-old Victoria boy was rescued unhurt Monday night after being stranded for more than an hour on a tiny ledge of a 300-foot cliff in Kelowna.

Kelowna deputy fire chief Jack Roberts said today two firemen descended by ropes to pluck Craig Wagner, from the ledge.

The boy, on holiday in Kelowna with his family, had slipped while climbing along the top edge of the cliff which borders the Kelowna Golf and Country Club about one mile from the city centre.

He fell 40 feet down a crevice to a four-foot wide ledge, Roberts said.

Roberts said firemen first had to descend a 250-foot shale slope, using ropes, in order to get to the cliff edge.

The boy reached safety at 7:45 p.m., about an hour after the rescue operation started.

"He wasn't scared at all . . . in fact he was as calm as can be," Roberts said. "His father, who was waiting below, told me the boy had absolutely no fear of heights at all."

The cliff is the scene of numerous rescue operations each year, Roberts said.

Saanich Throws Out Townhouse Proposal

Sixty-five University Heights residents turned out at a Saanich public hearing Monday to help defeat a bid to build 20 townhouses on a 1.98-acre lot on McKenzie, just east of Oakwinds.

He was referring to Dr. Roy Sutherland of Oakdale Estates, who with J. McLaren Construction Ltd. intended to build townhouses of 1,200 square feet (600 feet on each of two storeys) for a selling price of $38,000.

Callander and several others complained that when Sutherland sold them lots in his subdivision he insisted on covenants being signed in the bills of sale which stipulated the houses would be for single families only.

Michael Drinkwater of 3957 Long Gun Place said it was a "deliberate breach of trust" on Sutherland's part, saying the townhouse project was a "cheap-looking excuse for low-cost housing."

Ald. Les Passmore was cheered as he moved the project be rejected. After remarking dryly, "It just goes to show you're a bum one minute and a hero the next," Passmore said that by making buyers sign the covenants "he (Sutherland) intimated it would be single-family zoning throughout all his property."

Ald. Bill Campbell agreed, as did Mayor Ed Lum, who said he was also voting against the project because the acreage was very low and would be hard to drain.

Alds. Joe Bourque and 'Sandy' Noel were the only aldermen who favored the rezoning.

Bourque agreed with builder Chris Pike, who had told the residents to forbid anything but single-family houses in the area was to "lock out all young people" who cannot afford to buy homes that have become overly expensive through the inflation spiral.

Bourque said he lived in an area of Saanich similar to University Heights and he would not oppose townhouses where he lived if they were "tastefully done."

Passmore's move to reject held, with Ald. Mel Couvelier supporting it because of the traffic problems the density would produce.

Elk Lodges to Handle Lottery

Tickets for the first lottery to be held Oct. 23 will go on sale July 15.

Greater Victoria Elks spokesman Doug Wilson said organizations wishing to sell tickets should contact the lodge at 384-4413.

The Elks were chosen by the provincial government because their lodges are evenly distributed throughout the province, he said.

Tickets are $2.50 each and will be available by Friday. They qualify the buyer for a chance to win the $250,000 first prize. There will be four draws a year, with prizes in each draw totalling $750,000.

Each book of 12 tickets is worth $30, of which $20 will be used for lottery prizes and recreation in the four sponsoring Western provinces.

The organization selling the ticket will get $5 and the other $5 will be paid to the Elks for expenses incurred while administering the selling of tickets.

Wilson said the $5 to be paid to the Elks will finance the Elk Haven on Denman Island which offers weekly accommodation during the summer for handicapped children.

He said the Elks have already received "an amazing number of inquiries" by local organizations interested in selling the tickets, and he predicts the lottery will be the biggest in the country.

'Williams Way' Next?

Two of Victoria's most important waterfront amenity areas are inappropriately named — a downtown merchant complained Monday.

How much longer, asked Lloyd Davies, are city council and everyone else going to keep on calling the two areas the Ocean Cement site and the Reid Centre when they have ceased to have any connection with a cement works and a Vancouver developer?

A fellow member of the Central Business District Advisory Committee said the correct name for the Ocean Cement site is Churchill Point, and committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf joked that he was tempted to suggest the name "Williams Way" for the Reid site.

From their laughter, committee members obviously needed no explanation that the joke referred to Resources Minister Bob Williams, who spearheaded the provincial government's purchase of the Reid property after placing a development freeze on it as well as other Wharf Street waterfront areas.

IWA Talks To Minister

Labor Minister Bill King met negotiators for the International Woodworkers of America this afternoon to discuss the labor-management impasse in the coast forest industry.

The full nine-member IWA coast negotiating committee, headed by regional president Jack Munro, declined comment as it headed into the meeting.

Half the 32,000 coast loggers and millworkers remained off work again today, nearly all of them on Vancouver Island. But all major operations in Greater Victoria continued except Sooke Forest Products.

Munro has urged union members to stay at work and a special conference of local union delegates has been scheduled for Friday in Vancouver to decide what the union will do.

Members voted by a slim margin to reject a tentative agreement with Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agency for 120 companies. However, no official strike has been called except by two locals, Port Alberni and the loggers Local 1-71.

Bottle Beer Again Flows

Bottled beer will begin to flow again in B.C. hotel beer parlors — but at a reduced rate.

The B.C. Liquor Administration Board will allow vendors to meet orders up to 40 per cent of normal, a spokesman said today.

College Looking At Kindergarten

The former Jiminy Crickets Kindergarten may become part of Camosun College, if the college council approves leasing of the building at 3410 Shelbourne.

Council meets Wednesday to act on the recommendation by college administrators that the building be leased three years beginning Sept. 1.

The building will be used for some upgrading classes and for classes in painting, sculpture, design and other art programs, bursar Dean Winram said today.

New owner Germaine Vivian, who bought the building from Alf Petterson when Pettersen announced his kindergarten would close, has promised to make about $40,000 worth of renovations for the college, Winram said.

Growing enrolments, new programs and the need to expand the college library on the Lansdowne campus have prompted Camosun to start renting classroom space around the community, such as in Bastion Square and in the Victoria Press building.

ROAD CLOSING AT COLLINSON

The Blanshard-Collinson-McClure intersection will be closed to all traffic for three to four months starting at 9 a.m. Wednesday, while construction proceeds on the city's latest major road improvement scheme.

To handle the increased traffic expected on Humboldt Street, temporary traffic lights will be installed at the Humboldt-Rupert intersection, working on a standard stop-go operation from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

During the remainder of the day the lights will work on a flashing basis, showing amber to Rupert and red to Humboldt.

Beaver to Open First City Store

erected by Dominion Construction Ltd. between Zellers and the European Health Spa and leased by Beaver.

Sod turning will be in September and the store is scheduled to open in January.

The 35,000 square foot store will employ about 60 people, most of them part-time workers.

Beaver Lumber has expanded from a small company to 220 outlets in the two years since it was purchased by the Molson brewing interests.

Headquarters for Beaver Lumber is Winnipeg.

Search Intensifies For 4 Fliers

Headquarters are being set up in Penticton in a search for four youths missing aboard a twin-engine plane in the Grand Forks area since Sunday.

A Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman in Victoria said 18-year-old pilot Victor Engstrom of Prince George had filed a flight plan from Grand Forks to Vancouver "but apparently didn't follow the plan on that particular day."

Also aboard the plane are Engstrom's 19-year-old sister and 14-year-old brother, and a friend, Allan Warren, 20, all of Prince George.

100 Dogs Expected For Show

More than 100 dogs are expected at a sanction match, to be held by the Victoria City Kennel Club on the holly farm of Ron Nutter at 1565 Mount Douglas Cross Road Sunday.

Entries will be taken from 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

Junior handling competition will take place at noon. Dogs will have to be entered in at least one more class. The judge will be Margaret Best of Cowichan Station, who will also judge the sporting group.

Lynda McCoy of Duncan will judge the toy and working group while Sheilah Roberts of Cobble Hill will judge the terrier, non-sporting and hound groups.

Trudeau Wins Majority With Gains in Ontario

For Pierre, a victory hug from Margaret

Times News Services

The Liberal party, driven to the brink of defeat in 1972, smashed back Monday with a surprise majority election victory that cut Progressive Conservative strength and left the New Democratic Party battered and adrift with a defeated leader.

Contradicting the pollsters and political analysts, the Liberals scored gains in seven of 10 provinces and gave Prime Minister Trudeau a unique comeback.

No other prime minister ever fell to a minority position in Parliament and won another majority without first being out of office.

The final result:

	1974	1972
Liberals	141	109
Conservatives	95	107
NDP	16	31
Social Credit	11	15
Independent	1	2
Total	264	264

The trend toward the Liberals started with the first returns from Newfoundland, picked up steam with an increased Liberal landslide in Quebec and a majority was indicated when the results flowed in from Ontario, where NDP Leader David Lewis went down to personal defeat in Toronto York South.

But not until final results were reported from British Columbia did the Liberal majority become definite.

The Liberals came into B.C. with 132 candidates elected, one short of a majority of Parliament's 264 seats and went over the top with ease, capturing eight B.C. ridings, doubling their representation.

The Conservatives, who lost in most other provinces, fared better in B.C., climbing to 13 seats, five more than in 1972, while the NDP elected only two MPs, nine less than in the last election.

It was the NDP's lowest representation in the province since 1940, when its forerunner, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, won just a single seat. But B.C. only had 16 ridings in that election.

Voters turned from the NDP across the province, electing Liberals in six ridings the NDP held in the last parliament, and giving the nod to the Conservatives in three long-time NDP strongholds.

The Conservatives also captured two Liberal seats.

Tempering the Liberal jubilation was the defeat of one of B.C.'s two cabinet ministers, Environment Minister Jack Davis, who lost the Vancouver suburban riding of Capilano to Ron Huntington of the Conservatives.

A stunned Paddy Neale says he will ask for a recount in Vancouver East, where he lost to Liberal Art Lee by a slim margin.

Neale's loss was regarded by the NDP as a major loss in the working class riding which, until Monday, had never voted anything but NDP or CCF.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield won personal re-election in Halifax, but disappointment showed on his face when he spoke before television cameras.

He congratulated Conservative candidates and workers but expressed regret at the outcome.

Beaten twice before by Mr. Trudeau — in 1968 and 1972 — the 60-year-old Opposition leader refused to indicate whether he will step down and open the way for a Conservative leadership convention.

Stanfield, daughter: tired and defeated

Gov't For All —PM

Times News Service

OTTAWA — A gracious Prime Minister Trudeau had tributes for everyone last night as he accepted the majority mandate handed to him by the Canadian people.

Trudeau was almost subdued as he and Margaret arrived at the Chateau Laurier hotel to the cheers of hundreds of supporters and admirers.

His only serious regret was that there had not been more Liberals elected in the three Prairie provinces, but he commented, "we will do our best to see that our policies apply fairly to them. We intend to be a government of all the people."

"We have the people, the resources, the vitality and the confidence to get on with the job," he said.

There was a tribute to every other party leader. Conservative leader Robert Stanfield had had a difficult task — putting a difficult proposition before the electorate. "I admire his courage," said Trudeau.

There was regret that NDP leader David Lewis had suffered personal defeat, and an offering that "I am sure we have not seen the last of David Lewis."

There were compliments for Creditiste leader Real Caouette for waging a courageous fight although he had been ill before the campaign . . . and for getting "more seats in Quebec than frankly I thought he would."

The Prime Minister concluded his formal statement with thanks to Margaret for her efforts in the campaign and an observation he was sure she and the children would be glad the campaign was over.

A kiss from Margaret. A kiss for Margaret. And the Prime Minister moved on to receive the plaudits and congratulations of hundreds of supporters gathered in the hotel for a victory party.

TORONTO — Beaten and bewildered, David Lewis indicated Monday he will soon resign his leadership.

Unity Party in Month Claims Liberal MLA

A Liberal MLA said today an announcement will likely be made within 30 days on the formation of a new non-socialist unity party in British Columbia.

Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said an organization has been operating actively throughout the province the last three months and he is optimistic an announcement will be made shortly.

The organization has no ties with the Majority Movement, he said, and has been operating on the local level with people who are now members of the Liberal Social Credit and Conservative parties.

He would not reveal the names of people involved or the number who have joined the movement.

Williams said he will join the party when it is formed and he expects three other MLAs, who have publicly committed themselves to join a unity party, will also join.

Those MLAs are Conservative leader Scott Wallace, Hugh Curtis (PC-Saanich and the Islands) and fellow Liberal Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey).

Williams said "I hope by October many members including some Social Credit, will have joined."

Both Curtis and Wallace said today they knew nothing of any timetable for formation of the party and said none of the four MLAs have formally agreed to form a new party.

Crofton Faces Total Shutdown

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Crofton pulp mill will be shut down Wednesday morning.

A brief statement issued by Local 2 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada said it has "approved recommendations of the joint pulp and paper caucus in Vancouver.

"Management has been advised that all services are being withdrawn as of 8 o'clock (a.m.,) July 10 at the Crofton pulp mill. This action is in support of the joint caucus refusal to accept splitting of the trades rates which have been a standard rate for nearly 20 years."

There were unconfirmed reports late this morning that similar action will be taken against the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo and the Port Alberni pulp and newsprint mill.

Although Crofton Local 2 does not represent papermakers at the newsprint mill, its members do maintenance work in both the pulp and newsprint operations. The mill employs over 850.

Pat O'Neal, regional vice-president of the United Paperworkers International Union, declined comment on the "recommendations" referred to by the Crofton union.

The joint caucus involves both the PPWC and UPIU and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and Office and Technical Employees Union at Port Alberni.

"But there is a great deal of unrest among our mechanics," O'Neal said.

"They are unhappy because the industry is seeking to impose the IWA philosophy of grouping mechanics rather than a standard rate.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the pulp and paper companies, said Monday it is "reluctantly" seeking provincial government intervention by asking Labor Minister Bill King to appoint an industrial inquiry commissioner to investigate the relationship between tradesmen's rates in the pulp-paper industry and the woodworking industry.

The pulp and paper unions have complained that the traditional difference in tradesmen's rates in their favor has been wiped out. They want a differential maintained between their part of the industry and the woodworking side.

Mid-contract talks recently in Vancouver between the pulp and paper unions and the companies failed to resolve anything.

"With the threat of mill closures we feel the only solution in our interest and that of the public is to apply for a third party," said Don Lanskail, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau.

MISTAKEN FOR ANIMAL, GIRL SHOT BY FARMER

MAYERTHORPE, Alta. (CP) — RCMP said Monday that Judy Ann Kirsch, 15, believed to be of Mayerthorpe, was shot and killed by a farmer who thought he was shooting at a coyote.

Police said the farmer heard his dogs barking and saw movement in a bush near his farmhouse. Having been troubled in the past by coyotes, he shot into the bush with a .22 calibre rifle.

Colwood, Langford Merger Step Closer

Municipal status for Colwood, Langford and View Royal is a step closer following a meeting today between Greater Victoria municipal representatives and Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer.

Lorimer said the seven mayors, three regional representatives and regional district chairman Jim Campbell, who attended the meeting, were opposed to any other changes in the Greater Victoria municipal boundaries.

The minister said, as far as he was concerned, the issue of other amalgamations is "dormant".

He said further meetings will be held on the subject of "some sort of municipal status" for the three outlying areas. A great deal of in-depth study of the areas and their tax bases will be needed, he said.

Asked if the government would campaign for the new status, Lorimer said there would be "a good campaign" but he denied the government had already made the decision to amalgamate the areas.

Jobless Rate Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment rate fell to 4.9 per cent in June, its lowest level in more than four years, Statistics Canada reported today.

Jobless rates and employment levels showed the best improvements on the Prairies while a double-digit unemployment rate remained only in the Atlantic region.

The June drop in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment level was a whopping six-tenths of a percentage point. There has not been an improvement that large in one month since October, 1966.

Regionally, the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were 10.3 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, 6.4 per cent in Quebec, 3.6 per cent in Ontario, 2.7 per cent in the Prairie provinces and 5.3 per cent in British Columbia.

There was a sharp drop in the level of unemployed under 25— down to 8.4 per cent from 9.7 per cent seasonally adjusted.

The number of persons employed declined last month ending a seven-month string of increases, and the upward trend was resumed in June.

Park-and-Ride for Civil Servants

A park-and-ride service for provincial government employees will begin this fall, enabling the government to eliminate several hundred parking spaces in the legislative precinct and free the land for new development.

A brief outline of how the system will work was given to city council's Central Business District Advisory Committee Monday by Ald. Sam Bawlf.

A "fringe" parking area will be established on the northern perimeter of downtown where government workers can leave their cars during the day, Bawlf said.

They will be taken to and from work by shuttle buses, which initially will be normal buses but later may be some form of multi-unit "people mover."

Bawlf indicated the government's long-term aim is to eliminate 1,000 parking spaces around the Legislative Buildings, and the first step, with the introduction of the park-and-ride service this fall, should achieve at least half that reduction.

Although the parking facilities will be only for government employees, he said, the shuttle buses will operate at 10-minute intervals throughout the day and carry other passengers during off-peak hours.

The long-range plan is to establish permanent parking facilities even farther out, in Saanich, and as soon as the shuttle service is operating from there the northern-downtown location will be turned over entirely to public use, he said.

"It's a very exciting prospect," he added. "To the extent that we can remove commuter traffic we shall have created tremendous capacity for new business downtown."

Eaton's manager Reg Hind said the site of the fringe parking area is vital, as locating it too far out would tend to create a "whole new commercial area" and pull people away from downtown.

Bawlf assured Hind the city is sensitive to that possibility and has insisted the parking be within the northern downtown boundaries.

On another aspect of traffic and parking policy, Lloyd Davies, president of the Downtown Business Association, told Bawlf association members are "diametrically opposed" to the proposal to double parking meter rates, which comes before council for approval later this week.

"This is another thing that's likely to drive people to the (suburban) shopping centres," he said. "We must remain competitive downtown."

Davies said when the city first introduced parking meters in 1947 it did so as a traffic control measure and not for any revenue gain. "But now it looks as if you are raising the rates for extra revenue."

Bawlf asked him to present a report on the matter for consideration at the committee's next monthly meeting.
